SENIOR-JUNIOR BASKET BALL GAME

On February 24 the Senior and Junior Second teams played the final game in the Senior-Junior series. The score at the end of the first half was 17 points for the Seniors and 22 points for the Juniors. At the end of the game the total score was 36-30 in favor of the Seniors. The Seniors now have won the series between both the first and second teams of the Senior and Junior classes.

The line-up was as follows:

Seniors		Juniors
Costigan,	Mason, Cone, Watrous
Wholley

OUR POST OFFICE

Do you know that there is a probability that our Post Office on the campus will sometime become a regular sub-station of the government? When this is brought about, the government will pay the girls in charge possibly thirty or forty dollars a month. When the Post Office does a certain amount of business, a petition can be sent asking that it be made a sub-station. Therefore, it is desirable that all college Post Office business, as far as possible, be concentrated on campus. Will you buy stamps, postals and stamped envelopes and also send parcel post at our post office? It would be to the advantage of all, if the Post Office were made a sub-station. The extra money would probably mean additional assistants, and the office would be open for more hours than it is at present.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

In the Gymnasium, on Monday evening, February 23, President and Mrs. Marshall gave a Washington's Birthday Party for the students and Faculty. Nearly all the girls came dressed in the costumes of Washington's time—full skirts, pantelettes and powdered hair or as men in knickerbockers, coats with ruffled collars and cuffs and big buckles on their pumps.

A special program for the evening had been arranged. The first number was a French court dance by Henrietta Costigan. Her interpretation of the slow, dainty music was altogether charming.

After a dance or two in which everyone joined. President Marshall read several selections from a poem of James Russell Lowell on Washington. President Marshall's excellent reading made the beautiful lines of the poem even more impressive than usual.

The third number on the program was the dancing of the Minuet by four couples, dressed in colonial style, each couple advancing from a corner of the room. The girls—Bessie Dimmick, Leslie Alderman, Catherine Colver, Harriet Leach—wore different colors, in their costumes, but the men—Virginia Root, Jessie Bigelow, Dorothy Hubbard, Betty Colladay—were dressed in black and white. All danced prettily and wore such charming costumes that the general effect was very artistic.

Another number on the program was the singing by everyone, with Margaret Davies as leader, of several old-fashioned or patriotic songs.

Coffee frappe and little cakes were served during the course of the evening.

At eleven o'clock the party came to an end. More than one person was heard to remark that it was one of the most enjoyable parties the college has had this year and everyone wishes to thank President and Mrs. Marshall for affording the students and Faculty such an altogether delightful evening.

SERIES OF CONFERENCES AT THE COLLEGE

The three days of February 27, 28, and 29 have been called "days of conference and thought," but it is not enough merely to say they were "days of conference," for they were also days of rare privilege for Connecticut College. The students were guided by the thought of those who have been through their service to God and to man in all parts of the world. These leaders have come to realize the tremendous power and inspiration gained from such a life. This has made it possible for them to accomplish the great things they have done to make life sweeter and happier for thousands at home and abroad.

On Friday evening, Miss Bertha Conde of the Y. W. C. A. opened the conference. Miss Conde emphasized the tremendous responsibility of the college woman of today. Her first responsibility is that of leadership. She must not only solve her own problems but she must also solve the problems ahead of time for all the women of the world. The second responsibility is that of living; the college girl has more things in life to which to relate herself. It is in proportion to the number of contacts which she has with things outside of herself that her own life acquires that breadth, depth, and fullness of experience which alone makes for happiness in life. There are in other lives so many beautiful qualities that we forfeit because we do not pay attention to them and pass them by with our hearts steeled, our eyes closed and our ears stopped. Is the college girl living an abundant life? To be sure she finds herself broadening out in college and this process of development adds depths to her relationships and friendships in life. The best link of friendship is the one which provides strength and faith and happiness to meet the events of life. Such a friend will be the girl who has within her own heart a love and friendship for her God. Here

FRESHMAN-SOPHOMORE BASKET BALL GAME

On February 24 the Freshman and Sophomore teams played the third game of their series. At the end of the first half the Freshmen had 16 points to the Sophomore's 18. The final score was 28-39 in favor of the Sophomores. Since the Sophomores won the first game in the series also, they are victors in the contest between the two teams.

The following is the line-up:

Freshmen		Sophomore
H. Cook, D. Cook	McCarthy, Coops
Alderman		Finesilver

Ho'combe, Slaymaker	Tuthill, Fiser
Kreykenbahr		R. Warner

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

MEETING

The regular meeting of the Student Government was held February 27 at 5 o'clock in the gymnasium. Several matters of importance were brought up and discussed. It was voted to raise the dues to one dollar in order to cover all the expenses incurred. This will include sending a delegate to Silver Bay.

The girls were urged not to lose or deface a library book, since every book is needed.

The matter of cutting before and after vacation was brought up. After much discussion, it was voted to give the honor system another trial, leaving the matter of cuts entirely to the girls' judgment. Necessary absences are to be reported to the Council. There will be no personal record of attendance kept, but the total number of absences will be noted and used as a basis for deciding whether the plan is efficient or not. This is really a vital issue. It means that our honor system is being critically weighed in the balance, for perhaps the last time. It is to be hoped that all girls will realize this and make a special effort to maintain the basic function to Student Government.

The age of chivalry may be past, but this does not mean that courtesy has gone out of existence. We are constantly reminded by foreigners that the American people are always in a hurry. Surely it is true—there's such a rush towards that goal called efficiency that we have to make every minute count. Often this is done at the risk of losing the quality of courtesy. We lay the blame for the lack of courtesy to numerous things: to business, to our hurry, and to our neighbor and feel that so few are courteous that it really doesn't matter how we act.

But all this happens in the outside world; living high up on our hill as we do we can very well speak of the mass below us as a far away outside world. Anyone from that world will tell you that you'll never have more time than you have while at school. It's rather hard to believe that statement, but when you compare the life we lead here with the life for which we are preparing and the multitude of things which we want to accomplish you can realize the truth of it. There's no necessity for us to live hurried lives, for us to neglect to be courteous.

After all, courtesy is a matter of consideration and respect. No excuse can be found for college women who are not considerate and respectful in their relations to others on their campus, whether they are visiting or living there. People look to the college woman to set the example, and one can't very well do that without having had experience and practice, her ideal is to be the equally balanced woman who does not reach for one goal at the expense of overthrowing another one.

The News wishes to announce the following changes and elections in the Staff. Resignations have been accepted from Dorothy Matteson '20 and Marie A. Taylor '22. By the system of procession Ellen Carroll '20 automatically becomes Senior Associate Editor, and Alice Gardner '23, News Editor. The following elections have been made to fill vacancies: Senior Reporter, Madeline Hinchey; Junior Reporters, Margaret Pease and Margaret Jacobson; Freshman temporary reporters, Helen Avery, Caroline Francke, Katherine Francke, Florence Hopkins, Michelenah Namovitch. The Staff welcomes these new members, and wishes them success.

"SOIREE SELECTE" FOR BENEFIT OF LOUVAIN UNIVERSITY

A fund of $500,000 is being raised throughout the country for the rebuilding of the Library of Louvain University in Belgium. This is the share America has officially agreed to give toward the work of reconstruction started in Louvain by the Allies. Connecticut College cannot fail to join in the effort made by her elder sisters, the large universities. To this end the French Club of Connecticut College (Marjorie Carlsson, President) has organized under the direction of Mademoiselle Carola L. Ernst a unique entertainment, the proceeds of which will be sent to President Butler of Columbia, who will add the contribution to the fund.

On March 20th at 8 p. m. sharp, the College Gymnasium will open its doors to one of the most select gatherings the institution has ever been able to bring together. Patronesses from New London, Norwich, and the campus, as well as a group of devoted students are at work to assure a large sale of tickets. Artistic posters have been made by the Art Department of the College under the direction of Miss Orie Sherer.

The decoration of the Gymnasium will be exquisite. The evening will begin by the presentation in French of Moliere's famous "Comedie ballet" "Le Malade Imaginaire." The Club has selected a very spectacular production in consideration of those who do not understand French. Besides, an informal talk will be given in English at the College by Mademoiselle Ernst on the subject of the play two days before the performance, Thursday, March 18th, at 5 o'clock, room 307 New London Hall, and the customary synopsis will be presented to the audience before the raising of the curtain.

The presentation of the interludes, songs, and ballets has been worked out most carefully, and the burlesque ceremony in the "macaroni Latin" which closes the play will certainly not lack originality.

The costumes will be of the XVII Century. Great attention will be given to the setting and the play will maintain the reputation which has hitherto characterized the French plays of Connecticut College. An orchestra consisting of five of the best musicians on campus will accompany the interludes.

"Le Malade Imaginaire" will end at about 10 o'clock, at which time the second part of the program will begin. This will consist of a dance which will last until 11.30. Arrangements are being made to secure a good orchestra. Refreshments will be served.

Good connection with the town will be assured both after the play and after the dance.

The tickets are on sale at the price of $1.00; reserved seats $1.25. To the price of 50 cents usually charged for the French play, the Club has added another 50 cents which is to be considered as the contribution of the buyer to the Louvain fund. The Club will be most grateful to anyone who is willing to help in the sale of tickets, and expects every College girl to support the enterprise by her presence.

"I SHOP"

"Photographer" the sign read and being not unlike the usual college girl who can't resist anything, least of all her own picture. I succumbed and entered the Manwaring Building and started for Bishop's Studio. There I suddenly remembered that I'd forgotten to pin Bob's little gold oak leaf (that's army for major) in the conspicuous place where I always wear it. So I ran down to Strauss and Macomber's and bought one. Thus fortified I smiled so consciously that I'm sure the picture will be a success.

After that I felt exactly like having a hot chocolate. I remembered that the Connecticut College News said to "Get It At Starr Bros., Inc.," so I did and it was good. But the girl who sat opposite had on a tam of particularly disturbing shade of blue. My black one seemed funeral in comparison that I parted with $2 of my next week's allowance to buy one at Tate and Neilan's. After that, of course, I couldn't just walk majestically up and down State Street showing my azure head gear. I had to buy something. So it was only the matter of the minutes it took the clerk to tie up my crackers and jam before I was stocked up for a little "feed" that night.

Then, as it's next to impossible to go to town without visiting the Bee Hive, I walked through and gazed at the "quality" and "plus service" at "moderate prices." It was very unfortunate that I chanced to stop at a drug-store, for the shiny marble counter backed by metal stops lured me on to a sundae at Nichols and Harris'. After that I became reckless and visited Fellman's and "said it (to myself) with flowers" by way of a treat. Thus fortified I felt confident that my appearance could stand the addition of the rubber boots I'd been longing to buy ever since the faculty endorsed the style on campus. That is, I felt that my blue tam and modest bunch of violets would counteract any undue emphasis of my feet. I always did have a hard time getting by the sensible window displays in Alling Rubber Company anyway.

When booted I stepped out into the street, the sight of a leather note book clutched under a protective arm reminded me of the one which I'd lost and I turned my new boots toward Solomon's for another book of similar design. When I came out into the open again I was just beginning to enjoy the fun of shopping with the Saturday afternoon crowd when my room mate rescued me in the act of entering Russ'. But even though she insisted that I didn't need a new watch or pin or anything, but was wasting my money, she couldn't keep me from gazing at the fascinating window display of jewelry that I felt I must have. Of course she took me home; but as I pressed my 5c into the nickel slot, I registered a vow that I'd skip off with my week after next's allowance just as soon as the check came and visit more of these fascinating stores of New London.

(The next instalment of "I Shop" will appear upon the receipt of week after next's allowance.)

she will find a never failing source of inspiration. An abundant life means also the cultivation of latent possibilities, the power to feel other people and to recognize the presence of God and the power to appreciate much in life. It means the searching and training of our wills to find the things we want. The woman of today must have an abundant life because it is the very center of the things she has to give to the world. There are untold possibilities for the girl who purposes to live for the biggest things in life, who will place God first and thus find the power that shall supply all need and start a train of events to reach around the world. But there is a price to be paid by such a girl. It means that having committed herself to such a purpose she shall plan the program of her life so that she shall accomplish her purpose and deliberately pay attention to only those things that help her to live close to others and to God.

On Saturday afternoon Father Crowley of New London came to the campus. Later in the afternoon he addressed a group of students at Winthrop House. He stressed the need for everyone to have religion which should form a vital part of her life every day. It should be a working religion, one which should be used to meet all the events of each day of life, whether they be large or small.

During the tea which followed Father Crowley's talk Miss Topping of the Y. W. C. A. spoke on student activities in other lands. She especially emphasized the need and demand for trained workers to lead and direct these students. Here is a place where the college girl is eagerly sought.

The meeting on Saturday evening was entirely in the hands of the students. The three student speakers were Helen Sturges '20, Agnes Leahy '21, and Julia Warner '23. Four members of the class 1919 enriched by a year's experience in the world returned to present to the students their views on the place Faith should hold in the lives of college students. The alumnae speakers were Winona Young Marion Kofsky, Jessie Wells, and Marendra Prentiss.

At the short morning service held in the gymnasium on Sunday morning President Marshall chose as his text these words "Nevertheless we according to His promise look for a new heaven, a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness." The college students of today are the potential leaders of the next few years. As such they must always be open and ready to learn. On this college campus they can learn the three things which they must do in the world if they are to effect reconstruction: 1. to deal justly, 2. to love mercy, and 3. to do all things in a fine sense of humility and reverence to our God.

The conference closed with the Sunday evening Vesper service. The speaker was Dr. Howard Bliss of the Syrian Protestant College of Beirut, Syria. During the war Dr. Bliss refused to leave his post in Syria, and suffered for months, fighting off sickness and starvation. As a result his health is greatly impaired. Despite the fact that on Sunday night he was suffering acute pain he bravely decided to forego his visit to the College. As a man of rich experience Dr. Bliss had a message of value to bring to the students, and his words were inspiring. He stressed the fact that means

"shared by all." It follows that it be "made by all."

God is a working God. It is hand in hand with God that man creates and constructs the best things in life. This is the spirit of working together with God. No matter what our task may be, whether we enter the professional world or the ministry, in all phases of the laboring world there is a richness and sweetness of life right here if we but work with our God. In his closing words Dr. Bliss spoke of college women as women with a mighty sense of responsibility, great aspirations, and firm resolves. Theirs is the task of keeping the spirit of love and unselfishness in the world.

CURRENT EVENTS

APPOINTMENT OF MR. COLBY

President Wilson has named Bainbridge Colby as Secretary of State. Mr. Colby is a New York Attorney and has been prominently identified with state and national politics. He was a leader in the progressive party under Roosevelt. Quoting the "Springfield Republican," "Mr. Colby is a man of broad sympathies—very much on the Wilson order—an international liberal."

The choice of Mr. Colby came as a great surprise to the Senate—"not even on the inside of administration circles had there been any expectation that the selection would fall on Mr. Colby." It was generally supposed that Assistant Secretary Polk would receive the appointment. Mr. Polk will no doubt remain in his position until the new Secretary has become well acquainted with the international issues.

The President's choice must be approved by the Senate before Mr. Colby can take up the duties of Secretary of State.

SOVIET RUSSIA

Soviet Russia has made a peace offer to the great powers. They promise to establish democratic principles in Russia and to call a Constitutional Assembly. They also promise to pay 60 per cent of the nation's debt. "In return and in addition to the formal peace treaties, they abandon all intervention in Russian affairs." Soviet Russia has also proposed that the United States allow a credit to Russia.

The Supreme council at London will not negotiate with the Soviet at present—since the United States is not represented in the Council, this action does not bind the American government.

SUFFRAGE MOVEMENT

It is interesting to note that President Wilson has urged that the Oklahoma legislature ratify the federal suffrage amendment. The leaders of the suffrage movement are anxious to procure the ratification that the women may vote at the next Presidential election. Oregon, which ratified the amendment in January, makes the twenty-fifth state to accept it. Delaware, and West Virginia, are regarded as favorable to the ratification. Although acceptance of the amendment seems assured without Connecticut's acceptance, the women of this state are eager to see Connecticut sign the amendment.

THE MICHIGAN WHISKEY REBELLION

A "rebellion against prohibition" broke out in Iron County, Michigan. On February 19, a prohibition agent and several state constables were held up and the wine which they had confiscated was taken from them. This is the "first open flaunting of the dry law to be reported." This outbreak resembles the "Whiskey Rebellion" which broke out in Washington's first terms. This "rebellion" of colonial times was conducted by the farmers of Western Pennsylvania who resisted the heavy taxes designed by Alexander Hamilton. Washington was forced to call out militia to put the law in operation.

Federal agents were sent to Iron County but returned to their homes while Major Dalrymple, prohibition commissioner for central states went to Washington to confer with the Federal Commissioner.

THE RAILROAD BILL

The President has signed the Railroad Bill restoring the railroads to private ownership. The American Federation of Labor, the four great brotherhoods and also the Farmer's National Council had all asked him to veto the bill. In reply to the labor demands, President Wilson stated that he "believed the bi-partisan board, as provided in the legislation just enacted by Congress, would not only be fair and just, but would be found to be particularly in the interests of railroad employees as a class."

AMERICANIZATION PLAYGROUNDS

In her lecture to the Americanization class on February 18th, Miss Snevely gave an account of the Playground systems in connection with the work of Americanization. She spoke especially of the work in Chicago which is divided into four systems and supported by the city and state. Each city park has a Field House for winter use containing Gymnasium, lunch-room, dance-hall, kindergarten, and Auditorium. Civil Service Examinations are required of those in charge. There are also baby playgrounds for children up to five years of age. The municipal playgrounds are much smaller and are without Field-Houses. The school-grounds are used as recreation centers where games, dances, movies and gymnasium exercises are held.

Recently the Gary system has been introduced into several large cities. In this system vocation, play and academic work are combined. Two separate schools use the same buildings and classes work and recreation are carried by different groups at the same time. The children have no choice of subjects, and the time for the work of the departments is divided according to the plans of the two sets of teachers. The recreation consists of out-and-indoor gymnasium work, talks and plays, and the building is in use all the time.

LITERARY CLUB MEETING

At a meeting of the Literary Club on Wednesday, February 25 at 5 p. m. Jessie Bigelow '23 was elected to fill the place of secretary left vacant by the resignation of Gertrude Chorney. The program of the afternoon consisted of a reading of Roosevelt's "Letters" and a discussion of them by Kathryn Hulbert and Jessie Bigelow
