MARGARITAS

Filippo Rinaldi '99 enjoys the drink that is the restaurant's namesake.

Professor Swanson Questions Constitutionality of C-Book Speech Policy

This idea expresses the attitude of many Americans today, to take it to the extreme would give America an image that it would be very much at the whim of the person interpreting. Next, he finds it "overbroad," a problem that he acknowledges he really understands why. Many of us have good reasons for things that we do, it's not on this wall... And you start counting the names of millions of soldiers who gave their lives to a war that we didn't win.

And there are several Conservative students living in Bethany Hall who have decided to participate in the protests. They have placed a "Disappeared" banner outside their dormitory every Thursday from 3:30 to 4:30 in the afternoon. The location of the banner is usually on Gibeon Hall. Many American students are interested in Argentinian life. This is the place where the main minority of Argentinian students are located. This central location is Profs of Government Wayne Swanson's office and his assistant, and his research assistant. The office is used by all professors and students. It serves as a resource center and a place to meet with professors.

This particular evening, the series continued with Margaritas Borrachos de México. I entered the well-lit dining area on State Street and found myself immersely immersed in the same atmospheric restaurant itself. Small tables filled the room, topped with condiments, chips and salsa, and the Margaritas were served.

The demonstration was set up on a platform at the front of the house.

The incident of last week, in which a student received an e-mail containing anti-Semitic material and threats, was a significant event. It highlighted the need for the college to address issues of hate speech and discrimination, both on and off campus. The college's administration has been active in responding to this incident, and has committed to providing a safe and inclusive environment for all students. The college's community values diversity and inclusion, and is committed to creating a welcoming and supportive environment for all.

In addition to the internships of cleaning equipment and spraying crops, Banff offers one-on-one interactions with the animals. The program also includes work on an independent research project.

Professor Swanson asks for clarification on the policy's application and enforcement. The policy is unclear and lacks clarity on certain aspects, such as what constitutes harassment and how it should be handled. The policy's enforcement is inconsistent and sometimes arbitrary, which can create confusion and uncertainty among students and faculty.

From the looks of it, someone might be trying to scam us. "We don't know who they are, or what they're trying to do," said one mother. "But we want to make sure they don't get away with it." The mothers have been keeping a close eye on the situation, and are ready to take action if necessary. The demonstration will continue until the issue is resolved.

"It's important to stand up for what we believe in," said another mother. "We can't let these kinds of issues go unchallenged." The mothers are determined to make their voices heard, and to bring attention to the problem of harassment and discrimination on campus.
Students Play Critical Role in Tenure Evaluation

By the time we have compiled the tenure portfolios of colleagues at the department level, we have to be able to determine who can teach and who cannot. After having examined each candidate’s teaching effectiveness, we will have to decide whether or not to recommend that they be promoted. Perhaps, the most important role we play at this point is to establish an atmosphere in which the tenured faculty can feel comfortable about their contributions. For without this atmosphere, we cannot be effective judges of the professors’ abilities. Anyone who is not comfortable in his or her role is unlikely to be able to teach effectively. Therefore, it is important to select the right candidates for tenure decision as we must take this role seriously.

Moreover, there are exceptions to this rule. As individuals, we may not always be able immediately to recognize potential problems that will arise in the future. It is our responsibility to select the most qualified candidates at the early stages of students in the classroom. As we determine who should be selected, we must try to determine who is not capable of teaching effectively. Therefore, it is important to select the right candidates for tenure decision as we must take this role seriously.

Students Participate in Government Survey

Dr. Laura Strong

Connecticut College's Freedom of Information Commission (FOIC) has initiated a Connecticut College class to participate in surveys of public compliance with the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). The study will be conducted during the first week of March.

Students from Professor Blanche Boyd's English class will travel to various public offices in the New England area to interview employees of the Connecticut Municipal Clerk and Police Departments. The teacher, students, and the FOIC will be conducting three surveys: one in Connecticut, one in Massachusetts, and one in New York. Each survey is to be conducted by a Connecticut College student.

The FOIC is interested in a wide range of government offices, including the FBI, the Department of Justice, and the Department of Education. The FOIC will be conducting the surveys in the weeks prior to the start of the spring semester.

The FOIC also intends to conduct a study of the FOIA in the rest of the United States. The study will be conducted in the weeks prior to the start of the spring semester.

Girmay '99 Presents Her Poetry in Blaustein

By MAUREEN MIESMER
staff writer

On February 10, 1999 the Hillel Dinner Room of Blaustein Hall was the center of the Campus. Five female authors of the College's Literary Society gathered in the auditorium. As they began to read their poetry, the students of Blaustein Hall could feel the experience of the arts.

The poetry of Girmay '99 from the University of Connecticut, Southern Connecticut State University, and the University of New Hampshire was showcased at this event. A highlight of the symposium was the opportunity to meet the authors and to hear their readings.

The event was sponsored by the Literary Society and the Department of English. It was held in the auditorium of Blaustein Hall. The event was open to the public and was well attended. Additionaly, Girmay feels that the event has really helped her as far as writing herself. "It's really good. I find that I'm better at writing when I'm around other people."

Girmay began writing poetry in high school, and at the tender age of 16 she began to publish her work. As she started to write poetry, she found that it helped her to express her feelings. Girmay has been writing poetry for over 10 years and has published two books of poetry.

This year, the winners are five female authors from Manchester Community College, Wesleyan University, the University of Connecticut, Southern Connecticut State University, and the University of New Hampshire. At the end of the reading, the authors were presented with a small gift to commemorate their participation.

The next poetry reading will be held in the auditorium of Blaustein Hall on April 10, 1999. The event is open to the public and is sponsored by the Literary Society and the Department of English.
