Mr. Cobbledick's Talk Gives Statistical Picture of Class

Conn. and N. Y. Highly Represented in Large Class of 275 Members

Thames dining room was the scene of an interesting informal discussion for an hour held for the freshmen. And, true to banquet tradition, there were speeches following dinner.

First President Park introduced Mr. Cobbledick, a college sociology professor who has had the greatest interest in freshmen. He opened the meeting by saying that he is a large class, numbering 275, but not that this was considered large which included 292 students. He stated that the freshmen come from 27 states, of the District of Columbia, four other countries. These states having the largest representation are Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts.

Mr. Cobbledick related some interesting statistics about the freshmen.

Considering previous education, 47 per cent of the freshmen have graduated from public high schools, 45 per cent from independent schools, and the remaining 10 per cent from private elementary and private education.

Genuinely speaking, this year's freshman class attended Connecticut College. Fifteen states have been represented, and the freshmen are a highly interested group, as well as a large group of students, as well as a large group of freshmen and seniors alike.

In order to acquaint new students with new faces and varied activities, the freshmen will be familiar with the Reverend Memburn, the Reverend Memburn, who has been a member of the College for the past two years.

There will be numerous opportunities during the year for freshmen, freshmen, and seniors to join in the activities of the College. The freshmen will be well acquainted with the Reverend Memburn, who has been a member of the College for the past two years.

Food, Lake, Log Fire Plus Frozen Lodgers Sets Scene for Plans

Each phase of Freshman Week is the result of much thought and preparation. After the calendar of activities has been drawn up by the administration, the House Juniors, along with Cabinet members and other class officers, get together with Dean Butrick, Oxen, and Noyes, to discuss many aspects of Freshman Week. This meeting is known as the Pattaganzett Week-end, and is held each year before the freshmen arrive.

Connecticut College Honor Code Tradition
Proves Important in Every Phase of Life

by Rev Tasko

"If a student violates any phase of the Honor Code, she is in honor bound to report herself to the Chief Justice of Honor Court. This year, Syi Diane, Syi holds "reporting hours" in the Student Government room in Brantford Basement on Monday and Thursday afternoons from 3:15 to 5:00 p.m. Also, "the student who is aware that a fellow student has violated the Honor Code is in honor bound to admonish that student to report herself." This last part is the most difficult part of the Honor Code, but it presents the greatest challenge of responsibility. We must be willing and able to admonish our friends, in any community there are the strong and the weak, and it is your duty and the obligation of the strong to help the weak. If this is done, our community as a whole will remain a strong one. These are the specific applications of the Honor Code. The general applications cover every phase of our college life. Honor Code extends to our relations with our roommates, our dorm mates, and our classmates, and to everyone on campus. It covers, too, our dealings with the people away from campus. We are proud to live by honor and we hope you will, too. If we keep honor in our midst, always, it will be very easy for us to live up to the Student Government oath: "We will never, by any selfish or unwise act, dishonor this, our College! Individually and collectively we will foster her honor and do our utmost to instill a like respect in those among us who fall in their responsibility. Unceasingly we will strive to awaken a general realization of our common duty and obligation to our College and to our Alma Mater greater, worthier, and more beautiful."
