Unity house seeks to strengthen role on campus

BY ASHLEY STEVENS The College Voice

Members of the college community gathered at Unity House on Thursday, February 29 to say goodbye to Tamara Michel, its resigning director. Marisol Negron, currently Unity's Intercultural Program Coordinator, will serve as Acting Director of Unity House until the position is filled. Negron's goal is to keep things normal and ensure a smooth transition during this interim period. She will act as an advisor to the many student groups affiliated with Unity House, including Umoja, I-Pride, and La Unidad. Particular attention will be paid to those organizations with thematic weeks or events coming up. Negron will perform necessary duties while serving as acting director, but because the position of director is expected to be filled rather quickly, she does not have time to serve on as many committees and therefore won't be doing as much advocacy as Michel had done in the past.

Negron's time at Unity will not be up as well. Her position was expected that she would be leaving for grad school after two years. A new director will hopefully be chosen by the end of the school year, allowing time for Negron to transition over the summer, then she will leave to get her Ph.D. in Latino studies and a joint law degree. Negron has already been accepted to Stanford's Ph.D. program. Members of the executive board met early last week during which Negron answered questions about the future of Unity House. Many students, not wanting to cause controversy, declined to comment on their opinions of Unity House for this article. However, one student involved with a Unity House organization indicated that many students of color feel that Unity has not been a proper support system for them. The college actively recruits students of color to campus, who in many cases arrive here to find a very different environment from that which they are used to. Unity House should fill this void, and help these students to function while still taking pride in their own cultures, the student said. Unfortunately, many minority students have not thought of Unity as a "safe" and impartial place to go with problems such as these. The student does not blame Michel for this, but adds that her resignation has prompted students to voice their opinions in general, and their concerns about being able to actively participate in the search for a new director.

Associate Dean Roberto Ifill

See Unity House, P. 10
SAVÉ: Student activists sponsor petition drive
BY MICHELLE RONAYNE
Acting Publisher/Editor in Chief

The Millstone Nuclear Power Plant, only 12 miles from Conn, has become a source for student activists, and was just placed on the Nuclear Regulatory Commission’s (NRC) watch list. The "watch," the NRC’s way of saying to utilities that future hearings may be held, is a precursor to the NRC's final decision on the power plant’s continued operation.

Most recently, Conn’s own student group Students Against Violence to the Environment (SAVE) has joined a national movement that calls for a Congressional investigation into the NRC and nuclear power plants safety standards in the interest of public and workers safety. The movement is led by Stephen Comly and his white-blower protection group, We the People, Inc. The student activists were members of the actions of George Galatis and his speech at Conn during the SAVE forum on February 16. Galatis was the vice president of Millstone, who was recently featured on the cover of Time magazine. He told students at the forum, "If you don't get involved, eventually all of us will pay a price.

Last week, over 20 students from SAVE began a petition. The group aims to get full college credit for the full college consideration to complete such a petition. The group has launched a door-to-door effort to gather signatures and the petition will eventually go to President Bill Clinton, Senator Matherly, New London, Speaker of the House Nancy Gingrich, and the governors of the 50 states. The petition cites that more than half of the nuclear power plants in the country contain unregulated and uncontrolled parts, yet the NRC has lowered safety standards rather than forcing plants to replace defective materials. The petition also charges that there are no on-site evacuation plans for many of the country’s nuclear power plants, and that evacuation measures are inexcusable to the elderly and handicapped. This petition is not aimed against Millstone. Rather it is a petition to ensure safety to the public and nuclear power plant workers. It is also geared at increasing consumer knowledge of nuclear power.

"As we started this campaign, I began to realize how few students even knew that Millstone existed, never mind all of the problems the plant had," said Natalie Hildt, SAVE member and organizer of the petition drive. "We’re looking at the petition drive as a way to send a message to the assembled officials in such an effort. The petition as an effort to raise awareness about nuclear power."

This week, SAVE is seeking to sign an additional 200 signatures. Hildt explained that people are always a little reluctant to sign petitions but once the petition is explained almost everyone has said yes to helping save the environment. "Once I explain the petition is not against anything but seeking to ensure safety to the elderly and handicapped. There is incredible evidence... if you are going to do nuclear power, it has to be done safely," said Hildt.

On Thursday, March 7 at 6 p.m., there will be a hearing at the town hall in Waterford. Galatis and concerned citizens will have the opportunity to speak and the public will have an opportunity to present testimony. The public can present their testimony, which will be collected and sent to the NRC in Washington D.C. The public has the opportunity to present their testimony, which will be collected and sent to the NRC in Washington D.C.

anything was wrong. According to a student standing outside, the resident of the room in which the incident occurred was not in the room but at the library. According to the New London Fire Marshal, there was no tremendous fire damage and the incident was brought under control very quickly.

Nick Slominsky, J. board chair, said that a newly formed committee is working on developing a written statement of the honor code. He said that the committee includes a dean, two faculty members, and a representative from the President’s Office. Slominsky asked that all interested students contact him. After remediating the assembly that Tamara Michel, director of Unity House, has resigned to accept a position at Yale, Dan Shedd, president of SGA, announced that he and the other students would be sitting on the search committee to find a replacement for Michel. Shedd added that the committee would also be looking at ways to improve the relationship between Unity House and the rest of the campus.

William Intner, senior class president, and member of Academic and Administrative Procedures committee reminded the assembly that prior approval is necessary if students want credit for courses and programs taken outside of Conn. In other words, students cannot take classes during the summer and assume that the university will automatically earn Conn credit.

Damon Krieger, senator of KB, announced that the Dean’s Term committee would be turning over after spring break. He said that if any students are interested in serving on the committee next year, they should contact Lisa Dupee, senator of Branford. Rudi Rietin informed the assembly that the Library Committee had met and had coffee and donuts.
MEET THE FRONTRUNNERS

Junior Super Tuesday is upon us, and Connecticut voters are among those from nine states who will have their say during this primary season. Don’t let your voice go unnoticed, if you are a registered independent or Republican, go and cast your vote for the candidate of your choice. If you are a democrat, remember that even though Clinton is running unopposed, he is looking for a strong show of support. Remember, if you don’t vote, you sacrifice your right to complain once a winner is chosen!
Get out and vote!

Pat Buchanan

BIRTH DATE: November 2, 1938
HOMETOWN: Mclean, VA
AGE ON INAUGURATION DAY: 58
CURRENT JOB: just left CNN’s Crossfire and his syndicated column to run for President
AFFILIATIONS: Chairman, The American Cause
POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY: anti-abortion conservative
PET ISSUE: trade protection
BIGGEST PLUS: populist base
BIGGEST MINUS: far-right reputation
ODDS OF WINNING: 10 to 1

Buchanan has an extremely varied political background, from being Communications Director under Reagan to his most recent stint as a voice on CNN's Crossfire opposite Michael Kingsley. A deeply conservative Catholic, Buchanan can be just as outrageous as he was in the 1992 campaign when he gave sitting president George Bush a run for his money.

But now, he is one of a small crowd of contenders who espouse similar positions on family values, taxes, prayer in school, and abortion. Buchanan calls himself an “economic patriot” who will fight to preserve American workers’ standard of living; he promises to protect American borders from illegal immigration and is a neo-isolationist.

Buchanan’s surprise win in New Hampshire over established frontrunner Bob Dole has pushed him into the forefront. But his long term problem is that his Pro-Life and isolationist stances alienate moderates. Some Republicans worry that Buchanan will split the party and destroy its chances of reclaiming the White House in November.

Bob Dole

BIRTH DATE: July 22, 1923
HOMETOWN: Russell, KS
AGE ON INAUGURATION DAY: 73
CURRENT JOB: Senate Majority Leader
AFFILIATIONS: Kiwariis, Mascons, Chamber of Commerce, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Shriners, Elks
POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY: conservative with occasional centrist leanings
PET ISSUE: downsizing federal government in favor of states and localities
BIGGEST PLUS: experience, stature
BIGGEST MINUS: a reputation for dullness
ODDS OF WINNING: 3 to 1

In his third time around, once as Gerald Ford’s running mate and twice on his own, Dole was pegged as the obvious nominee. But after a surprise defeat in the crucial New Hampshire primary to populist Pat Buchanan, it seems that the other candidates are giving the Senate Majority Leader a run for his money.

Dole’s principal message is a smaller government; the quintessential Washington insider is running on a promise of returning power to the people, through their state and local governments.

Dole has served in Congress since 1961, his major achievements being the champion of the food stamp program and the leader of the charge to authorize use of force in the Persian Gulf.

He is still the frontrunner for the Republican nomination with 72 delegates, but with a total of 1,990 delegates available, the race has just begun. His biggest challenge is to craft a compelling message that consolidates mainstream Republicans behind him.

Lamar Alexander

BIRTH DATE: July 3, 1940
HOMETOWN: Nashville, TN
AGE ON INAUGURATION DAY: 56
CURRENT JOB: Attorney with Fowler, Roundtree & Robertson
AFFILIATIONS: Tennessee Bar Association, Empower America, Common Cause
POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY: pragmatic centrist until 1994, now a conservative populist
PET ISSUE: funding federal programs back to the states, including welfare and much of medicare, law enforcement and job training
BIGGEST PLUS: executive experience, disciplined, top notch campaign staff
BIGGEST MINUS: bland speaker, too moderate in tone for many conservatives
ODDS OF WINNING: 25 to 1

While Alexander’s overall record paints him as a pragmatic centrist, in preparation for the run for the White House he repositioned himself as a conservative populist and the lone “outsider” in the race. He is waging a Ross Perot inspired crusade to dispel the charge to authorize use of force in the Persian Gulf.

Forbes has made the elimina-

Steve Forbes

BIRTH DATE: July 18, 1947
HOMETOWN: Morristown, NY
AGE ON INAUGURATION DAY: 49
CURRENT JOB: President and CEO, Forbes, Inc; Editor-in-Chief, FORBES Magazine
AFFILIATIONS: Princeton University Trustee, Ronald Reagan Presidential Foundation, American Enterprise Institute, Chairman of Board for International Broadcasting
POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY: supply side economics
PET ISSUE: flat tax
BIGGEST PLUS: clear message
BIGGEST MINUS: lack of political experience
ODDS OF WINNING: 50 to 1

Republican candidates lurching rightward, Forbes is affably laissez-faire.

Attackimg Washington’s current fixation on budget-cutting, Forbes is sticking to the Reagan-era mantra of tax cuts and deregulation.

Despite strong showings in early polls and millions of dollars in campaign spending, Forbes’ dismal showings in Iowa and New Hampshire make it improbable that he will win the Republican nomination.

Forbes’ biggest mistake: a rash of negative advertising that enraged voters, and an excessively narrow focus on his signature proposal, the flat tax. But the millionaire publisher will continue to be a factor. Even if the strong second place finish in South Carolina isn’t a hint of what’s to come, Forbes’ deep pockets ensure that he will be a strong voice in the race until the end. His biggest challenges is to expand his message of “hope, growth, and opportunity” beyond that flat tax.
Israelis declare ‘war’ against Hamas after another weekend bombing

An explosion ripped apart a commuter bus on one of Jerusalem’s busiest streets early Sunday, killing at least 19 people in a grim replay of last week’s deadly suicide bombing, along the same route at the same time.

The militant Islamic group Hamas claimed responsibility for the attack, its third in a week. Israel army radio reported that 14 people were hospitalized, five in serious condition.

The Hamas bomber was among the 19 who died Sunday. Police identified him as Islam Abu Abed, a 24-year-old Palestinian from the town of Hebron. Two Israeli soldiers and at least six Hungarian contract workers were also killed.

The Israeli government declared “all-out war” against Hamas, saying tough steps will be taken against the families of Islamic suicide bombers. Israel also said it will$2 billion budget will be allocated for the separation of Israelis from the one million Palestinians in the West Bank.

Besides waging “all-out war against Hamas and other terrorist organizations,” Peres also announced other measures Sunday that will be taken in response to the bombings. These include posting police and security forces at bus stops to check riders and bystanders, beefing up intelligence activities in Jerusalem, and taking legal action against the families of suicide bombers and destroying their homes.

Dole takes South Carolina primary

On his way to victory in the South Carolina primary Saturday, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole split the so-called “religious right” vote with Pat Buchanan and trounced Buchanan on the issue of international trade, exit polls showed.

Two out of three voters said they are more concerned about the nation’s moral problems than its economic woes. Dole beat Buchanan on both counts. However, despite having eight candidates to choose from, 44 percent of the South Carolina voters polled said they wished they had had another choice.

Buchanan’s protectionist trade proposals are a centerpiece of his campaign, but they apparently cost him the South Carolina race. While the state has suffered from textile industry losses, it has based recent economic growth on foreign investment and trade.

Dole won nearly a majority of the moderates rather than splitting that vote with either Steve Forbes or Lamar Alexander, as has been seen in earlier primaries. Half the voters view Buchanan as too extreme. But he won three counties where textiles long have been a foundation of the economy.

Alexander, the former Tennessee governor who has acknowledged he desperately needs a primary win, was won nearly across the board, despite a state campaign built on appeals to Southerners.

The South Carolina primary precedes Junior Super Tuesday, in which nine states including Connecticut will hold their primaries.

Exile pilots mourn comrades

Braving harsh, stormy weather Saturday, a small plane flew over the area where two US civilian aircraft were shot down by Cuban military jets last weekend.

Most of the planes were piloted by members of the Miami-based exile group Brothers to the Rescue. The group also organized Saturday’s flotilla of two dozen small boats that eventually had to return home because of foul weather.

Before heading back to Florida, the vessels held a brief memorial service for the four men who are presumed dead in the shoot-down.

The group had wanted to conduct its maritime service in the area where the planes were destroyed, which Brothers to the Rescue says is about 21 miles north of Havana. But choppy seas with waves reaching seven feet and winds at 17 miles per hour forced the flotilla to hold the service about 23 miles short of its destination.

Pilots carried bouquets and funeral wreaths to be dropped in the ocean spot where the planes were thought to have gone down. A smoke flare was also tossed out of one of the planes to mark the area.

The US Coast Guard accompanied the flotilla and provided a C-130 escort for the civilian airplanes.

Astronauts sets fire in space

Astronauts aboard the space shuttle Columbia began an intense day of science experiments on Sunday as they willingly set fires in near-zero gravity.

A minor Scott Horowitz ignited various materials as part of a test to see how air motion affects the spread of fire. On Earth, air movement helps the spread of fire, but less is known about how fire spreads in near-zero gravity. A better understanding of fire in space will help predict how fires will behave on Earth and aboard spacecraft, NASA said.

As Horowitz ignited a fuel sample in a $1 million box that provides a contained space for the fire, a blue flame erupted.

The air flow and fire experiments are one of three sets of combustion tests that will be conducted in the glovebox, where astronauts can handle dangerous or toxic materials.

The experiments were continued as Columbia orbited the earth once every 90 minutes. NASA reported no problems aboard the space shuttle. Columbia’s seven-member crew is scheduled to return to Earth on Thursday.

Northern Ireland talks on shaky ground

Ireland Prime Minister John Bruton stepped up pressure Sunday for a new truce by IRA nationalist guerrillas amid reports of angry rumblings by Loyalist and Republican splinter groups in British-ruled Northern Ireland. Bruton challenged the IRA to break with the past and throw its Sinn Fein political arm into all-party talks.

The region’s volatility was underscored Sunday when police kept apart several hundred Catholic and Protestant protesters in Lurgan, 30 miles from Belfast, after a Catholic Republican march was banned in the town center.

Earlier, doubt was cast over an Anglo-Irish initiative for June 10 peace talks by reports that rogue Protestant militants were threatening attacks on leading Republicans.

But politicians close to pro-British ex-terrorist commanders insist an 18-month Loyalist truce is holding firm.

Opinion polls pointed to a first-time victory for the center-right Popular Party. But Socialists hoped a high turnout among their supporters would stop the conservatives from winning and overall majority.

Spanish voters head to polls

Spaniards crowded into polling stations Sunday in a general election expected to oust Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez’s tired and scandal-stained socialist government after thirteen years in power.

All opinion polls pointed to a first-time victory for the center-right Popular Party. But Socialists hoped a high turnout among their supporters would stop the conservatives from winning and overall majority.

Opinion polls, which seem clear-cut, could still prove unreliable. Before the last general election in 1993, surveys consistently showed the two major parties neck and neck, each with around 35 percent of the vote. But the final result gave Gonzalez a clear win, although without a majority.

Warm spring weather across much of the country could work in Gonzalez’s favor by pushing turnout among Spain’s 32 million voters from the 76-percent turnout three years ago to close the 80-percent mark of 1993, when Gonzalez won his first landslide victory.

Sunday’s election, which Gonzalez was forced to schedule a year early after losing the support of his Catalan parliamentary allies, is the seventh general election since democracy was restored in 1977 after nearly 40 years of dictatorship.
Readers express concern over WCNI

We are writing to express our concerns about the campus radio station, WCNI. We’ve heard it’s somewhere in Cro. Although we don’t listen to the station, and when we do listen to the DJs, we feel it’s our job to take upon ourselves the task of addressing this issue. We do not see why more than 50 percent of the DJs at the station should be community members - in fact, why should there be community members involved in our clubs at all? Despite the fact that they may “pledge” four times as much as Coon students do and make up the majority of the station’s listening audience, WCNI is here for us! We believe that all interaction with the community should be restricted to activities we design for them in the interests of fostering a “global community” and preferably involve only children, so that we may maintain our distance from these people.

We are concerned that decisions regarding WCNI are made only by club members. As a campus radio station, perhaps they should hold general dorm-based elections for positions, like SAC.

We feel this is part of a larger epidemic of club elitism and general injustice to the student body at large. For example:

- Why are only Film Society members involved in the selection of Film Society movies? It is not right that one should have to “join their club” to have control of it. And why should only Film Society members be exempt from admission fees? Are they somehow better than us?
- Why is the Dance Club made up entirely of people who dance? There are plenty of us here, we’re sure, who just don’t like to dance, and there is nothing wrong with that!
- Why can only people who are 21 or older allowed to drink in the bar? We like to drink too. Injustice abounds, my friends.
- We also think it unfair that there is not a general student committee to decide who the captains of all sports teams should be. We are sure they do not know more about their respective teams than we do.
- Why can’t we park in the “faculty/staff” parking areas? They not only don’t pay to go here, they don’t even live on campus! Why do they need parking?

We plan to bring up these issues and more to the student-rights activists at extension 4855, and we encourage everyone who cares about this school to do the same.

Jennifer A. Geller ’96
Rachel A. Benoit ’96
Two student DJs, who, although we’ve attended WCNI meetings for four years, are not on the current semester’s schedule.

March 5, 1996

Response to February 27 issue

The seven student members of WCNI’s Board of Directors would like to respond to the cover article written by Jenny Marchik that appeared in the Voice’s February 27 issue.

WCNI is a non-profit organization owned by its members, not the college. WCNI’s standard of diverse programming generally does not include the type of shows that are in the domain of commercial radio. Our listeners appreciate and support WCNI because we offer programming unavailable on other stations in the area. Sports coverage, however, can be heard locally on WICH, WUSB, and WFAN (which is an all sports station).

Time slots are awarded to DJs based on the merits of their shows, not on the basis of sponsorships. We have discussed the issue of available funding with the administration in the past, and it is not a viable option.

The statements made by Fitz Giller, our Program Director, were taken out of the context of a half-hour interview Mr. Marchik conducted with Mr. Giller. Most of the information that he provided was not used in the article. We were surprised to see this article on the front page of the Voice, as it seemed to be primarily an opinion piece, despite selective use of the interview with Mr. Giller.

We would like to add that Dan Weinreich already provides sport coverage for the tri-weekly Voice Radio News program on WCNI. Mr. Weinreich and the rest of the Voice Radio News staff have shown a great improvement.

We believe that decisions regarding WCNI are made only by club members. As a campus radio station, perhaps they should hold general dorm-based elections for positions, like SAC.

We feel this is part of a larger epidemic of club elitism and general injustice to the student body at large. For example:

- Why are only Film Society members involved in the selection of Film Society movies? It is not right that one should have to “join their club” to have control of it. And why should only Film Society members be exempt from admission fees? Are they somehow better than us?
- Why is the Dance Club made up entirely of people who dance? There are plenty of us here, we’re sure, who just don’t like to dance, and there is nothing wrong with that!
- Why can only people who are 21 or older allowed to drink in the bar? We like to drink too. Injustice abounds, my friends.
- We also think it unfair that there is not a general student committee to decide who the captains of all sports teams should be. We are sure they do not know more about their respective teams than we do.
- Why can’t we park in the “faculty/staff” parking areas? They not only don’t pay to go here, they don’t even live on campus! Why do they need parking?

We plan to bring up these issues and more to the student-rights activists at extension 4855, and we encourage everyone who cares about this school to do the same.

Jennifer A. Geller ’96
Rachel A. Benoit ’96
Two student DJs, who, although we’ve attended WCNI meetings for four years, are not on the current semester’s schedule.

The WCNI Board of Directors

“A sharing of new ideas and new music”

In the February 27 edition of The College Voice, an article stated that some Coon students have raised concern over the format of the campus radio station, WCNI 91.1 FM. I would like to address some of the main points raised within the article. The writer of the article proclaims that “some members of the college community have expressed that WCNI does not represent the ‘tastes of the campus.’”

This statement is an intriguing one. The use of the phrase “some members” is a nice journalistic technique the writer employs to imply a larger group of people than there actually is. Through reading the article it seems that only one person could be classified as being “concerned” and his concerns seem to develop from disappointment in not receiving a time slot for his show. The process of obtaining a time slot at WCNI is a very difficult one which can not and will not always accommodate everyone. I had to wait for a year to obtain a shared time slot in which I alternated with another student from week to week. I am sorry that Mr. Weinreich cannot share the same patience that I and others have had to maintain when it comes to receiving a time slot.

The “tastes of the campus” comment is a difficult one to understand. Where do these “tastes of the campus” come from and how can they be correctly homogenized into a radio station’s programming? Large corporate radio stations target audiences through million-dollar research methods in order to capture the 13-17 year old female audience. At WCNI the method has always been “hey, this sounds good, I think I will play it.” It is a sharing of new ideas and new music. I don’t understand how any person’s tastes could not be accommodated at WCNI. At any time of day you can turn to WCNI and hear punk, pop, jazz, folk, classical, rock, rap, techno, reggae, spoken word, etc. Popular groups such as R.E.M., Nirvana, Soundgarden, Rancid, smashing Pumpkins, and Live were generated through loyal college radio audiences. Corporate radio stations jump on the hits of college radio and try to pass them off as “playing them first.” If they were not for beautiful college stations like WCNI, we would all still be listening to the radio stations being played during the time slot.

The Quiet Riot and Warrant. It would be a travesty to degrade WCNI by morphing it into a regurgitated Top 40 station playing “your” favorite hits. If you enjoy listening to T.L.C’s “Waterfalls” every hour on the hour then there are plenty of stations within the states of Rhode Island and Connecticut who can accommodate you. If you want to open your mind and your ears, WCNI is all the way to the left of the dial, 91.1 FM.

Eric M. Cronin
Class of 1998

Are you registered to vote in the state of Connecticut? If you are, don’t forget to vote in the upcoming primary!!!

Check out the special section in the voice about meeting the frontrunners on pages...
From The Voice: The right to say what you want

Last week, The College Voice did something that caused a lot of controversy. We accepted a Pro-Life advertisement.

What we did was not wrong; it was, however, met with horror by some, including phone calls, and even a few personal attacks. Much of the response was understandable; abortion is, after all, a "hot" issue. But in no way was this an endorse-

1) This was an issue of freedom of speech. While those who support the Pro-Life side of the debate may have this majority on this campus, they do not have this on The College Voice. Many members of the staff are, in fact, Pro-Choice. But that does not give us the right to censor the content of the advertisement of a group that holds a different opinion.

The decision to accept this ad was not made lightly. The Executive Board of the organization discussed the pros and cons of accepting such an advertisement and the decision came down to three key factors:

1) This was an issue of freedom of speech. While those who support the Pro-Life side of the debate may have this majority on this campus, they do not have this on The College Voice. Many members of the staff are, in fact, Pro-Choice. But that does not give us the right to censor the content of the advertisement of a group that holds a different opinion.

2) If a debate on this issue was going to occur, where better than at a liberal arts campus? This is just the place for an intellectual exchange of ideas.

3) The third concern was monetary. This was a paid advertisement and the newspaper was not in a position to give money away to the organization. In the face of these other key factors, how could we turn the advertiser away?

This decision was not based solely on financial matters as accept it, we may have not done this. Nor could we have printed this or a Pro-Life ad without receiving financial retribution because then it would have been an endorsement. The sitting business manager of the organization even went so far as calling Pro-

Choice organizations to see if they wished to advertise. This is not to say we would have proceeded when accepting advertising but the organization wished to be responsible.

The heart of the matter is that this is an issue of allowing others to have their say. Once that has been said, many newspapers are wont to wonder where you draw the line. While The College Voice will not discriminate solely on the basis of content, we will draw the line at hate speech. Had this been an insert for the Ku Klux Klan, we would not have accepted it because it would have been hate speech.

The "She's a Child, not a Choice" Pro-Life insert was not a merely a political paid advertisement, and however distasteful it might have been to those who did not agree, it could not be classified as hate speech. Had the insert been a political advertisement, we would have accepted it and, too, would have been a minority viewpoint. But would people have questioned it? Probably, and maybe a majority of the campus would not have responded had it been a regular Pro-Life insert.

But clarity comes when we confront the public. It is the way we talk about these issues, regardless of who is talking. It is at the issue of the shower and how much water we use, whether we actually have the right to turn the water on and off. We certainly support the right these gentlemen have exercised here. We support the right to have their say. And they do.

We must remember that free speech is the right to express an opinion, it is a beautiful thing. While it does not allow you to degrade or slander another, it does allow for viewpoints that range from very conservative to very liberal. These are the people who are the majority on campus.

Now that the insert has appeared, let us not forget the consequences of the advertisement. One thing that can not be denied is that it is received as the impetus for many a discussion on both the issues of freedom of speech and abortion. College is a time for such discussions but must be handled maturely and rationally. We should welcome the opportunity to sit down and debate intellectual viewpoints.

We must remember that freedom of speech, the right to express an opinion, is a beautiful thing. While it does not allow you to degrade or slander another, it does allow for viewpoints that range from very conservative to very liberal. As Voltaire once said, I don't agree with a word you say, but I will defend the right your death your right to say it.

We must remember that our forebears fought for the right to free speech and we should embrace it. We should resist in anger when someone is trying to silence someone's opinion. If you allow one voice to be silenced, let one opinion you find objectionable to be censored, then you should continue to look over your shoulder because the next voice could be your own.

Schmoozing: On Quieting the Messages From the Marginally Clever

Someone once said, "If you can't say something nice, then don't say anything at all." That's just plain stupid. The world is full of miserable characters who need to be hollered at, bitched out, and shut up. Sometimes the only way you can do that is to be nice. However, the sentiment is a good one and sometimes schmoozing would be well received. If you allow, "If you can't say something, then look in the mirror and say 'I'm glad to be (insert name here),' then don't say it."

Just take a look around you. While it is certainly nice to be polite, there comes a time when respect shows when you have to be bitchy just because that's what they are. Over the past few years we've noticed a proliferation of stupidity unspalled in the annals of history. For every intelligent thing that is said, you can count a hundred stupid and argumentative people who just plain dislike the impact of those things that are worth listening to. One uniquely American way of expressing ourselves and our views in the tabloids is through the use of our favorite examples of American culture translated on the chest of people of all races, colors and creeds, making us damn proud to be true red, white, and blue. "My Shit Is Long" with a cartoon character thrusting forth his enlarged penis. Enough said.

"Do The Right Thing By Any Means Necessary", so doesn't that mean that "any" thing is right. Which is strange, unless you're a Urvanian. Picture of a high-powered rifle with the caption "Long Distance, Just As Good". The first amendment. A great, necessary, but sometimes horribly telling provision of our constitutional rights. Enough said.

"Silly Jagged, Dick Are For Cheeks". Worn by some proud provincial college students. Enough said.

"The Man From Nantucket". Women were flocking around this endowed aloof bog stepping. "Let me slip off that Speedo and see what you're made of."

"Simply, I Hate You".

"Simply, Trust Jesus". Walking right behind the "I Hate You" guy.

"Alabama's Old Lady in Africa". Perhaps an "I Put The M to Manliness". The gentleman replied "I know". "Why the shirt then?" He said, "Because lots of people have been talking about how blacks are dirty and that we should do whatever is necessary to remove them from our society."

"Big Dick's Fishing Buds-Catch The Fish With A Big Dick". Part II. With a shirt like this, you can relate to the problems that other fathers might have. Perhaps an "I Put The M in Masturbation" might be more appropriate.

"Certified Male Dancing Instructor," Part III. Isn't this strange? Why don't women feel the need to wear a shirt that says "I Have Big Knockers" or 100% back. It was scorching hot and the gentleman was in his late 20's.

We certainly support the right these gentlemen have exercised here. We just realize that one of the prices of admission to The Great American Theater is the irresponsible, the just plain stupid, or the marginally clever. Whether or not there was a political motivation? Sure, it was. But the left, who believes that Hollywood makes the country just as dumb as the Weather Channel, probably wouldn't have said "I Have Big Knockers" or 100% back.

To silence fringe (and not-so-fringe) elements of our population in order to get people to the polls is what this is all about. One of the prices of admission to The Great American Theater is that you be hand out your own "Amen, brother" or "Amen, sister." At least they'll know somebody is listening.

Jay Jaroch

and

Matt Malone

"Anti-choice propaganda"

When I first opened the Voice this week, I was appalled. I couldn't believe that the pro-life political standpoint was being supported with anti-choice propaganda that was exactly the same as the newspaper itself. Did this mean our paper was not a legitimate voice on the issue? I quickly realized that the supplement was paid advertising, and that monetary considerations surely did play a role in the printing of such clearly biased material. Of course, I am biased myself, as I believe strongly that the choice is up to the individual. I spoke to Jesse Roberts, the acting Business Manager of the Voice, and tried to find out just how it was that this ad came to be in the paper. Much of my concern about the views of the Voice was eased by Jesse's explanation of why the ad ran. He explained to me that the Voice is short of money, and yes, the Right to Life group from Minnesota that paid for this supplement was placed in the ad in order to ensure that the newspaper did not run a loss. They finally decided to do so for three main reasons. One, the money. Two, the rules of advertising. Apparently, it is illegal to deny an advertising product if you want to sell the product. Three, the third justification the staff cited in running the ad is that there is no better place for ideas to be aired and debated than on a liberal arts campus. How could I argue that? So, better place for ideas to be aired and debated than on a constructed, non-censored platform, they weren't supposedly refuting claims of the pro-life movement. They weren't doing anything interesting or valuable. Why would they have had abortions and now regret it? He says they have been told, "in your situation, that is one thing you could do." I don't think it is anyone's business to claim that lack of a choice caused such pain! We also read that "in studies of incest victims, the vast majority choose to carry the pregnancy to term." Because they choose to carry the child, it should be the only option? The mysterious studies of Dr. Mahbom from which these assumptions for this article are drawn evidently conclude this. The advertising was in no way an attempt to persuade the reader to choose abortion, instead, at the end of pregnancy, wished she had decided on an abortion." Does Mr. Reardon think he would have such supportive information if abortion was not an option for those that had them? I could go on with this forever, but I know the examples are not necessarily true. At Creighton College, everyone is capable of being discerning and analytical about what they read, if they choose to be.

One final point. Throughout the ad, there was an emphasis on women who felt they had not been given any choice except abortion. It is wonderful that there are alternatives, but this supplement does not address the claims. Maybe instead of spending money on bullshit propaganda, the Human Life Alliance of Minnesota Education Fund, Inc. could put money into educating people about those options like adoption, and making those options feasible for every one. It is pure hypocrisy to mandate carrying a pregnancy to full-term without supporting the care of the babies that are born into families that don't want them, or that can't support them.

Mila Rosenfeld
Class of 1996

Supporting the cause

Many times in the course of the year I have been tempted to write about something that bothered me in your paper and held back, but this time you have gone too far. I don't care what your disclaimer says, if you accept money from an organization you are, at least, supporting their cause. I cannot believe the Voice is so strapped for money they are forced to take advertising from an organization which uses offensive material to get across a point. Never mind that I think the point is narrow-minded and I don't agree with it, the advertisement offers little if any fact and seriously detracts from maintaining the credibility you have been building. The most I am willing to say is that you should remove the advertisement and republish your newspaper. This is not a judgment of your taste, but I believe that you must be aware the content of your paper has the experience of 4 clinics out of the numerous clinics in the country. Her experience does not speak for everyone.

Throughout the supplement language is manipulated to create a picture in the reader's mind—"pre-born baby," "abortionist," "pro-abortionist" and "abortion." It appears throughout the text. Also, in describing the conditions of the unconscious, the discourse is used on one that most people are not familiar with. Medical terminology makes it impossible to understand what is really occurring, and allows the reader to create whatever gruesome images or her mind may conjure up.

Images play a huge part in the effectiveness of an ad. The more potent it is, the more often people do just give it a glance. The graphic depicting abortion to war is just one example of a graphic manipulation. The reader thinks immediately of blood, guts, violence and death. But really, are abortions "combat-related deaths"? The statistics (uncited and unqualified as to what constitutes a casualty in the "war on the unborn") really do not belong alongside combat-related deaths. Another graphic plies the mind two-page spread of adorable babies with an empty spot claiming "Twenty seconds ago, there was one more." Abortions do occur, but they are not performed on babies that look like the ones in the picture.

I was particularly infuriated by the "The abortion experience for victims of rape and incest." David Reardon, (whoever he is) informs us that "In fact, rape and incest victims actually suffer considerably from the abortion." Anyone can suffer considerably from an abortion! Pro-choice supporters are not promoting abortion as a wonderful thing, they are not forcing abortion on anyone, as this article repeatedly implies. Reardon cites the misery of rape and incest victims who have had abortions and now regret it. He says they have been told, "in your situation, that is the only thing you could do." I don't think it is anyone's business to claim that lack of a choice caused such pain! We also read that "in studies of incest victims, the vast majority choose to carry the pregnancy to term." Because they choose to carry the child, it should be the only option? The mysterious studies of Dr. Mahbom from which these assumptions for this article are drawn evidently conclude this. The advertising was in no way an attempt to persuade the reader to choose abortion, instead, at the end of pregnancy, wished she had decided on an abortion." Does Mr. Reardon think he would have such supportive information if abortion was not an option for those that had them? I could go on with this forever, but I know the examples are not necessarily true. At Creighton College, everyone is capable of being discerning and analytical about what they read, if they choose to be.

One final point. Throughout the ad, there was an emphasis on women who felt they had not been given any choice except abortion. It is wonderful that there are alternatives, but this supplement does not address the claims. Maybe instead of spending money on bullshit propaganda, the Human Life Alliance of Minnesota Education Fund, Inc. could put money into educating people about those options like adoption, and making those options feasible for every one. It is pure hypocrisy to mandate carrying a pregnancy to full-term without supporting the care of the babies that are born into families that don't want them, or that can't support them.

Tolonda Henderson
Class of 1999

Free speech on a "liberal" campus

I would like to address some of the negative responses to the anti-abortion insert in last week's Voice. I am writing not as a member of the Voice, or as anyone making a stand on abortion. I am writing in support of the freedom of speech and the rights of the Pro-Life movement. I put liberal in quotes because in my mind a true liberal would not want to censor a group. Censorship is about oppression and that is not what I think the liberals on this campus are about. However, that is exactly what they are doing when they steal inserts with which they don't agree. Some have voiced the opinion that if the inserts were about Nazis or the Michigan Militia it would not have been included. These people are ignoring the fact that the pro-life movement is legitimate. It is not that they don't want to have插入s, it is simply that they don't want to have the inserts about abortion. I am stating this to show that the students who voice their opinions. We, as educated individuals, should be able to choose with whom we agree. To work through our college careers with blinders on to anything we don't agree with does not expand our minds - it stunts them.

Eiten Savino
Class of 1998

"Moral and occupational responsibilities"

This letter is not necessarily meant for publication nor am I demanding its placement in the Opinions/Editorials section. I feel that it is only fair to allow anyones views, no matter how outrageous they may seem, to be expressed. This is a college newspaper. The purpose of a newspaper is to disseminate impartial information - that is, to give equal time to both sides of any given issue.

Benjamin Zuckerberg
Class of 1998

Poor journalistic judgement

By inserting the "She's not a choice, she's a life" advertising supplement in the Voice, you have exhibited poor journalistic judgement. Recognize which side of the pro/anti choice argument you as editors take, the purpose of a newspaper is to disseminate impartial information - that's, to give equal time to both sides of any given issue.
mutter took place. A ballistic expert who examined the empty shell casings from Mr. Cook's gun testified that they were consistent with the fragments of the bullets removed from Officer Faulkner's body.

Amnesty International Program Director Linda Thomson has admitted that she had not read the transcript of Mr. Cook's trial before publicly pushing for a stay of execution and a new trial for the killer. Assistant council George Rudolf of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund has admitted that, to his knowledge, nobody in that organization had read the trial transcript. Author E. D. Nixon now claimed in a newspaper article that an eyewitness testified at the trial that the shooter was a heavyset man who fled the scene. Actually, the witness Doctor claims to be quoting numbers recorded in the trial transcript as testifying that the saw Wesley Cook shoot Officer Faulkner. I suppose we can assume that Doctorow has not looked at the transcript, either.

Which leads us to the original eyewitnesses. Those three people, who were interviewed within a half hour of the shooting, murdered Officer Faulkner, all gave information which confirmed that Mr. Cook was the killer and which confirmed each of those accounts, although the third interview was much shorter than either, and spoke to different officers at different locations. The so-called eyewitnesses who have claimed that another shooter was involved in Officer Faulkner's murder have produced stories which contradict each other and which don't match the physical evidence of the incident. The only witnesses whose testimony agrees with the undisputed facts of the case are those who came forward immediately after the crime, probably because they did not realize that there was anything wrong.

Seeing all the bullets intact, Dr. Weinraub found no trace of the missing bullet fragments. He also discovered a .38-caliber weapon. His examination of the wound confirmed that Officer Faulkner had been shot twice, one bullet each from two .38-caliber guns. He determined that the bullets were fired from the same gun, the standard issue of police officers.

Mr. Cook's gun was found at the scene, and matched the bullets found at the crime scene. The bullet fragments found in Mr. Cook's body were consistent with the fragments removed from Officer Faulkner's body.

The Earth House would like to take this opportunity to publicly denounce the advertising supplement from the Human Life Alliance of Minnesota Education Fund Inc. which appeared in the February 27, 1996 issue of the College Voice. This supplement is another blow in the battle to control women's bodies and cannot go uncontested.

However good the intentions of some Pro-Life organizations, which now constitute the majority of Conn students) support WCNI as listeners and financial supporters. I am sure that the station's volunteers and financial supporters. I am sure that the station's account for themselves to something new. The greatest block of supporters as well as contribute to the public-relations for the college. The Connecticut College Students should tune in and experience the station as the World's College Radio. WCNI.

The OJ college Voice is an opinion page, and it is in the form of an editorial, my response would be different, for I would be disputing the opinion asserted by the author. In this format, though, in which The College Voice is being paid to publish an opinion, the editors have sold their journalistic integrity.

Meredith Kasten
Class of 1997

WCNI listener content with community involvement

I am a female sophomore who listens to WCNI (to- cationally) a few times a week. I was very disappointed to read the recent front page address by a campus radio station. I listen to WCNI for so many of its offerings, such as classical music, jazz, blues, world music, techno, ska, punk, not to mention new music being put out on small labels overlooked or ignored by mainstream radio stations. Perhaps, rather than complaining that WCNI does not offer music which can be easily found on numerous other stations.

Connecticut College Students should tune in and expose themselves to something new.

Kristen Holt
Class of 1998

Still smiling

It has now been over 14 years since Wesley Cook, better known now as Mumia Abu-Jamal, was convicted and convicted to reside in Attica State Prison, after a trial over a prison break between the two, for the shooting death of Officer Faulkner, a man who used to be my school yearbook editor. Wesley Cook, the death of the officer Faulkner, who had been shot to death. Wesley Cook drew his licensed .38-caliber pistol and shot officer Faulkner in the back as he walked away from an inmate who had been attacking Wesley Cook's brother. Severely wounded and falling, Officer Faulkner attempted to return fire, striking Wesley Cook but unfortunately not rendering him incapable of faking the Weinglass. Wesley Cook lay prone on the ground, incapable of defending himself due to being shot earlier, Wesley Cook fell at Faulkner more times. The other side of the coin, you can see how high voltage -p bullet into Faulkner's head, killing him.

The preceding account of the murderous events which transpired that day is factually accurate. When the back-up officers requested by Wesley Cook arrived on the scene, they found Officer Faulkner lying in the street. Four wounds away the wounded Wesley Cook with his .38-caliber pistol lying next to him. The pistol contained one .38 high velocity .p bullet and eight empty shells which formerly encased the bullets that were now embedded inside the dead police officer. At the original location, the gun owner testified that he sold Mr. Cook two .38 high velocity .p bullets before the shooting.
“Only the extreme is interesting”

BY MICHAEL ADELSON
Professor of Music

Magnus Lindberg is a soft-spoken man. He is 38 years old, converses easily in English and French as well as his native Finnish, and has a keen intellect, an easy smile and a charming sense of humor. Judging from his personality, you might never guess what kind of music he composes. But read his own words and you might get a clue: “Only the extreme is interesting - striving for a balanced totality is nowadays an impossibility. An original mode of expression can only be achieved through the marginal - the hypercomplex combined with the primitive”. Magnus wrote those words in the early 1980s.

Getting Out: an emotional ride

BY BRITT WOLFF
Associate A&E Editor

Getting Out, a play written by Marsha Norman, played in February 29 until March 2.

Getting Out was written by Marsha Norman in the 1970s while she was in college. Norman's goal was to write a play about the worst thing a person could endure; for her, this was solitary confinement.

Thus began the theme of Getting Out. A woman, Arlene, who is recently released from prison. Farkas had the opportunity to spend time with women enrolled in the nearby Niantic Correction Facility. She found the women of the Niantic incredibly and enlightening. Her six visits shaped her ability to direct the play while infusing her insight and first-hand emotion into the production equally.

Some of the actors also worked closely with these women to get a better understanding of the characters they were to portray. Freshmen Megan Keith and Charly Bellavia, who both portrayed main characters, went through extensive training to understand movement and specific speech patterns. All actors displayed intense emotion and every detail - to the seemingly minute sniffling of a nose - to the textures as crucial points are reached. This is a very different principle from the traditional idea of development, or simple structures giving rise to increasingly complex ones.

The first year of the project was devoted to creating a computer program which would allow Magnus more flexibility in the use of rhythms and harmonies (the densest chords in 19’00” quiet but insistent long notes become apparent. A climax on a low brass. Slowly the pitch rises, and the textures as crucial points are reached. This is a very different principle from the traditional idea of development, or simple structures giving rise to increasingly complex ones.

But the first year of the project was devoted to developing a computer program which would allow Magnus more flexibility in the use of rhythms and harmonies. Magnus Lindberg is a soft-spoken man. He is 38 years old, converses easily in English and French as well as his native Finnish, and has a keen intellect, an easy smile and a charming sense of humor. Judging from his personality, you might never guess what kind of music he composes. But read his own words and you might get a clue: “Only the extreme is interesting - striving for a balanced totality is nowadays an impossibility. An original mode of expression can only be achieved through the marginal - the hypercomplex combined with the primitive”. Magnus wrote those words in the early 1980s.

Magnus Lindberg is a soft-spoken man. He is 38 years old, converses easily in English and French as well as his native Finnish, and has a keen intellect, an easy smile and a charming sense of humor. Judging from his personality, you might never guess what kind of music he composes. But read his own words and you might get a clue: “Only the extreme is interesting - striving for a balanced totality is nowadays an impossibility. An original mode of expression can only be achieved through the marginal - the hypercomplex combined with the primitive”. Magnus wrote those words in the early 1980s.

Magnus Lindberg, a soft-spoken man. He is 38 years old, converses easily in English and French as well as his native Finnish, and has a keen intellect, an easy smile and a charming sense of humor. Judging from his personality, you might never guess what kind of music he composes. But read his own words and you might get a clue: “Only the extreme is interesting - striving for a balanced totality is nowadays an impossibility. An original mode of expression can only be achieved through the marginal - the hypercomplex combined with the primitive”. Magnus wrote those words in the early 1980s.

Magnus Lindberg, a soft-spoken man. He is 38 years old, converses easily in English and French as well as his native Finnish, and has a keen intellect, an easy smile and a charming sense of humor. Judging from his personality, you might never guess what kind of music he composes. But read his own words and you might get a clue: “Only the extreme is interesting - striving for a balanced totality is nowadays an impossibility. An original mode of expression can only be achieved through the marginal - the hypercomplex combined with the primitive”. Magnus wrote those words in the early 1980s.

Magnus Lindberg, a soft-spoken man. He is 38 years old, converses easily in English and French as well as his native Finnish, and has a keen intellect, an easy smile and a charming sense of humor. Judging from his personality, you might never guess what kind of music he composes. But read his own words and you might get a clue: “Only the extreme is interesting - striving for a balanced totality is nowadays an impossibility. An original mode of expression can only be achieved through the marginal - the hypercomplex combined with the primitive”. Magnus wrote those words in the early 1980s.
Trapped
Continued from p. 1

a handicapped person. "It isn't what my life revolves around either. Someone once told me, after I had expressed a little of my frustration at my situation, that if you are handicapped, being in a wheelchair is, and is quoted, "who you are."

But it's part of my life, but it's not "who me." My disability ranges from being a minor nuisance to a major pain in the ass, but normally, I can take it. It's somewhat uncomfortable when people try to give me a high five or shake my hand, and I can't respond. I feel awkward because I feel like I snub people, and people feel bad and apologize, but it's not their fault. I should let people know that it's okay to reach out and grab my hand to shake it.

Hell, my little sister slaps me in the head sometimes. Other things, though, aren't funny; they're downright deplorable.

"Like what?" you ask. Well, for instance when all the handicapped spots are taken! Somehow, it seems, there are a whole lot more handicapped people when it's raining or snowing than when it's sunny. People in wheelchairs need access to buildings on campus, and of general concerns for the future of Unity organizations. It is important that the search process move relatively according to schedule in order to ensure full student participation before exams and summer break. Once the candidates are narrowed down, the final decision will be made by Dean Ferrari, President Gaudenti, and faculty groups.

Deans Ifill and Ferrari both stress that the emphasis throughout the search process is on student involvement. The search committee will include three students, one faculty member, four administrators (the Affirmative Action Officer, Director of Human Resources, Director of Student Life, and Dean Ill himself), and one Unity House alumni. This representation is not intended to purposely reflect the College, for that would be impossible. It is simply the beginning of the process.

The committee will decide which candidates should be invited to campus for interviews, which are expected to take place at the end of April. At that point, one full day will be devoted to each candidate, during which groups of students from Unity and the general student body, as well as large numbers of staff and faculty, will be invited to speak to candidates and to get to know them.

This question period will also give the candidates an idea of their potential role in the campus community, and of general concerns for the future of Unity organizations.

It's not that I'm saying I'm not "physically challenged," I'm not "special;" I'm a human being and I demand to be treated as such.

As the decision is made, people have been raised to discussion. Roberts added that ten of our peer colleges have run the same insert in their papers, among them the Carnegie-Mellon Tarton, the Stanford Daily, the Harvard Hilltop, and the Cornell Daily Sun.

At the meeting of the Feminist Majority, many concerns were expressed about the insert. Among the issues voiced was the fact that only one side of the abortion issue was represented in the Voice. Roberts responded by explaining that he had given up his way to contact a number of Pro-Choice advocacy groups to see if they wanted to place a counter ad, an unprecedented step for the Voice, but received no positive responses.

"If MassIncident places and ad for next week, we don't call Visa to let them know," commented Morgan Hertzman, news director of Voice Radio News and the Voice board member.

Evan Coppola, photography editor of The College Voice, pointed out that the Voice printed a disclaimer explaining that the insert was an advertisement and did not necessarily represent the opinions of the paper itself.

One member of the Feminist Majority disagreed. "The Voice has taken a stand. They compare the size of the ad, with the size of the disclaimer, the Voice made a stand," she commented.

Other complaints about the insert included the fact that the insert condemned not abortion, but included in their definition of abortion any use of birth control pills, injectable hormones to prevent pregnancy and IUDs. A rape crisis counselor pointed out that the insert or rape is heavy enough without articles like the one from the incest victim adding to their guilt.

Above all, the Voice holds fast to their stand that they upheld the right to free speech, although a majority of The College Voice staff did not agree with the content, the college paper did not agree with what their advertisement was saying but defended the right for it to be said.

Listen to Voice Radio News every Monday, Wednesday, Friday at 5:30 p.m. to 6:00 p.m.

DOWNTOWN GRILL & CAPPUCCINO
34-36 Bank Street, New London (across from the capital theater)

Sousps, Salads, Sandwiches & Spicy Food

443-8280

March 1, 1996
NATIONAL SPORTS

NHL (continued)

Tuesday, February 27

Calgary 7, Pittsburgh 3
Chicago 4, Colorado 3
Washington 2, Florida 2
Detroit 5, NY Islanders 1

Wednesday, February 28

Tampa Bay 5, Los Angeles 1
Anaheim 5, Montreal 2
Winnipeg 4, Toronto 3
Philadelphia 4, Dallas 4
Buffalo 3, Ottawa 2
Boston 3, NY Rangers 1
Edmonton 4, Hartford 4

NBA

Sunday, March 3

Tampa Bay 7, San Jose 3
Pittsburgh 5, Edmonton 4
Colorado 5, Chicago 3
Philadelphia 3, Ottawa 2
Buffalo 3, NY Rangers 3
New Jersey 6, NY Islanders 2
Winnipeg 5, Hartford 2

Saturday, March 2

Los Angeles 5, Montreal 4
New Jersey 4, Ottawa 1
Dallas 5, Toronto 1
Hartford 7, Florida 1
Vancouver 3, Detroit 2

Friday, March 1

Tampa Bay 7, San Jose 3
Pittsburgh 5, Edmonton 4
Colorado 5, Chicago 3
Philadelphia 3, Ottawa 2
Buffalo 3, NY Rangers 3
New Jersey 6, NY Islanders 2
Winnipeg 5, Hartford 2

Thursday, February 29

LA Lakers 100, Washington 95
Denver 108, Vancouver 82
San Antonio 115, Philadelphia 101
Milwaukee 110, Atlanta 106
Chicago 107, Boston 75
Orlando 115, Portland 89
Seattle 103, New Jersey 92

Wednesday, February 28

Sacramento 91, New York 85
LA Lakers 99, Vancouver 80
Utah 115, Washington 93
Seattle 94, Detroit 80
Phoenix 117, Minnesota 93
Orlando 116, Miami 112
Boston 121, Charlotte 116
Atlanta 90, Portland 88

Tuesday, February 27

LA Clippers 95, San Antonio 90
Denver 96, Washington 92
Houston 105, Toronto 100
Philadelphia 121, Dallas 115
Chicago 120, Minnesota 99
Charlotte 88, Milwaukee 84
Miami 93, New Jersey 90
Indiana 101, Portland 87
Cleveland 92, Golden State 80

Monday, February 26

Detroit 93, Sacramento 78
LA Lakers 114, New York 96
Utah 110, Phoenix 87
Indiana 122, Boston 119

Extra Income for '95
Earn $500 - $1000 weekly stuffing envelopes. For details, RUSH $1.00 with SASE to:

Group Five
57 Greentree Drive, Suite 307
Dover DE 19901

Extra Income Now!
ENVELOPE STUFFING — $600 - $800 every week
For Details: SASE to International Inc.

19815 Tom Hall Parkway, Suite 185
Houston, Texas 77070

NO GIMMICKS
Women’s Hockey goalie, Dardy Muldaur learns new challenges

BY YOUNG KIM Features Editor

Most people would rather not spend their early-morning hours having hockey pucks shot at them. But Dardy Muldaur and her teammates take to the ice three times a week at 7:15 in the morning to practice.

Women’s hockey is trying its best to break free of the men’s shadow, but it is having some difficulty. Women’s ice hockey is an Olympic sport now, but not varsity at Conn yet. Not only are they not varsity, but they are also ignored. “The school does give us some money for equipment, and transportation to games. But we don’t get full support,” said Muldaur.

Despite the lack of attention from the athletic department, the women’s team has done pretty well for themselves. They haven’t really had the chance to develop a program without full support,” said Muldaur.

Despite the lack of attention from the athletic department, the women’s team has done pretty well for themselves. They haven’t really had the chance to develop a program without full support,” said Muldaur.

“Women’s hockey is trying its best to break free of the men’s shadow, but it is having some difficulty. Women’s ice hockey is an Olympic sport now, but not varsity at Conn yet. Not only are they not varsity, but they are also ignored. “The school does give us some money for equipment, and transportation to games. But we don’t get full support,” said Muldaur.

“Women’s hockey is trying its best to break free of the men’s shadow, but it is having some difficulty. Women’s ice hockey is an Olympic sport now, but not varsity at Conn yet. Not only are they not varsity, but they are also ignored. “The school does give us some money for equipment, and transportation to games. But we don’t get full support,” said Muldaur.

The previously unbeaten Pantie’s Girls Prepare for Playoffs.

The Voice office, Cro215 and are due on Wednesday, March 6 by 12 p.m. ??? call x2841.