Admiral William J. Crowe, Jr.

Admiral Crowe to Deliver Keynote Address

by Katy P. Jennings
Managing Editor

William J. Crowe, Jr., retired navy admiral and former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will present the 72nd Commencement address at Connecticut College on May 26, 1990.

A savvy military strategist and an individual committed to academia, Crowe will also receive an honorary doctor of laws degree at the ceremony.

Despite the possibility that his military career would be jeopardized, Crowe opted to leave his post as Navy Commander and attend Princeton University in 1962.

Instead of hindering his progression in the ranks of the military, the knowledge he gained earning his doctorate in political science aided in President Ronald Reagan and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger's decision to appoint Crowe Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff of the United States in 1985.

Crowe held this position from 1985 to 1989. He was aberrant because he had not only the military expertise expected of an admiral but also rare flexibility and open-mindedness.

His independent thinking is manifested in his refusal to passively accept certain governmental assignments with which he disagreed. An Air Force general who served with Crowe attested to this fact in the August 7, 1988, issue of the New York Times Magazine, calling Crowe "a soldier, scholar, much deeper than the average admiral and broader, who is able to think outside the Navy context."

Earlier in his career Crowe served four years at the United States Naval Submarine Base in Groton. In his acceptance letter to the College Crowe stated, "I was highly honored to be invited to be the Commencement speaker... and am looking forward to returning to the other side of the Thames."

Currently Crowe is a professor of geopolitics at the University of Oklahoma and a counselor at the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington, D.C.

Four Honorary Awards to be Presented at Commencement

by Alice W. Maggin
Editor in Chief

Connecticut College will award four honorary degrees at its 72nd Commencement. In addition to William J. Crowe, Jr., the recipients are Colin G. Campbell, Joycelyn Elders, and Mark Lamos.

Campbell, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, will be awarded an honorary doctor of laws.

From 1970 to 1988 Campbell was president of Wesleyan University. Prior to his position at Wesleyan, Campbell served as vice president of the American Stock Exchange.

An honorary doctor of science degree will be presented to Elders.

The director of the Arkansas Department of Health, Elder has become a renowned crusader against adolescent pregnancy. She has also been active in other health issues such as juvenile diabetes, nutrition and medical assistance for the elderly.

Elders holds a bachelor's degree from Philander Smith College in Little Rock and a medical degree from the University of Arkansas.

Lamos, artistic director for the Hartford Stage, will be presented with an honorary of fine arts degree. Lamos has become one of the most successful directors of the classics in the United States.

By bringing Eugene O'Neill's play Desire Under the Elms to Moscow, Lamos is first American to direct a Soviet theater company.

Lamos received his undergraduate degree from Northwestern University.

Secretary of Transportation Skinner Speaks at Coast Guard Graduation

The Honorable Samuel K. Skinner, Secretary of Transportation of the United States, was the keynote speaker at the Commencement Exercises of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy on May 23, 1990.

A graduate of the University of Illinois and DePaul University College of Law in Chicago, Skinner has served in the United States Army and has held numerous positions in both the private and public sectors. He has been employed in managerial and marketing positions of IBM Corporation and practiced law as senior partner of the Chicago international firm of Sidley & Austin.

U.S. Attorney for the Northern District, chairman of the Governor's Fraud Prevention Committee and of the Governor's Task Force on Energy Conservation and Coal Conversion, and vice chairman of the President's Commission on Organized Crime are just samplings of the posts Skinner has held.
