Development committee approves Budget; physical plant cut

By Lynda Batter

The revised budget, approved by the Development Committee last Friday calls for substantial cuts in Physical Plant funding. The majority of the expenditures forecast in last spring's budget will remain because they are irreversible at this point.

President Ames explained that since the body of the budget can not be materially changed, cuts had to be made where there was some flexibility. The Physical Plant cuts mean that some repairs that had been planned will not be made and that the Physical Plant staff will be somewhat smaller than had been planned.

Student members of the committee, Bernie McMullan,

Carol Bowman, and Robby Roberts all felt that the budget cuts made were necessary to effectively cope with the $355,000 deficit. Carol Bowman said, "Given the financial situation of the college at this time, they did as best as they could."

One student member of the committee expressed his concern that in general, the committee members are not always given all the information needed to make responsible judgements: "When members of the committee have asked for additional information, they have been told that it would be too difficult to make available at hand or if given to the members, would cause them to lose sight of their goals."

Robby Roberts explained how he feels about the budget as a stop-gap measure for now and what it may mean for the future: "No one likes to see cuts made in the budget, but on the other hand a balanced budget is necessary, especially with the huge deficit left over from last year. The areas in which Mr. Ames and Mr. Knight chose to make cuts in this year's budget seemed to me both reasonable and well-justified."

"My only fear, also the fear of the other members of the committee, is that cuts will continually be made in the near future. This could very well take away some of the outstanding qualities of Connecticut College and make the college an institution characterized by utter mediocrity."

Construction continues on new library.

Dr. McKeehan wants Modified sleeper pgm.

by Mimi Ginott

In his attempt to meet the needs of the students within this college, Dr. Frederick McKeehan has suggested several changes in the policies of the Health Services. One of these changes is a modification of the "sleeper program."

Dr. McKeehan's major goal is to establish more control and keep a closer check on the activities of the infirmary. He believes that the purpose of the infirmary is to "maintain health on the campus through treatment and prevention." The sleeper program, which is geared towards students without illnesses, interferes with this function, according to Dr. McKeehan.

In answer to an explanation of the purpose of the program, which is to provide an alternative to the dorms when noise or tension make rest or studying difficult there, the doctor replied that the students should be able to meet the stresses here. If they can't, then there's an internal problem which needs to be dealt with. He believes that it is the responsibility of the housefellow and of student government to control the noise level in the dormitories, and not of the health services, which deal with medical problems.

When asked why empty beds, which were not being used for in-patient purposes, could not be used by the other students, the doctor stated that the expenses were too high. When the beds are used, the school must pay for heating the rooms, changing the linen, and keeping the nurses on duty.

Dr. McKeehan emphasized the fact that when a student's complaint warrants any medical indication, emotional or physical, he can be admitted to the infirmary as an in-patient. Student anxieties would be considered mental health problems, and these cases would be treated on an individual basis.

1) The student would undergo evaluation by either the doctor, the nurses, or one of the counselors.

2) The student would be considered a regular admission, thereby having a chart drawn up and recorded.

3) The student would have to observe the standard bed-time.

4) The student would be under nurses's care.

5) The student would be subject to the general discharge procedures.

EB strikers speak on campus And gain college supporters

by Rose Ellen Sanfilippo

J.D. Businessman, "Elly," and "John Wayne," head of the Connecticut State Police, were the three fictitious characters in a skit put on by striking members of the Metal Trades Council last Wednesday. The skit, which took place in front of the Conn. College Post Office, was another attempt in an effort to foster student understanding of the worker situation at Electric Boat. This portrayal of a company boss controlling a governor and a state police department was not the only statement made by the rank and file members of the union that day.

Union activists Maureen Jennings and Bruce Burns explained, to the approximately 60 students that had gathered, why the 10,000 members of the MTC are on strike. They alleged that it is a common misconception, among all those but the members of the working class, that "sweat shops" no longer exist, and as one of their flyers claim, "E.B. (a division of General Dynamics), is a modern day death house." They asserted that every working day the company violates federal safety regulations, and as an example they said that deadly hydro-carbons, fluorides and asbestos are emitted into the air unchecked, without sufficient ventilation. These claims have lead one worker to declare that he is not going to die for the profits of big business.

Also outlined was the dispute over craft jurisdiction. This issue deals with Article 40, Work Practices and Assignments. Under this article, management would hold unchecked power over work assignments. Concerning this question of interchangeability, a flyer that Ms. Jennings, a 26 year-old welder at E.B. and member of the Boilermakers local, gave out stated that: "E.B. management wants to eliminate craft distinctions. This would eliminate jobs, create even more hazardous work conditions, and result in poorly built, unsafe submarines." "If E.B. management had its way, the ships we produce would be fitted up by painters, welded by riggers, wired by grinders and inspected by electricians." The workers fear that if interchangeability is established, management could cut the work force down to a mere 6,800 people. This would mean massive layoffs.

Although the management of E.B. has been contacted by Pundit, they have, as of this past Tuesday, refused to make any comments. However, George W. Roos, E.B. director of Industrial Labor Relations had earlier commented to The Day: "We are not interested in having welders do carpenter's work or conversely..."

Later that day, Ms. Jennings, who is said to have more trade-union savvy than the MTC leadership, and Mr. Burns appeared before the Student Government Association. Their request was the same of that afternoon — student endorsement of a strike support committee on campus. Under this committee the students could determine the type of support they would be willing to give. Mr. Burns also urged students to join the picket lines at E.B. any morning from 6:30 to 8:00 a.m.

Although Student Government has not yet made any commitments (the request is expected to be brought up at this week's meeting), several students and faculty have begun to join the workers down at the picket lines. Mr. Proctor, assistant professor of Italian, and his wife have shown their support for the strikers by regularly walking the picket lines. Last Friday, the college chaplain,

We need our sleep

The sleeper program is offered by the Health Services to help accommodate the needs of students on campus. Students who need a good night's sleep away from the pressures of campus life find refuge in this program.

Until the campus becomes a place devoid of academic and social tensions and until the dormitories are transformed into an ideal living arrangement, the sleeper program is indispensable. It acknowledges the need for an occasional retreat from the campus pressures.

All members of the college community should work together to create conditions where the program will not be needed. Until that point is reached, the Health services provide a much needed service to the community through the sleeper program.

Have funds, Will travel

It is the Administration's current policy to deny college funds to financial aid students who find it necessary to utilize academic facilities not available at Connecticut College. The financial aid office claims that the college would lose money if these students were allowed to take their aid with them.

The college has lost sight of one of its primary responsibilities as a liberal arts institution; the present policy denies students the opportunity to pursue an approved program of study simply because they do not have sufficient funds.

The quality of a Connecticut College education is diminished when financial considerations take precedence over academic concerns. Regardless of where they are studying, if financial aid students are receiving credit toward their Connecticut College degree, then they should be entitled to Connecticut College monies.

You doubled-crossed us

One day after Pundit published an editorial criticizing President Ames for refusing to make the budget public, the New London Day published an article full of all the information which had been pointedly denied to Pundit.

There is something wrong with the spirit of communication at the college if this is the manner in which business is conducted.

Mr. Churchill, Secretary of the College, explained the disclosure to the Day by saying that they had already been given some information from a faculty member, and so he figured he would give them the full story.

It is true that Pundit publishes weekly and was therefore in no position to print the information on Friday. But if there was no reason to withhold the information from the New London Day, then there was no reason for it to have been withheld from the Pundit, originally.

A new lobby

The Health Services are hoping to provide another lobby for processing students with appointments to see the counselors. This new policy will afford students greater privacy if they are modest about using the counselling services. For whatever reason the decision was made to do this, we applaud the consideration it extends.

VOTER REGISTRATION

Students interested in registering to vote in New London for the November general elections and the May party primaries (Presidential) are urged to contact either Steve Carlson in Branford, Chris Bushnell in Park, or Barry Gross in Morrisson.

Rides downtown to register will be offered Thursday (today) and Friday at 2:30 and 3:15. Students who cannot register at these times may register on Saturday morning. Rides will leave Saturday at 10:30 and 11:30. All rides Thursday through Saturday leave from the living room of Morrisson, the entrance of Crozier-Williams, and the living room of Harkness.

Churchill presents Administration's budget analysis

The following statement was released to Pundit by Mr. William Churchill, Secretary of the College.

Most college operating budgets today are being severely buffeted by spiraling inflation, and Connecticut College has been unable to remain immune from economic realities. During the 1974-75 fiscal year that ended last June 30, the college budget registered a deficit of about $355,000 out of a total $10.5 million budgeted for current operating expenses.

The gap was caused by two unavoidable factors: annual income fell about $97,000 below budgeted expectations while expenditures in certain areas of operation exceeded budgeted limits by about $258,000.

E. Leroy Knight, College Treasurer and Business Manager, reports that income from tuition was about $77,000 less than anticipated because fewer students were enrolled last year than had been counted on. Moreover, despite the fact that gifts for current expenses exceeded last year's level, the annual gift income still fell below budgeted expectations.

Over-expenditures occurred in two general areas:

1. The cost of operating the physical plant was increased markedly due to inflation. Although conscientious conservation measures resulted in a 12 per cent reduction in consumption of fuel oil, utility costs still exceeded estimates of $65,000. Another $25,000 was spent for unbudgeted improvements in mechanical systems to increase the physical plant's efficiency. This sum will be recovered, however, during the next two years through a reduction in energy use. An additional unbudgeted $10,000 was spent to install more outdoor lighting to improve campus security.

2. Instructional costs exceeded budgeted estimates by $67,000.

At the first meeting of the college faculty in September, President Ames outlined some of the steps that will be taken during the present academic year to ensure a balanced budget.

1. Fund-raising efforts will be intensified, especially for unrestricted giving for current expenses.

2. All personnel positions have been frozen. Additional people will not be hired, and positions vacated by attrition will be filled only when demonstrated essential to the total operation of the college.

3. Purchase of new equipment for any department will be deferred wherever possible until late in the fiscal year to ensure that adequate funds are available.

4. Major maintenance of college properties will similarly be deferred until it is determined that appropriate funds remain to cover costs.

Preliminary enrollment figures for the first semester of the 1975-76 academic year are encouraging. It now appears that more than the budgeted number of students are enrolled, so that a tuition shortfall in the current budget is not anticipated.

How to request Funds for clubs

The Finance Sub-Committee of College Council has developed a new funding mechanism which is designed to generate more money for all organizations while eradicating the problem of monies deadlocked in the accounts of inactive clubs. All approved clubs may request an annual operating budget of $100.00 to cover expenses such as advertising, phone bills, postage, duplicating, supplies and refreshments. The following clubs are exempted from this procedure; the four classes, WCNI, Social Board, Student Government, Koine, Pundit and the Literary Magazine, as they are organizations that directly benefit the total College community on a regular basis. These clubs shall submit a Regular, detailed Budget Request to the College Council for approval.

All clubs may apply to the Finance Sub-Committee for Special Events Funding. All requests for this funding under $300.00 must be made two weeks before the scheduled event. All requests larger than $300.00 must be made no less than three weeks before the scheduled event.

Any group anticipating a profit must outline their plans for said profit on the Special Events form for approval prior to the event. Special Events forms are available from Dean Watson's office and Janet Pugh, Vice-President of Student Government. Completed forms should be returned to Box 1024 (Janet Pugh 76).

We would also like to announce that College Council has again passed a resolution to match up to $150.00, all money raised by a dormitory through dormitory dues by October 1, 1975.

There will be an important meeting of all dorm and student organization treasurers on Tuesday Sept. 30, at 7:00 p.m. in the main lounge of Crozier-Williams. A discussion of the new funding mechanism will be held at this time and any questions will be answered concerning are invited to attend. If there are any questions please contact Janet Pugh, Box 1024, Extension 501.

New London Shorts

Last Tuesday, Superior Court Judge Joseph F. Dannehy refused to issue an injunction, which would reinstate a shift of 18 firemen, against the city of New London. The reduction of the shift from 18 to 15 men came as a result of a cutback in the fire department's budget. Although the 18-man shift was included in the department's contract, the city refused to honor it.

In response to the Superior Court ruling, Peter E. Gilmore, head of the city fire fighters' union, has urged all of his men not to begin fighting fires until a sufficient amount of firemen appear on the scene. Gilmore left it to the fire fighters to determine what a sufficient amount would be, and added that the existing situation of a 15-man shift is both dangerous to the public and the firemen. A prohibited-labor-practice case, which is expected to lead to a state Labor Relations Board hearing, has been scheduled for Oct. 1.

The Southeast Chapter of the Planned Parenthood League of Connecticut, located in New London, is celebrating the 10th anniversary of the Griswold-Buxton case. This case led to the nullification of Connecticut anti-birth control legislation.

In 1965, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in favor of Planned Parenthood directors C. Lee Buxton and Estelle Griswold by declaring that the state law which prohibited the dispensation and use of contraceptives was unconstitutional.

The League commemorates this event with the recent move of its Shaw Street clinic to new offices at 420 Williams St.

U.S. Rep. Edward P. Beard, D-R.I., alleged last week that the Navy has postponed delivery dates for 15 submarines being built by General Dynamics-Electric Boat. Beard commented to The Day on what he calls unnecessary leniency on the part of the Navy: "I am very upset by this delivery-date problem because such postponements can give the company an unfair advantage in the collective bargaining process in which they are presently engaged." MTC union leader, Tony DeGregory, also claimed that the Navy is "aiding and abetting" the company with these postponements.

Council is powerful

By Lynda Batter

This is the first article in a series on College Council. It is hoped that the coverage of this important governing body will serve to increase its effectiveness by informing its constituents about its organization and functions.

The College Council is chartered to serve "as a link between students and faculty with respect to the residential and extracurricular life to the campus." The member of Council come from the faculty, administration, and student body.

Specifically, the representatives are: Rick Allen - President; Janet Pugh - Vice-President; Leslie Margolin - Chairman, Judiciary Board; Andy Hemingway - President, class of '76; Scott Vokey - President, class of '77; Peter Bellotti - President, class of '78; To be elected - Chairman, class of '79; (non-voting): Ken Gardner - Secretary; To be appointed - Parliamentarian; Susan Jacobs - Housefellow representative.

The members elected by the Faculty are: Mr. Frederick Bogel, Rev. David Robb, Mrs. Charles Luce, and Ms. June Patterson.

The Administration members are: President Oakes Ames, Dean Jewel Cobb, and Dean Margaret Watson.

College Council meetings are open to the public. College Council considers and votes on all legislation passed by Student Assembly. It also is responsible for "reviewing the recommendations of its subcommittee regarding finances, the extra-curricular calendar, and the activities of and formation of new student organizations." The Council can also make recommendations to student Government, the Faculty, and the Administration.

Last week, among other things, Council considered financing the proposed Chick Corea concert, approved several club constitutions and their preliminary funding, and discussed the possibility of approving the establishment of a literary review magazine.

At this week's meeting, the agenda for Council will include deciding whether to finance the Corea concert and voting on recommendations for Judiciary Board policy revisions. College Council meetings are held Thursdays at 5:00 p.m. in the student Government Room in Cro. The meetings are open to the public.

Coast Guard Academy, William Stowe, announced last week that the 20-man national rowing team from the Soviet Union might be a guest at the Academy from Oct. 12 to the 16th. If Academy officials are in accord with this proposal the Soviet team will utilize both Connecticut College and CGA boat houses.

William Barclay, former city councilman; Nicholas N. Gorra, current Board of Finance member; and Henry M. Hansen, past member of the Zoning Board of Appeals and Charter Revision Commission, have been chosen as Republican council candidates for this November's election. These nominations followed the withdrawals of Abraham L. Kishenbaum, and two other candidates, from the election.

It was also announced that Howard Joyce, currently an Electric Boat employe and union steward, will be the Republican candidate in the race for the Board of Education vacancy.

Bruno Giri, a retired machinist, has been named by the Democrats as a Board of Selectmen candidate. The Board oversees voter-making forums.

The New London Taxpayers Assoc., which is responsible for the budget referendum of July 29, was reprimanded for the referendum's resulting budget cuts by the Citizens for a Responsible Budget last week. Democratic candidate for City Council, Phillip Hendel, was quoted in The Day: "Regardless of the supposed intent of the Taxpayers successful challenge of the budget ... the citizens of New London are now saddled with these results: eight less school safety crossing guards, fewer police patrol cars and beat patrolmen on duty ... and reduction in manning from 18 to 15 firemen."

Judiciary Board Log

The following cases were handled by the Judiciary Board during the Spring semester of the last academic year. In keeping with Board policies, reports on cases are held for at least one month after the cases have been settled.

Case 1. Breach of the Social Honor Code in the form of (a.) destruction of College property, (b.) disturbing the peace and Violation of College Rules in the form of (a.) disregarding the instructions of a Security Officer - guilty on all counts - The student(s) involved were censured and are being held responsible for the costs to the College totalling $71.95.

Case 2. Breach of the Academic Honor Code in the form of plagiarism - guilty of unintentional plagiarism - No academic penalty was recommended. The student was required to resubmit the paper to the professor employing all proper methods of documentation.

Case 3. Breach of the Social Honor Code in the form of water

Aid burgeons in the '70's

By Jeanne Mann

Last year, over a million and a half dollars were spent on financial aid for Connecticut College students. Although much of the money was contributed by the government and private organizations, the size of this figure underscores the fact that financial aid is very much a part of Connecticut College, as well as its budget.

Ten years ago, only twenty per cent of the student body received any form of monetary assistance. But this year, one third of all undergraduates are getting a boost at bill time. Times and the college have changed. But what has caused this increase in financial aid?

The most logical answer would seem to be inflation. Ten years ago, you paid $2850 for one year of education, food, fun, housing, worries and frustrations. No one needs to be reminded that the same merchandise is selling for five thousand dollars this fall.

"The financial aid budget has had a tendency towards growth," observed Pond, director of Financial Aid. As well as inflation, Mrs. Pond also cites the efforts of the college to recruit more minority and lower class students as a further cause of the increase in financial aid.

Connecticut College, once known as a favorite of the Rockefellerers, did not go through the Sixties untouched. Now debutantes are competing for admission with many lower class students that have been recruited by the admissions office. Mrs. Pond says, "If you have the need, we will help you. It doesn't make a bit of difference if you are a minority." But she does admit that the college is making an effort to accept and assist students who would not normally be able to afford an education at Conn. College.

The government is also doing its part to help those in need. Through several programs of gifts and loans, a student may receive up to ten thousand dollars a year. Although you can't spend the money on a villa in France or a quadraphonic stereo, most states will let you take the money to whatever school you please. Providing that your chosen school chooses you as well, the government, in many cases, can pay your bills for your academic career. Of course, this might put you in debt for the rest of your life, but it is none the less possible.

If you are having problems with your budget, it would be worth your while to pay a visit to the Financial Aid office. You will be asked to fill out a Parent's Confidential Statement which will be used to determine your need.

Although aid for incoming freshmen is determined by merit as well as need, the upperclassman does not need to be a genius to get help. All you have to know is where to go for help. According to Mrs. Pond, "if you are breathing and still on campus," your merit is proven. A rule requiring students on aid to have a 2.5 average has been abolished due to the difficulty of evaluating grades from different courses, levels, and teachers.

If you were refused aid as a freshman, or if your wallet has only recently developed a hole, there is help for you. The Parents Fund was specially created to assist students already enrolled. Although the Financial Aid Office normally awards money in May, they will be holding a special meeting in December to help students with mid-term money problems. Although the college rules against conspicuous consumption for those on financial aid will keep you from having a car the possibilities of aid just might keep you from a few more worries and sacrifices, which isn't all that bad in this inflationary time.

ballooning - after reviewing all evidence, the Board voted not to accept this case, but instead, to return it to the House Council of the dormitory for their further review.

Case 4. Breach of the Academic Honor Code in the form of plagiarism - guilty of unintentional plagiarism - No academic penalty was recommended. The student was required to resubmit the paper to the professor employing all proper methods of documentation.

Case 5. Breach of the Social Honor Code in the form of Breach of Contract with a College (student) organization - guilty - The student was given until the semester's end to complete his contractual obligations. If, at the semester's end, the obligations had not yet been fulfilled, the student was warned that grades would be withheld and that suspension would be considered.

Case 6. Breach of the Academic Honor Code in the form of plagiarism - guilty - The Judiciary Board recommended a grade of "F" signifying zero credit for the assignment and a grade of "F" for the entire course.

Case 7. Breach of the Academic Honor Code - the case was dismissed due to lack of specific charges and-or sufficient evidence.

Case 8. Breach of the Academic Honor Code in the form of non-documentation and deception. - guilty - The Judiciary Board recommended a grade of "F" signifying zero credit for the project, and a grade of "F" for the entire course. The student was placed on academic probation for his entire time as a matriculated undergraduate. If again convicted of an academic violation, suspension will be automatic and expulsion will be a serious consideration.

Variations in Board recommendations are due to certain confidential material and facts known to the Board which cannot be divulged to the College community due to the student's right to confidentiality.

Last Spring, a student in Mr. Speyer's comedy seminar (English 102) borrowed an anthology of Restoration and Eighteenth-Century Drama from me, via Speyer. It is a large book, edited by Nettleton, Case, and Stone. It is also a costly and heavily annotated anthology, and I would like it back as soon as possible. "J.D. Businessman" in a skit put on for Conn. College students by M.T.C. rank and file members.

David J. Robb, was also seen at the line with union activist Bruce Burns. Monday's Student-Worker Meeting

This Monday night a group of students interested in the worker's movement attended a meeting in the main lounge of Crozier-Williams. The meeting provided members of the college community and the workers of E.B. with the opportunity to informally discuss the worker's claims and solicitation for campus support. The six members of the rank and file that were present, openly answered all questions concerning job safety, interchangeability, and their relationship to both management and union leadership.

When asked about the rank and file's feelings on present union leadership, Anne Henderson, a housewife and mother who is a clerk at E.B., was careful to point out that although there is a general feeling of disappointment with the MTC leadership the rank and file does not want to break the union. Instead, they are striving to make it more powerful by making it more democratic; their goal — a broad base of rank and file representation in the union leadership.

At the present time, the rank and file is confronted with seemingly dispassionate management and unresponsive MTC leadership has virtually sold out to management.

The workers placed a large emphasis on massive picketing, feeling this is the only way to obtain the offensive in the strike negotiations. They asserted that their attempts to organize a massive picket have been continually frustrated by union leaders who wish to remain in a favorable light with E.B. management. They also stated that many of the union's 10,000 members still do not know that the injunction against the MTC has long been lifted, and they urged that students interested in the worker's movement join them at the picket lines. Donna Diamond is the student strike committee coordinator; she can be reached at Katarine Blunt.

Plans to arrange a dance-benefit to raise funds for the rank and file's newspaper, their only present means of communication, were also briefly discussed. Currently, the newspaper consists of one mimeographed sheet, produced by labor donated from the rank and file. The band that would play at this dance would also be donated by the workers.

The result of Monday's meeting was a frank exchange of student, faculty, and worker viewpoints. Many students, perhaps for the first time, became aware of the conditions that the working class in America has long been forced to deal with.

A petition in support of the striking members of the MTC was circulated and signed by many present. It is expected that this petition will be brought up at the Student Assembly meeting in the form of a resolution.

The workers who are assisting in the coordination of the campus strike committee hope that it can evolve into an on-going forum for the continued exchange of ideas between the workers of Electric Boat and the members of the college community.

Lead suits, anyone?

By Tim Reynolds

In a report last week by the New London Day it was announced that radioactivity levels near the Millstone power plant complex in Waterford have increased significantly. Millstone is a nuclear power facility currently consisting of two reactors but with plans to expand its power production capacity. Over the past year, the discharge quarry has shown an increase in gamma radiation from 10 to 12 times what was previously measured. Radioactive cesium levels have increased from less than one picocurie lost to 540 picocuries within 500 feet of the discharge canal from the quarry.

Radioactivity has been reported in sea water, bottom sediments, marine plants, mussels, oysters, clams, lobsters, scallops, and fish off the coast of Waterford and East Lyme. Cow's milk and goat's milk from nearby farms were found to contain radioactivity for the first time. Iodine 131 is released from Millstone in the gaseous form, after settling on the grass it is eaten by the animals and becomes incorporated into their milk. Through a process called biological magnification these elements are passed through the food chain and retained in increasing quantities by higher organisms.

Let's see, with Millstone just six miles away, if we built a big fan ... well no, maybe we can make a dome — an atro-college! interested in more practical solutions contact P.A.C.E. ## Udall presidential Campaign in N.L.

by Lynda Batter

Stewart Udall, brother of and Campaign Manager for Morris Udall, was in New London last Saturday night to kick off his brother's bid for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

Describing his brother's campaign as the "McGovern-Kennedy go for broke type strategy," ex-Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall spent two hours talking to the New London County Democratic politicians about the need for economic and energy reform in the United States.

Udall told the audience, "We are going to have to make some very basic and major changes in our lives," because, he explained, "We are running out of cheap petroleum which allowed us to live as we have."

These changes, Udall said, can work to help improve the slumping economy. "The way to work around the energy crisis and solve the economic crisis is to work on both together," by going full steam ahead in such industries as the production of solar energy shields.

Acknowledging the lack of popular familiarity with his brother, Udall felt this would be countered if Morris Udall won a major primary such as that of New Hampshire or Massachusetts. If he does not win either of those primaries he will probably withdraw from the Presidential race, Udall said.

Speaking on other issues, Udall described his brother's stance on the Middle East as support for Step One in Kissinger's plan, maintained by a "deep-seeded commitment to the preservation of the State of Israel."

Morris Udall supports the decriminalization of marijuana laws, similar to what is law in Oregon.

PATRICIA HEARST

Patricia Hearst was apprehended Thursday by the FBI in an apartment in the Mission District of San Francisco. After spending 19 months as an underground revolutionary, Miss Hearst faces charges of an armed bank robbery and of using firearms in the commission of a felony. Miss Hearst was denied bail and intends to plead "not guilty" to the charges.

FORD VS. PIKE

President Ford told the House Select Committee chairman, Otis Pike, that the White House should have absolute authority over whether classified intelligence documents would remain classified or become public. President Ford had been subpoenaed for documents of intelligence estimates of the 1968 Tet offensive in Vietnam, Congressman Pike refused to accept any conditions regarding the disclosure of the documents; he offered to give the White House one day's notice within which the President would be able to plead his case before the committee. President Ford's only option now is to convince the House Democratic leaders to influence Pike to return the papers.

ATTEMPT ON FORD'S LIFE

A second attempt was made on President Ford's life on Tuesday afternoon in San Francisco. The shot was fired as Mr. Ford was leaving a hotel and entering his limousine. A policeman deflected the gun so that the President was not hit.

The police arrested Sarah Jean Moore, 45, who had a .38 caliber gun in her possession, 40 feet from the President. She was questioned by the Secret Service hours before the attempt on Mr. Ford's life, but she had not been detained.

ECONOMY

The latest industrial indicators show that the economy is rebounding powerfully from the recession. August showed a 1.3 per cent rise in industrial production, which is the largest in the past three years, and .2 per cent consumer price gain, which is the lowest in the past three years. The Congressional Budget Office predicts a 600,000 unemployment total by the end of 1976 with little reduction in inflation. The Senate voted Thursday to keep increases for the 3.5 million federal employees at Administration approved 5 per cent, rather than the 8.6 per cent originally proposed. If the House agrees, there will be a saving of $1.4 billion in the remaining 9 months of this fiscal year.

Student advice on health needs

by Mimi Ginott

Last week the new Health Services Advisory Committee was formed. According to Rick Allen, President of Student Government, the committee plans to begin reviewing the suggestions made in last spring's Health Services Committee report.

Allen explained that the committee will be looking for ways of improving the health services on campus. That is, if there are medical needs on campus, the excuse that we can't afford to satisfy them will not be satisfactory.

The specific needs cited by last Spring's report include hiring an athletic trainer, expanding orthopedic services on campus, creating a better system of billing, and extending dispensary hours to accommodate the variance in students' schedules (i.e. the hours of student teachers and athletic team members).

When asked about the potential degree of influence of the newly formed committee, Rick Allen explained that the nature of an advisory committee merely allows it to make suggestions. He sees the need for a regulatory committee in its stead. The regulatory committee would be able to watch over the budget and the policies of the health services and then make qualified recommendations.

The members of the present Health Services Advisory Committee are Jessie Abbott '78, Pete Clauson '78, Kevin Durkin '76, Liz Hopkins '76, Mike Langsfield '78, and Kate Overman '79.

E. Brown on religion

Constant evaluation occupies ADF staff

by Jim Diskant

The offices of the American Dance Festival are kept almost as busy during the winter as during the summer when the Festival is actually in progress. The production staff must make decisions concerning faculty, courses of instruction, and student applications. The evaluation of last summer's activities play an important role in these decisions. Since its beginning in 1934, the Festival has expanded considerably, and each year the coordinators try to add to the curriculum to add to the knowledge of the dance students. As Martha Myers, Chairwoman of the Dance Department and Dean of the Dance Festival Faculty says, "Dance is more than pointing a toe." In other words, a dancer's knowledge most include related arts and techniques.

The Dance Festival is a modern dance school, which includes courses in technique, ballet, jazz, dance therapy, effort-shape theory, anatomy, and kinesiology. Various workshops will be continued next summer: The Dance Critics' Conference for journalists, a Dance Educators' Workshop, a dance therapy workshop, the Theater Component, and the Community Outreach Program.

Important parts of the program are professional dance companies that perform each weekend during the Festival; through these performances the students' knowledge of dance is apt to improve, and, along with other performances by theater groups, concerts, and films, students become acquainted with all styles of dance. Each day, beginning at 7:45, students are in class. At night there are generally one or two performances for the further education of the students.

Charles Reinhart, Director; Martha Myers, her assistant Laurie Lindquist; Associate Professor of Dance, all are busy with decisions concerning faculty members, courses, and later in the fall, the acceptance of students.

There are approximately twenty teachers on the faculty, which changes every two or three years. Exceptions are special teachers like Walter Nicks, Coordinator of the Community Outreach Program, who has been associated with the Festival for many years. Evaluations of classes and teachers from this past summer will be crucial in determining the faculty for next summer.

Some courses are essential to the improvement of a dancer, such as technique and composition classes. Those are here to stay, while other courses change from year to year. Mrs. Myers is presently exploring the work of John Mueller and the technique he developed as a film biographer, using film tradition. He will teach courses in dance history, ballet and modern dance, and incorporate the use of video workshops, as cameramen must learn special techniques in filming dancers. Another course under consideration is tap dancing, as a serious dance student must be familiar with this discipline. Mrs. Myers is considering expanding the dance therapy workshops, since physiotherapists have come to realize that movement, posture, and gesture help their analyses of patients.

A Bunch of Experimental Theatres of New York, under the direction of Mercedes Gregory, will continue next summer. This theater project began this past summer, and was an immediate success; separate from the dance classes, it had 100 students who studied such techniques as mime, movement, yoga, vaudeville, and comedia del arte.

Cordette Grimsey works behind the scenes. She conducts the business of the Festival, clears up old files, and sends out material to a mailing list of 1500 prospective students, individuals interested in the performances, and various colleges.

Some of the students are dance majors at Connecticut College, as one or two summers with the Festival is a requirement for the degree; other students come from all over the world. The American Dance Festival is the largest and oldest modern dance summer program in the world. The preparations for summer 1976 undoubtedly will uphold the fine traditions which the Festival has accrued in its twenty-five years of operation.

Mrs. Ernestine Brown, Director of Students' Special Programs, will be the guest speaker at Harkness Chapel this coming Sunday. She intends to offer a series of autobiographical sketches taken from her own religious experiences.

Mrs. Brown has taken full instructions and has been baptized as a Baptist, a Catholic, and an Episcopalian. Her only present church affiliation is with the Connecticut College Chapel.

As Director of the Students' Special Programs, Mrs. Brown works on several projects, the Minority Post-Baccalaureate pre-Medical Program and Unity House.

Before holding this post, Mrs. Brown served as the Director of the College's Humanities-Upward Bound (HUB) Program, until the government funds were cut in June, 1974. Mrs. Brown formerly served as Director of another Upward Bound program and taught public school.

Besides her position at the college, Mrs. Brown presently serves on the Waterford Board of Education and is a special consultant to the State of Connecticut Board of Education.

Mrs. Brown will speak at the Sunday service, which begins at 11 a.m. in Harkness Chapel. The Connecticut College Gospel Choir will sing at the service. The Gospel Choir is under the direction of Mr. Ron Ancrum, Assistant Director of Admissions, and Marcella Monk '78, President of the Choir. All are invited to attend.

Film Series:

A continued success

The Conn. College Film Society, founded last year by Art History Professor, John Knowlton, has expanded its offerings this year under student administration. The officers of the society, Steve Kops, Graham Russell, Abbie MacDonald and Marilyn Post, work in cooperation with the Art History Department to offer a variety of films on Wednesday and Sunday evenings. A new feature this year is the subscription series, enabling viewers to see eight movies on six nights for $3.00, which is half the single-admission price. This series, the first of which runs through November 8, followed by the second, November 9 through December 14, are offered Sunday nights. Admission to Wednesday night movies is by single tickets only. In choosing films, the society is careful not to overlap film courses being offered; nor are they in competition with Feature

Flicks. Most films shown are at least ten years old, and the society emphasizes foreign and genre selections. Following Wednesday night showings, the society meets in Oliva Hall for a brief discussion of the film just viewed. All are invited to stay for these meetings.

Money for the society comes from admission and subscription fees, and is channeled back into more films. Unscheduled bonuses will be offered if funds are available. Some special programs this semester are the Halloween Show (October 29, 7:00 p.m.), consisting of The Pit and The Pendulum and Repulsion, and the program scheduled for December 10, the last day of classes, when On The Town and Friends will be shown.

The Film Society welcomes new members and solicits suggestions and comments, which can be addressed to Box 588.

National Premiere: NTD's 'Parade' will open here

Tickets are now on sale at the Connecticut College Palmer Auditorium Box Office for performances by the National Theatre of the Deaf. Two performances of the troupe's new production, PARADE, will be given at 8:30 P.M. on October 3rd & 4th.

Unanimously praised in the national and international press during its sixteen United States tours, two Broadway engagements, Asian and Australian tours, and eight European tours, the National Theatre of the Deaf's unique theatrical style combines strong and graceful sign language with mime, dance, music and simultaneous narration and song. Their new production, PARADE, demonstrates the versatility of this remarkable group of actors. As the play conducts its farcical and fantastic march through America's past, present, and future, the full range of the company's power, lyric beauty, and singular comic gifts is dazzlingly displayed.

PARADE is a fanciful satire casting keen eyes and turning deaf ears on America's fears and foibles. It will be performed in the revolutionary theatrical style developed and honed by a company of actors the London Times called, "Srage Giants".

The National Theatre of the Deaf, a project of the Eugene O'Neill since last June creating its new work with director, Larry Arrick, and playwright Jeff Wanshel. The two performances at Palmer Auditorium mark the beginning of the theatre's seventeenth United States tour. The tour will take them to thirty-three cities from Albany, New York to Denver, Colorado and from Minneapolis, Minnesota to Dallas, Texas.

Cable 13: alive and well

Many students are unaware of the existence of a fully-equipped television studio in the basement of Palmer Auditorium. Although no longer actively operated by the cable network which owns its equipment, the studio has been maintained and is currently available for use by students.

Under the supervision of Stephen R. Kops ('76), a Television Production Workshop is open to all interested students. "If people are willing to put time into productions, there are unlimited possibilities," said Kops in a recent interview. Among these he listed a local news program, a children's show, dramatic productions and live broadcasts of lectures. He added, "We're willing to help anyone who presents us with a workable proposal and we want people to come up with their own ideas." There is room, he explained, for technical staff as well as actors, directors and writers.

The station is received by the 12,000 Cablevision subscribers in the area. Unfortunately, the campus is not included in the cable hookup. Money for programming comes from sponsors, who purchase advertising time during current broadcasts. These include two evenings of High School football each week, which Kops hopes to expand to four or five evenings weekly.

Eight students now participate in the Production Workshop, but Kops is eager to attract more people. No experience is needed and it's a unique opportunity to use these fine facilities. Those interested are invited to call Extension 435 or put a note in Box 1313. Visitors are also welcomed in the studio.

CLEAN ENERGY FAIR
SURVIVAL and P.A.C.E. (People's Action For Clean Energy) will be co-sponsoring a day long exhibition of non-polluting, non-nuclear energy systems on Saturday, Sept. 27th beginning at 10 a.m. in Cummings and on the south green.

Who's who on campus committees

By Bonnie Greenwald

An adhoc committee to look into the Departmental Advisory Committees, and an adhoc committee to draw up course questionnaires to evaluate courses and faculty, are two of a number of new and established committees ready to start their work for the coming year.

Both of the new adhoc committees were established as a result of a report made last year by the Student-Trustee Committee to the Board of Trustees. A written response to the rest of that report will be issued in the near future.

Student members of the committee examining the Departmental Advisory Committees are Ron Gallo and Eve Miller. Robert Hoffman and Melinda Powers are the student representatives on the evaluation committee.

Another adhoc committee for which students have not yet been named is the Security Committee. Successful last year in improving lighting around the campus, the members work in conjunction with Security Chief Francis O'Grady to improve and maintain security.

Ken Kabel '76, and Chris Greene '77, are two of the 40 students elected last week to serve on student-faculty committees. Ken and Chris are members of the Academic Policy Committee which makes recommendations on academic policy; especially degree requirements, Honor's requirements, independent study, the grading system, and undergraduate course offerings.

Acting on the Administration Committee, which advises the president and class deans and considers petitions are: Jansi Chandler '76, Jack Clarkson '76, John Kaufman '77, Jane Whitehead '77, and Stephen Paige and Joyce Rubino, both of the class of '78.

Serving on the Admissions Committee are Denise Sleigh '76, Amy Friedlander '77, and Jonathan Katz and Margaret Mallon, '78. They will examine admissions policies, procedures of the college, and policies pertaining to advanced placement.

The Development Committee acts as a liaison between the faculty and administration on matters concerning college development. Ted Von Glahn, David Gosnell and Ann Ramage, all of the Class of '77, will serve two years on this committee.

Kevin Durkin, Brian Feigenbaum, and Jason Frank, all of the Class of '76, and Laurie Heiss '78, have been elected to the Crozier-Williams Committee, and will partake in recommending to the president policies for all social and recreational uses of, and activities in, Cro.

Cooperating with the president in planning and arranging college lectures, and with the senior class in making plans for the Commencement speaker, is the Lecture and Discussion Committee. Donna Diamond '76, Michael Harvey '78, Earl Holman '76, and Meg Veach '78, will work on this committee.

The scheduling committee will include Ken Abel '76, Anne Frankel, Carolyn Nalbandian, and Michael Sasiowski of the class of '78. The members will advise the Registrar or other administration members on matters pertaining to the assigning of hours, days and rooms of courses and exams, and will advise the president on the college calendar.

Working with the student designed General Education Committee are: Steve Cestilman, David Keep, Steve Cohan and Babbit Carter, all of the class of '78. Sandy Adelman '76, Sharon Golec '78, Jonathan Kromer '76, and Michael Stasiowski '78, will serve on the student designed Interdisciplinary Majors Committee.

Examining the present academic policy and possible innovations will be Elaine Coutsouridis '76, James Rowland '76, Scott Apicella '77, Kenneth Tobler '77, Patricia Hertz '78, and Valerie Rumsfield '77 in their terms on the Student-Faculty Academic Committee.

Sustenance

"The purpose of the organization shall be to promote an awareness of world hunger problems, as well as campus use and misuse of food." — So reads the constitution of the new food group on campus, which has apparently gotten off to a good start.

The group has been named Sustenance, and a spokesperson indicated that, during regular meetings on Tuesday at 5:00 in the Chapel Library, ideas for activities have been emerging at a rapid rate. The spokesperson asked that all interested attend, even if they missed the first few meetings, and trade thoughts on the food problems that face us all.

J.B. cont. from p.4 are kept in a confidential Judiciary Board file for a student's entire time as a matriculated Connecticut College undergraduate. All files are destroyed upon a student's withdrawal or graduation from the College.

Although Mr. Churchill is sympathetic to the needs of WCNI, he nevertheless feels that it is essential to increase office space for the dance department and to improve the counseling and placement services. This is particularly important when, as at the present time, student vocational goals are strong and job opportunities slim. He would like to eventually remove all counseling and placement services from Crozier-Williams, thus creating a student center devoted entirely to student activities. However, at the present time no alternative housing for these services exist.

Adamant in opposition, WCNI remains determined to defend its position. A meeting with the Cro Committee has been scheduled to attempt to resolve this conflict.

Conn.'s Lit. Review

by Mimi Ginott

Plans are being made for the creation of the Connecticut College Literary Review, which will be a marketable monthly magazine, distributed and sold to students, faculty and the New London community.

The purpose of the new magazine will be to provide the community with a source for creative expression. It will include selective essays, satire, interviews, prose, poetry, graphics and photography. Walter Palmer, who is responsible for the conception of the magazine, states: "The magazine won't have one single theme. It is intended to be in the general interest."

He plans to set up the magazine as an ordinary club, explaining that any student at the college is eligible to write for, or be on, the magazine staff. He intends to maintain the quality of the contents through selectivity, hoping that there will be enough material submitted for that to be possible. Palmer further explained that by containing good quality literature, the publication will be geared towards readers of Time, the New Yorker, and the Atlantic Monthly.

Last week, the magazine submitted a proposal to College Council requesting $750: $250 in the form of a grant, and $500 in the form of a loan. Palmer promised Vice President of Student Government, Janet Pugh, that if the publication's first issue fails, the magazine will fold, in order to limit the financial losses. As Palmer told Pundit: "I am confident that we can sell out, but there are no guarantees."

At the meeting, President Ames expressed concern about whether or not the quality of the writing could be maintained over a substantial period of time. President of the senior class, Andy Hemingway, was apprehensive about the Review's ability to sustain itself successfully.

College Council explored the possibilities of a merger between the proposed Literary Review and the well established annual Literary Magazine. It was agreed that the review would sell for 50 cents a copy and would publish a maximum number of three issues per semester.

The Council passed a motion supporting the Review in theory and requesting a constitution from the magazine's staff; a constitution must be submitted before any club on campus can be legally recognized and/or funded.

The Connecticut College Literary Review will be publicized on WCNI, in Pundit, on posters, and on Club Night. Any interested students are urged to contact Walter Palmer in Blackstone, room 104.

Advice for the future

by Jeanne Floney

Miss Betsy James, director of the Career Counseling and Placement Office on campus, and the senior Career Counseling Committee, has organized an Alumni Career Panel for this semester. According to Miss James, the class of '75 might still be having a hard time finding jobs upon graduation, despite the indications of an economic comeback. Hopefully, these panels will be helpful in dealing with this problem. The sessions will give seniors first-hand information from recent graduates, in order to help them overcome some of the obstacles of job hunting and answer questions about particular occupations.

For this panel, the Placement Office invited four or five Conn. College graduates from the past five years to return to the campus. They are asked to speak to seniors about their jobs. The panel members will answer such questions as what courses or major field of study at Conn. were helpful to them with their job, facts about salary scales, and promotions for women. The first panel discussion will be held in the College House at 6:45 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 23, with "Business and Industry" as the subject.

Miss James says that while some occupational fields are not readily available for college graduates, there are alternatives that are open and are closely related to these areas. The main goal of another career project, the Health Career Program, sponsored by the Placement Office and in conjunction with the Pre-Medical Committee, is to emphasize the various career alternatives in the field of health. The first meeting will feature Helene Alisberg from the Connecticut Institute for Health Manpower Resources speaking, appropriately, about "Health Careers-An Overview" on Monday, Sept. 22 at 4:00 p.m., also at the College House.

Love Loaf appears

by BYRLE S. BOMBERO

What is small and brown, holds pocket change, and helps fight world hunger? Answer: a Love Loaf.

Project Love Loaf is part of the response of the Christian Fellowship at Connecticut College to the world food crisis. Each participant receives a plastic coin bank shaped like a miniature loaf of bread. Over the semester, the loaves will be filled with nickels, dimes, and quarters. December 10 is the target date for a "Breaking Service" in which each loaf will be broken and the money inside dedicated to fighting hunger. The money collected will then be sent to World Vision International, a non-denominational, non-profit Christian organization. World Vision, originator of Project Love Loaf, will use the money in hunger relief work in any of thirty countries around the world.

There are extra loaves available for anyone who would like to participate. To receive a loaf or more information, see Bonnie Hill in Lazrus or send a note to Box 699.

Groups fight for room 225 C

By AUDREY ANDERSON

Designated plans for Crozier 225C, which one time served as the Office of Upward Bound, have stirred controversy and opposition. Since Upward Bound, which is a tutoring program aimed at preparing high school students for college level work, has moved to the Unity Center the future function of this room

William Churchill, Secretary of Connecticut College and Advisor to the President, had intended to use room 225C as increased office space for the dance department and the Counseling and Placement Services. This proposal has been opposed by WCNI, the college radio station. WCNI, claiming that it needs to expand, has asked to be con-

ALTERNATE ENERGY CONFERENCE: sponsored by SURVIVAL and PACE (People's Action for Clean Energy). Alternate energy equipment will be displayed and demonstrated in Oliva and on the campus green west of Cummings, Saturday, September 27, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Dr. McKeehan's attempt is to isolate and investigate the source of the need for the sleeper program. "The primary problem is the difficulty in the dormitories." He indicated that by retaining the program in its original form, the school would be providing a haven for students to escape to, without even questioning the very need for escape. He believes that he is modifying the availability of that haven so that the problem itself will have to be faced and hopefully remedied.

Statistics from last semester show that the infirmary was occupied by a total number of 228 in-patients and 81 sleepers. During the month of May alone there were 45 in-patients and 24 sleepers.

Mrs. Irene Miller, a night nurse at the infirmary who also takes courses here at Conn., was asked about her observations concerning the uses made of the sleeper program in the past. She said that many students who cannot find a suitable place to study succeed in getting a lot of work done there, especially during final exams.

Board aims For choice

by Stephanie Bowler

The Social Board, at its first meeting of the year, discussed plans which reflect an effort to broaden the campus social activities. The Board wants to offer alternatives to the standard beer parties that they feel dominate the campus social life.

To support such a move, the Board is requesting a sum of $10 thousand — twice the amount of last year's budget. According to Cindy Ericson, President of the Social Board, the group hopes to be able to sponsor free events or activities at only a minimal charge since the budget comes from the students anyway.

There is a new policy which requires that any all-campus event be approved by the Social Board. In doing this the Board can prevent a conflict of events that could otherwise lead to a loss of funds for either group.

Social activities being considered for the coming year include a 50's dance, a spring formal, and a series of small concerts in Dana Hall. With the idea of utilizing people on campus as a source of entertainment, regular coffee houses at various dorms are also under consideration.

A Chick Corea Concert has definitely been planned for November 21, in Palmer Auditorium. Tickets will be available with a later date.

Luce responds to needs of phys. ed. dept.

by Anne Robillard

Charles Luce has been athletic director at Conn. for just over a year. He came to Conn. from Boston University, serving as assistant athletic director for three years and as head basketball coach for five years.

Whether from the administration, the Cro director, his staff, or students Mr. Luce receives rave reviews. The general consensus concerning Mr. Luce is that he is easy to work with, responsive and supportive — a plus for the department and the college, and student oriented. Luce, in the space of a year, has become an integral part of the functioning of the phys. ed. department and a concerned, interested member of the college community. He has earned the respect of his colleagues and the students.

There have been some concrete accomplishments within the phys. ed. department under Luce's leadership. He has gotten his staff working together. They spent all of last year reorganizing and reassessing the department. They are defining and expanding their course offerings, including officiating and coaching.

They have defined the direction of their department, recognizing that it is always open to change with student interest. Mr. Luce outlined this direction. In phys. ed. classes they intend to teach lifetime skills and to aid students in attaining certification. Intramurals provide an opportunity to compete in low organization competitive programs. Mr. Luce believes that each department must have an area of excellence and his is intercollegiate sports, which are for students seeking a highly competitive program. He does not think establishing intercollegiate as our field of excellence means unnecessary expansion or overemphasis. It means slowly improving our level of competition. Club sports are also an important part of the athletic department's program. Mr. Luce recognizes the limitations because of staff, facilities, finances, and enrollment but he believes that Conn. can attain excellence within these limits.

Luce thinks that this year will prove to be a test year for the workability of their plan. This year will determine the future of intercollegiate athletics at Conn., as a committee appointed by President Ames will investigate the planned direction to determine its fitness for Conn. It will also be a year of self-evaluation under the guidelines of Title IX (Higher Education Act for Equal Opportunity in Education).

When Dean Watson went to Mr. Luce with the idea of a 'Cro Director', he was very supportive, and was instrumental in getting Cro under the direction of one person. That person, Connie Sokalski, now relies on him a great deal and claims that she never hesitates to ask him for help because he's always willing to respond.

She also finds him to be student oriented. She cites an instance of his concern for student welfare involving a gymnastics clinic. There was a charge for the clinic and to enable more students to participate he worked with scholarships to cover the fee.

Mr. Luce's office door is always open. There is a seemingly constant stream of students going in seeking advice, friendship, or just someone to talk to and they never leave without it.

Luce's interest and respect for the students is most evident in his relationship with the student advisory committee. He encourages them to play an active role in the department. According to Jeff Zimmerman, this had never been done before. He accepts and utilizes their ideas and listens to them as a means of staying in touch with the interests of the student body. He wholeheartedly endorsed and followed up on their idea for a senior "Roast'n Toast" and depended on them to formulate and administer the phys. ed. survey, which the department used as a basis for outlining their goals. Steve Burnett believes that if Mr. Luce felt there was a

Volleyball Starts up

by ANNE FRANKEL

The women's volleyball team is anticipating a successful season this year thanks to increased interest and participation.

Varsity and junior varsity teams were chosen from the twenty-eight people who attended the opening tryouts, which extended over a two week period. During these practices the girls had a chance to demonstrate their individual skills, as well as their ability to work as a team.

Team practices are held on Monday evenings and Thursday afternoons. At the Thursday practices, Coach Sheryl Yeary, is aided by two student assistants; Eugene Kumeck and Colleen Sullivan. This makes it possible to provide individual attention and instruction.

Netters' spirit indicates Strong season ahead

Veteran character actor Strother Martin once commented in the now famous "Cool Hand Luke" that what he and Paul Newman shared was a "failure to communicate." This fall's men's Tennis Team shares none of that unhappy characteristic? Both coach and players are on particularly fine terms and the fall promises to be an idyllic Indian Summer for tennis.

There are, of course, occasional matches to be played and now and then the team comes out to practice. Rumor has it that there is an occasional two mile run logged every day.

Once again, this year's number one singles player will be Robbie Roberts. Steve Banker and Dave Rosenfeld, are in contention for the second position. Greg Yahia and his brother Larry will be expected to play the middle of the line up, and carry a good portion of the doubles load.

In no particular order, Peter Kent, Ethan Wolff, Jim Dicker, John Kosa, and Tom Houston will all be called upon to fill the bottom of the lineup and play doubles. At press time, Coach Bohannon mentioned that the attitude and spirit of the team was high and indeed surpassed the level of any squad he played on at Wesleyan. He also stated, "I hope that the spectator interest for the tennis team will reflect the hard work the guys are putting in. Every indication that I have received points to a successful season, both in the fall and the spring. I feel confident that tennis here at Conn. will become a premier sports."

Field hockey team Stomps Mitchell, 5-0

by Alison Macmillan and Buffie Ashforth

The women's field hockey team opened their twelve game season on Monday with an exciting battle against Mitchell College. Conn's opponents were swept off their feet by the magnificent team work of the forward line backed up by a strong, solid defense.

This year, there are as many rookies on our team as returning players. Forward line (or attack) players consist of Emily Wolfe, Sarah Burchenal, Wendy Crandall, Ginny Clarkson, Alison Macmillan, Patience Merck and Buffie Ashforth. The defensive players are Wendy McAllister, Terry Hazard, Lori Cohen, Debbie Tomlinson, Shippie Davis, Lynn McKelvey, Pam Crawford, Sue Maision, Kit Shaeffer and goalie, Laura Dickey.

The first half of the game was a warm up period for Conn., preparing them for the final kill in the second half. With an assist from Sarah Burchenal, Wendy Crandall tapped in the only goal of the first half.

The pace picked up considerably in the second half. Four tremendous goals were scored. Buffie Ashforth flicked in the first goal with an assist from Shippie Davis. Five minutes later, Sarah Burchenal slammed in another. Once again Wendy Crandall displayed her talent and scored with an assist from Emily Wolfe, making the score 4-0 with seven minutes to go in the game. By then, all hope for Mitchell was lost. A brief moment later, with only two minutes remaining, Emily Wolfe tapped in the last dramatic goal with an assist from Buffie Ashforth.

Our next battle on the field is Monday, vs. U. Conn.

Emily Wolfe aids in victory over Mitchell, 5-1.

SPORTS SHORTS

Club Sports

At the College Council meeting the regulation of club sports was brought up for consideration. Mr. Luce expressed concern over the fact that the clubs not only do not have enough supervision but also about club travel and the possibility of a lawsuit should there be an accident. Nothing was decided, but the legal implications are being checked and Mr. Luce is formulating a proposal concerning club regulation to submit at the next meeting.

Baseball

The men's baseball team was rained out Sunday. They were scheduled to play a double header with the University of Hartford.

Left Out But Not Forgotten

In the crew article in Pundit, 11 September 1975, Martin Lammert's name was mistakenly omitted from the list of the men's lightweight crew that won the silver medal at the Dad Vail Regatta in Philadelphia.

Cross Country

Anyone interested in cross country running should contact Coach Luce for information. The runners meet daily at 3:30 p.m. on the campus green west of Fanning. Open to men and women.

Intramural Racket Sports

There will be intramural tennis and table tennis this year. Entry blanks are available at the main desk in Cro, in the phys ed department, and in the dorms.

Open Tennis Tournament

There will be a Conn. College open tennis tournament October 3-5. Entries are due September 25. There is a $5 charge per event.

There will be a meeting of candidates for the men's basketball team on Wednesday, Oct. 1 in the Cro gym at 4 p.m. All interested candidates please report.

Camels succumb to UNH

by Bear Kobac

"The most exciting thing since freshman girls" was what Bully Briggs had to say about the soccer game against the University of New Haven. As Guy Morris theorized "it was a vicious battle throughout, but despite the Camels humungous effort they surcame to defeat." And Owen Prague emphasized "even the best can't score all the time," and so it was. A close half ended with the Camels behind 1-0.

A good defensive effort for Conn. was led by Jumping Jo-Jo Moore, Da-glorious David Kelley, Steve "Lit" Litwin, Hugo go-go Smith, Trae "say hey" Anderson and Johnny "be good" Kaufman. Other stars included Scot "what a shot" Carney, Keith "what a foot" Harney. Charlie Swisselen Chisselen Cissel, David "guts" Rosenthal, B.B. Bohonnon, "I like girls" Bare, Charlie Grissly Griswold, Bill Fairly Fair Farrell, and goalie Stroking Peter Stokes.

Coach Lessig then at half time said "let's go." John Perry, nicknamed John Perry, responded and bulleted the ball into the net. "Hoorah" yelled Tucker, "Hoorah" yelled Harkness. The crowd then grew hushed, except for Tucker, for the score was tied. But Lady Luck was not with the Camels and UNH scored to end the game. However when asked about the game James Litwin said, "it was a good endeavor," Mark Warren commented, "brings back memories," and Tucker added "cheeseecake."

The Camels then headed south to Kutztown Pa., and in between poker, monopoly, and more poker, they played soccer. However, and to quote John Moore, "we didn't do so hot," Keith Harney added "we got smoked," and Dave Rosenthal further added "deal me in." So the 0-2 club headed home, greeted by fans such as Brunetti who said, "why don't you'se guys go play leap frog on a mine field." Lessig however has formed a new secret formation, simply called Lessig's new secret formation XYZ" which should make the Camels a virtual dynamo. When asked about it, John Perry said, "it's a secret."

Lambdin wins flag opener

by Steve Price

The first week of the flag football season has been completed with few surprises as most of the pre-season favorites won in impressive fashion. President Ames was on hand to throw out the ceremonial first ball prior to the Lambdin-Hamilton game, but the excitement ended there as Lambdin trounced Hamilton 51-0. Quarterback Ted Rifkin led the Lambskins as he passed for two touchdowns and ran for three more.

In the South Division opener, the Quad beat Freeman-Windham 28-7 in a grinding game that featured little passing as both teams stayed with their ground games. Larrabee edged Wright in the rain 7-0 on a Rich Glanz quarterback sweep with three minutes left in the game. Wright QB Bruce Parmenter was impressive in defeat as the rain hampered the offenses of both teams.

Morrisson, featuring much of the cast from KB's championship team of a year ago, crushed Park 49-7 in their opener. Bob Estey led the way with two touchdowns and three interceptions. Smith-Burdick shut out KB 21-0 behind a rugged defense and two first quarter touchdowns.

In another South Division matchup Harkness withstood a furious JA rally and held on to win 30-28. Harkness jumped out to a 23-0 halftime lead as Gordy Milne threw two touchdown passes to John Katz, but JA never quit as their second half surge fell just short.

Next week's action features an early confrontation between North Division powers Lambdin and Morrisson on Tuesday. The complete schedule:

Ric Ricci to boost Conn. sports publicity

By Dawn Wheatley

If you open up a New York Times someday and find an article on a Conn. College soccer player, gymnast, or crew member, it is probably the work of Ric Ricci, Conn's newly appointed sports information director. Ric's new position involves publicizing the most significant sports events at the college. He will be working with papers such as the New London Day, the Hartford Courant, and possibly a larger paper. Publicity has been a weakness in the athletic department in the past, and in an athletic department that is growing as rapidly as ours is, publicity becomes more and more important. Mr. Ricci sees the position as a pioneering event. Because this job is combined with his other jobs as physical education instructor and crew coach, he does not have the time to devote to it that he would like to have. Other schools have people working full-time on publicizing sports and Ric would like to see the job eventually develop into this. He also looks forward to some student help in the future.

Ric received a B.A. in Philosophy from Trinity College, where he participated in cross-country and rowing. He was women's rowing coach at Trinity before coming to Conn. in January to replace Bart Gullong as crew coach. He is very enthusiastic about Connecticut College and its athletic department. He believes that its strength and weakness lie in one characteristic: a lack of tradition. While deficiency makes it difficult to give the program a direction, it is also an advantage in what we are building a tradition now and can pick and choose from what we see at other schools and from what we feel the program at Conn. should be.

Crew has become a very popular sport at Conn. and Ric has an explanation for this. Students come to Conn. without much experience in rowing. The sensation of being in a boat, moving along the water, and the aesthetics involved all make rowing the addictive sport it seems to be. He sees great value in coaching one of Conn's few co-ed teams. Coaching both men and women keeps him non-biased towards the mechanics of the sport. There is great similarity between men's and women's rowing, and coaching both teams allows him to keep an open mind about the sport.

Ric has a very favorable opinion of the school and its athletic program. His only regret is that he doesn't have more time to devote to each of the three aspects of his job — teaching, coaching, and co-ordinating publicity. With his enthusiasm for and devotion to the school, we can look forward to more and more improvement in our growing athletic program.

Care to run 4.7 miles?

The Camel harriers started off the season last week with a decisive win over the University of Hartford in their opening meet. With the first five finishers figuring in the scoring, and with three of our top runners out due to leg problems, the 22-23 victory indicates that the team has adequate depth to anticipate a good season.

Adding up our top five for the rugged 4.7 mile course are Mark Gottesdiener (26:01), captain; Jon Marcus (31:09), junior; Don Jones (31:43), freshman; Jonathan Katz (31:53), sophomore; and Ben Sprague (36:30), sophomore. Runners such as these should convince Coach Luce that running is finally here to stay as a viable sport.

Mark Connolly, a '73 Harvard miler, and Coach Luce have planned a variety of workouts scheduled to shape up the endurance, stamina, and the speed required to sharpen the body in preparation for a 5 mile competition. Some of the days have been spent on the field west of Bill Hall doing repeat 400's or 800's to the tune of a 5 minute mile, broken up by a 180 yard jog for rest. And naturally, LSD training: long-slow-distance (made popular by New London's Amby Burfoot), is a must for all runners of cross country.

Among the males on the team are Kevin Durkin and Bat Weaver, seniors; sprinter Steve Thompson, and sophomores Sam Bibson, Peter Clauson, and Michael DiPace. However, an observer would not only spot hard-working males striding out on the grass. Three women are also getting in a good workout; Isa Borrás, Carol Marmaud, and Carole Pinkston. Anyone else care to start running with us?

Women's tennis team Acquires new blood

by Lisa Schwartz

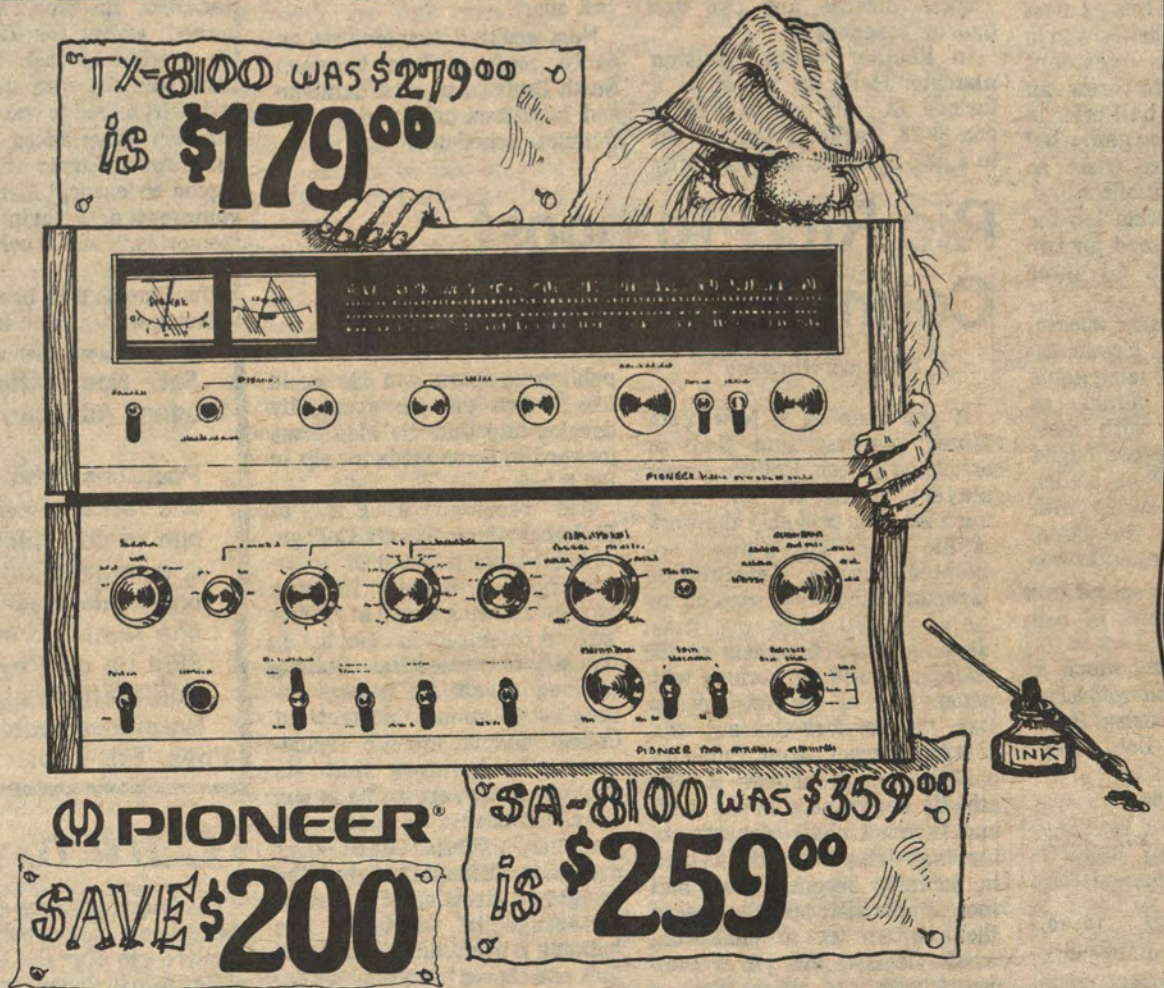

This year, the women's tennis team is off to a fresh start or more appropriately, a freshmen start. The team consists of twelve players; three of which are returning from last year's team. They are: Sally Sonwab (76), Jody Smith (76), and Pam Keris (77). There are two other upperclassmen on the team, Lori Ballman (78) and Judy Robertson (76). The rest of the team is made up of seven freshmen: Anne Caputi, Hilary Henderson, Jennifer Johnston, Lisa Schwartz, Corey Light, Anne Garrison and Cathy Sorley. Coach Sheryl Yeary, held try-outs September 11, 12, and 13. On September 15 the list of those who had made the team was posted and practice began. If one wanders past the north courts, Monday thru Thursdays, between 3:15 and 5:00 pm the women can be seen diligently practicing skills and drills.

There are six singles positions and three doubles positions, with singles players doubles and singles because she finds that most of the team possess equal skill. However, playoff matches are going on between team members to help determine their places. This will be decided by Wednesday so the team will be ready to play its first match today against Trinity College.

We don't believe in 'SALES' at the Stereo Lab...

...because everything we buy is sold at the least possible mark-up so there is no way we can sell it for less and remain in business. But, occasionally, we are presented with opportunities to buy particular components at cheaper prices than we previously paid and are consequently able to sell them at a lower cost.

the stereo lab

For example: Pioneer's SA-8100 integrated stereo amplifier (rated at 40 watts RMS, 8 ohms at 20-20,000 HZ) that normally retails for $359.00 is now available for $259.00, a savings of $100.00 or the Pioneer TX-8100 AM/FM stereo tuner previously sold for $279.00 can now be purchased for $179.00, a savings of another $100.00 (offer good while the supply lasts).

So, if you're in the market for an amplifier and tuner this could be your chance to save $200.00 (both available for $438.00) and take advantage of a bargain that is not a sale.
