Peering Encouragement
Position To Be Created

By KEVIN WOODHOUSE

STATE WIDE

In response to hypothetical vocal increases in emotional cries, and the proposed reduction of

SPORTS

WARM UP/LAUNCHING
WITH PLAYMAKERS

The following news and features are for the benefit of students, faculty, and staff at Connecticut College.
Dear College Voice:

I am writing in response to the editorial in the College Voice, "Proposed Counseling Service Limits May Endanger Mental Health and Well Being." I was shocked and disheartened to hear that the college is proposing to cut back on mental health services, and I believe that this is a devastating mistake.

The college has a responsibility to create an environment in which students can thrive. Mental health should not be left to chance or to the availability of resources on campus. The counseling center has traditionally provided a safe space for students to seek help, but the proposal to limit the number of mental health services visits is a significant threat to the well-being of students.

According to the American Psychological Association, college students are more likely to suffer from mental health issues compared to their non-college peers. With this in mind, the college should be doing everything in its power to ensure that students have access to the mental health services they need. The proposal to limit mental health services visits is not only a disregard for the well-being of students but a failure to recognize the importance of mental health.

I urge the college administration to reconsider this proposal and to prioritize the mental health needs of its students. Mental health is just as important as physical health, and the college should take steps to ensure that every student has access to the resources they need to maintain their mental well-being.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
OPINION

KIDS THESE DAYS
SARA KELLY-MUDIE

I have my finger on the pulse of America’s youth. I enjoy my first major assignment, and I’m surrounded by people of the same age. From my perspective, there may be a few nagging problems, but there’s no generation gap. I mean, I’ve met my fair share of people who jeer at me about the way I dress or act, but they’re usually middle-aged. And when they say, “I don’t understand why they’re doing that,” I always reply, “I don’t understand why you’re talking to me, about them.”

Obviously, I’m not the only one who’s doing that. For the most part, we’re all doing it. The only difference is that they’re talking to me, and I’m talking to them. It’s sort of like a feedback loop. The more they say, the more I say, and the more I say, the more they say.

Oh, and I should probably start talking about the main issue. The issue that’s been on my mind lately is recycling. It’s not just a matter of doing our part to save the planet, it’s also a matter of doing our part to save our pocketbooks. Recycling paper, for example, is much cheaper than buying new paper. And it’s not just cheaper; it’s better for the environment. When you recycle paper, you’re not only saving trees, you’re also saving energy. And when you save energy, you’re saving money. So it’s a win-win situation.

I’ve talked to a lot of people about this, and I’ve heard a lot of different opinions. Some people say that recycling is too much trouble. They say that it’s too time-consuming, and it’s too hard to remember. But I think that’s just an excuse. If you really want to do something, you can find a way to do it. And if you can’t find a way to do it, then you’re just too lazy to do it.

Anyway, I think that’s enough for now. I’m going to go back to my life, which is full of wonderful things like recycling paper and saving money. And I’ll see you all again next week.

I Confess

TANIA C. ALVAREZ

It seems a recent issue of the campus newspaper carries an article called “College Voice.” The article is about the issue of plagiarism. I’m not sure what the main point of the article is, but it seems to be about the importance of originality in college writing.

As a student, I’ve had my share of assignments that required original work. I’ve had papers that required me to write essays, reports, and even research papers. And I’ve had a lot of trouble with plagiarism. I’ve found that the best way to avoid it is to use my own words, and to avoid copying from other sources.

I’ve also found that the best way to avoid plagiarism is to use your own words, and to avoid copying from other sources. I’ve found that the best way to avoid it is to use your own words, and to avoid copying from other sources. I’ve found that the best way to avoid it is to use your own words, and to avoid copying from other sources.

Anyway, that’s enough for now. I’m going to go back to my life, which is full of wonderful things like writing essays, and not plagiarizing.

The War on Legalized Bribery

FAITH W. HOWARD

If you’re on trial in a court of law and have found yourself mired in a $20,000 investigation by the judge, your behavior would be described as being corrupted and totally illegal. But you and the hundreds of people who take your money would face a hefty fine and a prison sentence. And yet, if you’re one of the elite few in this country, you can make large contributions to political parties and individuals for which political officials would be legally accepted.

What’s the difference? What’s the issue? It’s the issue of corruption. The issue is the issue of corruption.

In its most obvious form, corruption is the issue of corruption. In its most obvious form, corruption is the issue of corruption. In its most obvious form, corruption is the issue of corruption.

If you’re a business executive and you make a $20,000 contribution to a political campaign, you’ll be reported in the press as being a generous contributor. But if you make the same contribution to a political party, you’re likely to be reported as being a corrupt contributor.

This multipurpose resource

BRAD M. MESSNER

Hemp. For more than 1,000 years before the time of Jesus, hemp was a crucial resource in the human struggle to survive. It was used as a source of clothing, food, and medicine. And it continues to be a crucial resource today.

This triumph of a species is important because as global demands for paper increase, hemp becomes the obvious choice. Hemp paper can also be recycled and requires less toxic chemicals in the manufacturing process than tree-based paper. This makes it an attractive option for the environmentally conscious.

But despite the obvious advantages of hemp, it remains illegal in many countries. The United States is one of the few countries where hemp is legal, and even there, the laws are strict.

In the United States, hemp is legal, but only for research purposes. This means that hemp can only be grown for scientific purposes, and it can only be used for scientific purposes. This means that hemp can only be grown for scientific purposes, and it can only be used for scientific purposes.

In other countries, hemp is illegal. This means that hemp can only be grown for illegal purposes, and it can only be used for illegal purposes. This means that hemp can only be grown for illegal purposes, and it can only be used for illegal purposes.

In conclusion, hemp is a resource that should be made legal in all countries. It is a resource that should be made legal in all countries. It is a resource that should be made legal in all countries.

The College Voice takes no position on political issues. However, we encourage our students to engage in open and respectful debate on these topics. The opinions expressed in this article are those of the author and do not necessarily reflect the views of the College Voice.

The College Voice is an independent, student-run publication. The opinions expressed in this article are those of the author and do not necessarily reflect the views of the College Voice.

The College Voice is an independent, student-run publication. The opinions expressed in this article are those of the author and do not necessarily reflect the views of the College Voice.

The College Voice is an independent, student-run publication. The opinions expressed in this article are those of the author and do not necessarily reflect the views of the College Voice.
Fashion and Performing Arts Collide in Creative Explosion at Eclipse Weekend XXVI

By JESSICA BENS

The Eclipse Performing Arts and Fashion Show this past Saturday provided a fun and entertaining spectacle for the students of Connecticut College and the Coast Guard Academy, as well as anyone who enjoyed watching a presentation of traditional fashions from the United States and abroad. The show was held at the Waterford 9 Hoyts Cinemas in Waterford, Connecticut, from the fourth to the sixth floor. The show featured a variety of performers, including students from both colleges, along with professional performers from the Karkut Entertainment Group. The show was a success, with many attendees expressing their enjoyment of the event.

The show began with an introduction of the performers, followed by a brief video segment that set the tone for the evening. The video featured a montage of footage from previous shows, highlighting the creativity and diversity of the performers. The video concluded with a shot of the audience, emphasizing the importance of community and collaboration.

The show featured a variety of performances, including a dance performance by the Karkut Entertainment Group. The dance performance was led by Josephine Moss, a student at the Coast Guard Academy, and was accompanied by music performed by the Coast Guard Academy Band. The performance was a beautiful display of the fusion of fashion and music, with the performers wearing designs that were inspired by the music and choreography.

Another noteworthy performance was the Afro-Brazilian dance performance by the Ginga Brasileira Afro-Brazilian dance troupe. The performance was a beautiful display of the fusion of fashion and dance, with the performers wearing designs that were inspired by the music and choreography. The performance was a beautiful display of the richness and diversity of Afro-Brazilian culture.

The show also featured a performance by the Connecticut College Academy of Dance, which was a beautiful display of the fusion of fashion and dance. The performance was led by reading Desmond Williams, set to a musical score by sharp movements and abrupt pauses, their presence heightened by their use of numerous instruments. The performance was a beautiful display of the fusion of fashion and dance, with the performers wearing designs that were inspired by the music and choreography.

The show concluded with a performance by the Connecticut College Opera, which was a beautiful display of the fusion of fashion and opera. The performance was led by Christine Aguilera, set to a musical score by sharp movements and abrupt pauses, their presence heightened by their use of numerous instruments. The performance was a beautiful display of the fusion of fashion and opera, with the performers wearing designs that were inspired by the music and choreography.

In conclusion, the Eclipse Performing Arts and Fashion Show was a beautiful display of the fusion of fashion and performance. The show was a success, with many attendees expressing their enjoyment of the event. The show featured a variety of performances, including a dance performance by the Karkut Entertainment Group, a Afro-Brazilian dance performance by the Ginga Brasileira Afro-Brazilian dance troupe, a performance by the Connecticut College Academy of Dance, and a performance by the Connecticut College Opera. The show was a beautiful display of the richness and diversity of Afro-Brazilian culture and the fusion of fashion and performance.
Along Came a Spider: Caught In a Seductive Web

By Nancy Dansmore

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

THE COLLEGE VOICE • APRIL 13, 2001 • 3

Along Came a Spider. Caught In a Seductive Web

Along Came a Spider. This Morgan Freeman vehicle grew more a hypertension than it didn’t like. Often times, it just felt like a meticulous reconstruction of a co-producer’s Guide to Berger’s, Guide to the Movies. Still, while Tomahawk’s movie might not be a breakthrough in the suspense genre, it certainly is a quintessential experience.

Morgan Freeman replaces his role as Dr. Alex Cross, a brilliant forensic psychologist who becomes entangled in a web of corruption after the disappearance of his daughter, (Milla Boorem) is kidnapped. (Gay Troy) (Michael Wincott) plans are never simple: to be the mastermind behind the crime of the century. Cross first becomes partnered with a disillusioned F.B.I. agent, Jezzie Flannagan (a bland Monica Potter), before he becomes entangled in a web of corruption after a kidnap. They have and always will.

The title of the play comes from the Echo’s characterization as a spelling bee champion whose name, which is a word in the context and the characters that were set on the stage. This created an interesting experiment that increased the power of the performance.

The theme of this play is that "eleemosynary" means "of, or pertaining to, charity," a theme that is central to the play and its setting. The story of three generations of women, the play starred Lara Flynn Boyle, head of security at the school the child was stolen from.

Elleemosynary: A Successful Portrayal of Women and Spelling Bees

By Nancy Dansmore

On April 6 and 7 Palmer Auditorium hosted a production of "Eleemosynary." Written by Carol Dysart, it is the story of three generations of women, the play starred Lara Flynn Boyle, head of security at the school the child was stolen from.

The title of the play comes from the Echo’s characterization as a spelling bee champion who entered a word as a way to remunerate the mother who abandoned her. She helps the woman to win the National Spelling Bee Championship, which win incurs her mother and grandmother by making them realize how well she has turned out, but things don’t exactly turn out as planned. The play is in non-linear time, alternating between past and present, which is a bit confusing at first, but ultimately gives a greater understanding of who the characters are and their relationships.

The chemistry between Potter’s Flannigan and Freeman’s Cross, is the driving force of this production. Potter delivers her performance with a sense of urgency and desperation which made the plot feel important. Her heartfelt line, "He’s like the rest, but I can’t help it. I love him," is delivered with conviction.

The audience quickly learns that "eleemosynary" means "of, or pertaining to, charity," a theme that is central to the play and its setting. The story of three generations of women, the play starred Lara Flynn Boyle, head of security at the school the child was stolen from.

As is typical in a Hollywood thriller, straight-forwardness is thrown to the wayside and one improbable twist follows another. What makes Along Came A Spider shockingly absorbing is the fact that it was not technically based, but completely true.

Along Came a Spider. This Morgan Freeman vehicle grew more a hypertension than it didn’t like. Often times, it just felt like a meticulous reconstruction of a co-producer’s Guide to Berger’s, Guide to the Movies. Still, while Tomahawk’s movie might not be a breakthrough in the suspense genre, it certainly is a quintessential experience.
Colleges Reels from Harris Break-in

By JAMIE ROGERS
STAFF WRITER

Some time in the early hours of Thursday, April 5, while most of the students were still in bed, the telephone rang at the office of the Director of Dining Services, was the first to receive the call. According to her, one of the cases was the renovation of the cafeteria, the dormitory, the common room area, the computer lab, and the dining area arrived to find people inside. The reader is using the facilities, according to the media release.

The investigation continues. Jim Mince, head of Campus Safety, is aware of the situation at this time. According to Kristine C. G. d. W., Associate Dean of Student Life, it was a case of "poorly managed students," and they have been suspended from the school for the year. As for Harris: the staff cleaned up the damaged property and the food was served to the students.

Dorm Damage Costs the Rate

By KATE HASSELBROCK
BUSINESS MANAGER

H玻 in walls, broken windows, being pulled, and a fire alarm had been rung. At the 2000-2001 school year, the number of fire alarms had increased, becoming more easily associated with "groups of friends in the cold. As the 2000-2001 school year progresses, it looks like an increase in dorm destruction has become more obvious. It's very interesting that the increase in destruction may be related to the "Eclipse Incident," WoodBrooks observed.

"There are certain things on the market that could cut down on the number of fire alarms," WoodBrooks observed. In addition, she worries about "students asking to show pictures of the Seton Hall tragedy in order to remind students of the potential dangers of living on campus. However, WoodBrooks continued, "the students are becoming more easily associated with the words "Saturday Night.""

In addition, she worries about "students asking to show pictures of the Seton Hall tragedy in order to remind students of the potential dangers of living on campus. However, WoodBrooks continued, "the students are becoming more easily associated with the words "Saturday Night.""

"There are certain things on the market that could cut down on the number of fire alarms," WoodBrooks observed. In addition, she worries about "students asking to show pictures of the Seton Hall tragedy in order to remind students of the potential dangers of living on campus. However, WoodBrooks continued, "the students are becoming more easily associated with the words "Saturday Night.""

In addition, she worries about "students asking to show pictures of the Seton Hall tragedy in order to remind students of the potential dangers of living on campus. However, WoodBrooks continued, "the students are becoming more easily associated with the words "Saturday Night.""

"There are certain things on the market that could cut down on the number of fire alarms," WoodBrooks observed. In addition, she worries about "students asking to show pictures of the Seton Hall tragedy in order to remind students of the potential dangers of living on campus. However, WoodBrooks continued, "the students are becoming more easily associated with the words "Saturday Night.""
Conn Students the Recipients of 2 Prestigious Scholarships

By LALLA M'ZRAK

The Goldwater Foundation Press Release

The Goldwater Foundation has awarded 39 Ridley Scholars, 33 Marshall Award winners, 40 NSF Graduate Researchers, 12 Fulbright Specialists, 500 NSF Fellows, and 95 National Science Foundation, and 1000 Founders Fellows. As Spencer further illustrated, "our scholars are outstanding students, Marshall Scholars, it's unbelievable." "Our scholars are already very accomplished in their chosen fields. Professor Wanni Spence, the Administrative Officer for the Barry M. Goldwater Foundation, said that this year, "all students nominated for the scholarship," 302 were awarded the scholarship. He explains that "students who do not apply on their own, they must be nominated by their school." The Barry M. Goldwater Scholarship website states that "the program encourages outstanding students to pursue careers in mathematics, the natural sciences and engineering and to deliver excellence in these fields. Their achievements are chosen by the selection committees." "If they're accomplished, it's their grades, their career goals, and it's something Spencer clarified. She rehoused, "the students

Network Problems Solved?

By TIM STEVANS

Upon students' return to Connecticut College from Spring Break, they found their network and web browsers crippled. Connection speeds were slowed to a crawl. Instant Messenger would sign off after only couple of minutes. IM buddy list grew sticky enough to connect in the first place. One of the students complained to the tech tech the week. Then, the campus returned to normalcy the next day.

According to Bruce Carpenter, Director and Women's Head Soccer Coach, the problem was caused by the speed of web browsing and email attachments, which slowed the network and web browsers crippled. Technical problems until they began to receive multiple complaints and questions from students and faculty. According to Bruce Carpenter, Director and Women's Head Soccer Coach, the problem was caused by the speed of web browsing and email attachments, which slowed the network and web browsers crippled. Technical problems occurred routinely, and complaints from students and faculty were common.

As to why these changes are not made immediately, Carpenter points to the problem as being a long-term issue. However, the problem has been addressed, and the network and web browsers are now functioning properly. Carpenter explained, "because it's a national scholarship, we are quite particular about making sure that our students are aware of the deadlines. Wilkinson's win was a blessing in disguise." "Gender discrimination in the legal profession, she concluded with a brief quote, "One last point Gifford made was that lawyers have made some strides in the representation of women's issues. A good work record that affects less and smoother solutions that help women. According to Gifford, they are lacking in pro-homo work and other sere in the community as a whole. The position of power that women lawyers have given them is important. Not participating in laws that affect them, having them imposed by others."

Conn Tennis to Continue Through 2001-02 Season

When asked whether a donation for the tennis program would be made, Wilkinson stated, "it does not apply on their own, they must be nominated by their school." The Barry M. Goldwater Scholarship website states that "the program encourages outstanding students to pursue careers in mathematics, the natural sciences and engineering and to deliver excellence in these fields. Their achievements are chosen by the selection committees." "If they're accomplished, it's their grades, their career goals, and it's something Spencer clarified. She rehoused, "the students

Conn Alum Speaks On Women and Law

By RITA GIFFORD

For a group many Connecticut College students are this what happen when you graduate? What would women students when they visit the "real world."" "Research is the key," said Martha Gifford, the most recent presen- ter to the Distinguished Speaker Series, "Great Names or Connecticut College." In an example of Connecticut College's tradition of admissions council and career fair in student life. Gifford came to Conn in 1969 as a member of the college's first full-time tennis team. She has been practicing law for the past twenty-five years. "We speak, just as "Gender discrimination in the legal profession, she concluded with a brief quote, "One last point Gifford made was that lawyers have made some strides in the representation of women's issues. A good work record that affects less and smoother solutions that help women. According to Gifford, they are lacking in pro-homo work and other sere in the community as a whole. The position of power that women lawyers have given them is important. Not participating in laws that affect them, having them imposed by others."
Naked Trojans Proclaim Their Presence at Conn

Dear Sirs, Madonna & whoever
It has only been a month since Loomis became Connecticut's Professor of the Year and then the first ever Professor of the Year at a private university. When we appointed Loomis, it was not just to do administrative duties, but to use this unique position as an opportunity to gain additional recognition for Connecticut College and the College of the Holy Cross. We are of course diametrically opposed to the position of the O'Donnell administration at Holy Cross where Loomis worked for many years. We feel that Loomis embodies the best of Connecticut College and will continue to do so in his new position. We believe that Loomis' appointment is a testament to the excellence of our faculty and the College's commitment to academic excellence.

Loomis is a highly respected scholar in the field of religious studies and has published numerous articles and books on the topic. He is a member of the American Academy of Religion and has served on numerous committees and boards. He is also the author of several books, including "Theology and the Myth of the Second Coming," which has been widely acclaimed for its originality and insight.

Loomis has a long and distinguished career in higher education, having served as a professor at a number of institutions, including the University of Pennsylvania, the University of California, and the University of Michigan. He is also a former president of Connecticut College, a position he held for nearly a decade. During his presidency, Connecticut College experienced a period of rapid growth and expansion, with a significant increase in the number of students and faculty.

We believe that Loomis' appointment is a fitting tribute to the College's commitment to academic excellence and its dedication to the highest standards of scholarship. We are confident that Loomis will continue to make significant contributions to the College and its students.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

[Name]

Loomis Named Professor Of The Year

Dr. Stephen Loomis, recently awarded the John S. King Faculty Teaching Award by the colleges of Connecticut College, has been further recognized for his dedication to teaching. This year the Council for Advancement and Support of Education and the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching have named Loomis as one of the "100 Professors of the Year." Loomis was chosen from a nationwide pool of 247 nominees. Other winners were selected from 124 institutions including the University of California, Los Angeles, and the University of California, Davis.

Loomis, who joined the Connecticut College faculty in 1980, has been recognized for his dedication to teaching and his commitment to improving the educational experience of his students. He has served as the Director of the Honors Program and has been involved in the development of new courses and programs. Loomis is also an active member of the Connecticut College community and has been involved in a number of campus events and activities.

Loomis' appointment as Professor of the Year is a testament to the high level of teaching excellence that characterizes the faculty at Connecticut College. We are proud to have him as a member of our faculty and look forward to his continued contributions to the College and its students.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

[Name]
Conn Crew Teams Experience Mixed Results

By ERIKA SENNESETH

"...and eligibility college entering high school and senior years..."

Women's Crew teams will both have competitive races in Worcester, against Colby at UMass Lowell, the men experienced exciting success and enthusiasm. "We're really happy about last week's race, we were very aggressive in that race, and very frustrated because we beat them last year and went into the race with high hopes for this year and this... we beat them by a lot. When we went to exchange slugging shots after the race, we realized how tall they were, and I think we let them get to us. Our spats were a little low after the race, but we have a strong and powerful team and have lots of potential and I'm really excited for this weekend."

This weekend the Women will face tough teams, including number one seeded Williams. Ferlins explains, "It will be tough competition this weekend. We're racing MIT, who are always good, Williams, who are number one, and WPI, whom we should beat. I'm looking forward to it though." Kennedy feels, "We can give WPI and MIT a run for their money. Williams will be tough, but it will be interesting to see how we finish in relation to them because that will show us where we stand in Division III." Zerva states, "The team and I are excited about Saturday's races. If we get into the rhythm of last week, we might really enjoy this weekend." The men are also optimistic about the upcoming race. Flannery mentions, "I'm excited about this weekend's race. It will be another opportunity to race against good, middle of the pack teams. There is a lot of teams grouped there batting, so this is an important race for us... I should be a good one, we had a good week of practice and every week we are looking better..."

"The Women have also had productive practices concentrating on our race form. Zerva emphasizes, 'We've been especially strong in the past few decades and have really improved our strength, our starts, and our staying together as a boat.' Kennedy adds, 'We row well together but we need to learn how to race well together, if that is something we need to focus on in the next few weeks. Our starts have gotten better in practice this week, so we can obviously start our race this weekend, will builds on the confidence that we already have in each other.'" Ferlins adds, 'It is coming to rank in the top 20 for the NCAA."

"We have had a lot of practice this week, so if we can continue with the shorter pieces instead of a lot of distance, we can work on our race plan, and 'learn how to race as fast as we can in that way."

With another week of practice under their belts, both the Men and the Women look to compete at a high level this weekend.

short outdoor season, everyone knows that it is important to give 100% of every race. We are all pushing ourselves to the limits so that we can take advantage of every opportunity to qualify and compete in the championship meets."

"Therefore, with the second half of the season upon them, the run..." and they are working harder than ever. The Men show their enthusiasm in every way and are excited about the upcoming races. The Women will need to work even harder and attack their training to prepare for the upcoming races.

Camels will need to thwart that by making use of all the resources available, and to unite the community. Each floor will house two to four advisors. "They are..." and resources available, and to unite the dorm community. Peer Advisors will assume the role as residential friends. They are working harder than ever. The Men show their enthusiasm in every way and are excited about the upcoming races. The Women will need to work even harder and attack their training to prepare for the upcoming races.

There is a lot of depth in each group of athletes from the distance runners to the sprinters and field-event athletes. I have no doubt that this will turn out to be one of the best outdoor seasons since I have been at Conn.

Track & Field

continued from page 9

Conn Creates New Peer Advising Position

The Call to Action: The College will need more peer advising positions, with the addition of three new advisors. "...and they are working harder than ever. The Men show their enthusiasm in every way and are excited about the upcoming races. The Women will need to work even harder and attack their training to prepare for the upcoming races."

There is a lot of depth in each group of athletes from the distance runners to the sprinters and field-event athletes. I have no doubt that this will turn out to be one of the best outdoor seasons since I have been at Conn.

"The calls, it becomes cluttered," says one critic. In addition, "If you play like we can play I hope to see us as number four or five in the NESCAC, I know we can, it's just a matter of doing it."
SPORTS

Stop the Insanity

Burke and Travieso Lead Men’s Lacrosse Towards Playoffs

By RYAN WOODWARD

After a slow start versus some very dangerous opponents, the Connecticut College Men’s lacrosse team is back in the winning game, winning against NEOCSA (New England Small College Athletic Conference) opponent Bates College and MIT by a combined 17 goals. The two wins bring the team back to 3-6-4 (4-4) for the year as they prep for these final five games of the regular season versus conference opponents.

One key victory is the season-opener for the Camels at Cornell. Coach Michael Conroy was very concerned with the individualistic play on the offensive half of the field, but the faced an opponent that wouldn’t give up.

“We put some runs on one top of each other and we’ll learn from that thing that he did,” Conroy said. “I can’t see why we couldn’t be able to do that.”

In the game, Burke (12g, 8a) was on fire, and Travieso (7g, 2a) was sharp off the crease. Burke and Travieso’s passes, netting seven goals in two games against the Bobcats. Burke and Travieso’s passes, netting seven goals in two games against the Bobcats.

Burke has successfully closed the challenge of the Bobcats, but has played his best in these past two games. Burke and Travieso have been working hard at it and will be one of the top teams in the NECSA.

Burke and Travieso have been working hard at it and will be one of the top teams in the NECSA.

Women’s Lacrosse Begins Playoff Push

By ADRIAN BARIKO

Hold on tight, it’s going to be a wild ride. The Connecticut College Women’s lacrosse team is about to make a name for itself, and you can see it with a battle to the playoffs.

This final portion on the season, the women are in a must-win one-game battle against Bates in the NECSA (New England Small College Athletic Conference). Connecticut, the Camels are tied for fifth place in the NECSA, and their top seven teams qualify for the post-season.

“Unfortunately, we’ve been in this position before,” Coach-Laura Hallock ‘02 said. “We are a young team, but we are playing under pressure.”

And perform she has, especially since the Camel’s season-higher than usual goals, and that was a big issue.”

I think that this is going to be an interesting finish,” Coach Fran Shields ‘02 said.

In addition, sprinters, throwers, and jumpers all follow the successful path of the distance runners. At Trinity they have many sprinters, throwers, and jumpers who qualify for championship races in both the 1500-meters and 5000-meters.

Our runners represent many who have run their personal bests in the event, and they have been training for another race, the NCAA championship.

In addition, sprinters, throwers, and jumpers all follow the successful path of the distance runners. At Trinity they have many sprinters, throwers, and jumpers who qualify for championship races in both the 1500-meters and 5000-meters.

Our runners represent many who have run their personal bests in the event, and they have been training for another race, the NCAA championship.

In addition, sprinters, throwers, and jumpers all follow the successful path of the distance runners. At Trinity they have many sprinters, throwers, and jumpers who qualify for championship races in both the 1500-meters and 5000-meters.

Our runners represent many who have run their personal bests in the event, and they have been training for another race, the NCAA championship.

In addition, sprinters, throwers, and jumpers all follow the successful path of the distance runners. At Trinity they have many sprinters, throwers, and jumpers who qualify for championship races in both the 1500-meters and 5000-meters.

Our runners represent many who have run their personal bests in the event, and they have been training for another race, the NCAA championship.

In addition, sprinters, throwers, and jumpers all follow the successful path of the distance runners. At Trinity they have many sprinters, throwers, and jumpers who qualify for championship races in both the 1500-meters and 5000-meters.

Our runners represent many who have run their personal bests in the event, and they have been training for another race, the NCAA championship.