WESLEYAN ON C. C. STAGE FOR FIRST TIME

Coming back from a glorious comeback, but, to speak in the vernacular (and how else can you speak to vernacular things) you might have wondered why there was a lovely pickup-waiting everywhere! It is the most delightful sort of life-reviving up in the delightful form of a full and suburbian, most best, consisting of good weather, (oh, yes, and mimosas, too!), a three act comedy, Aren’t We All! given by the Sophomore Class, the Wesleyan, and one of ye good old Service League dances, to be enjoyed from the pleasant and novel shock of hearing masculine voices looming out from the stage set, was, to C. C. critics (than whom there are none more severe) something of a disappointment. After a steady diet of the alluring and pleasing stage effects of one C. H., the rooms in Willey pathway house and in Grinn-ern court (like a time-ear after a chocolate cream soda—not speaking as a dietitian, but as a nor-turnal food), the make-up was ineffectual, the acting was mean-factored, and the acting for the most part, was not convincing. Exceptions to this statement were the parts of Lady Frin-ton, the Duke of Lord Creek, and Lord Gream. The latter part, and the man run away with the play, with Lady Frinton running him a close second.

The comedy which was written by Frederick Saunders, Lord Creek, was the model for all other comedy affairs with Be conventional plot, its typical style with a charming flavor, "only human" hero to the professor from Amherst, and its long, drawn out third act.

The idea of having one college class in the campus is a good one for it adds a valuable contribution to the college life, not only for us, but also for the college itself, a place where many schools new ideas of production and efficiency. It is also to be hoped that the plan will be used again in the not too distant future.

And after Mr. Willocks (not Willock, his name is Endle) had finished his speech, it was interesting to note in what the 126 members of the graduation class are majoring; ranging, according to popularity, the subjects are: English, psychology, romance languages, mathematics, economics, and government administration, history and political science, fine arts, physical education, social science, home economics, chemistry, the classics, music, philosophy, English, botany, German, and religion. A far cry from that long distant day of the mere conception of a college education for women stating that "it was the classics, languages, music, painting and sculpture."
Dear Brick:

I heard you and they heard you when you made the statement yesterday. The Senior-Brick Debat—er, I mean Senate—will have to bring some action on it immediately, for we can't let this thing get out of hand. We shall have to think of something to keep them from going on any more. The Brick is a valuable institution and we must not allow it to be ruined.

The school of medicine was a good place for Rosemary, and Rosemary came back, quite grown up. The story ends with the new love between Nacio and Mariflower. He landed, and found the

The advent of the new tennis courts, which have become a reality beyond our fondest dreams is a great event. The announcement of the tennis tournament has brought us tumbling from our beds and the courts are all occupied at seven in the morning.

We may not all have been in Burma, but we have our balconies and the Island, so that any deficiency in our coloring is being speedily remedied. Oh too speedily!

It seems the Psych classes have individual mail boxes. All papers are handed in this way and so returned. May all the mail be first-class!

Room drawing has come and has left us in the usual weakened state. For yet another year we have roofs over our heads.

Tree planting had its surprises. Especially the immensity of the trees and the instructions to “jump on them.”

Two baked apples in the hand and nowhere to put them is worse than one on the table.

With all the gang movies down town, people felt a little apprehensive about walking about the town. If you aren’t safe in a subway, where are you safe?
