Government Department Hires Middle East Specialist

Professor Andrew Flibbert is teaching two courses this semester: Middle East Politics, and War and Peace in the Middle East (Pace).

According to Professor Flibbert, these new courses are part of a broader effort to enhance the curriculum in Middle Eastern studies. "We have had multiple courses on the Middle East, but we haven't had courses that are truly about the Israeli-Palestinian conflict," Flibbert said. "Now, with these new courses, we can provide students with a more comprehensive understanding of the region."
Conn Gives Students A Leg Up Through CELS Opportunities

"Connecticut College educates students to put the liberal arts into action as citizens in a global society."

Conn’s Mission Statement is indeed a lofty reminder of why we as students chose to attend a prestigious liberal arts college. While academics are the College’s first priority, the administration has gone beyond this realm to prepare us with the skills and knowledge we need to meaningfully contribute to today’s global work community. Career Enhancing Life Skills (CELS) serves an invaluable resource to students who are on the cusp of this transition.

CELS is actively present in a student’s College life from the beginning of freshmen year, if the student so chooses. This involvement allows students to extensively work towards determining their future careers and thus ultimately find jobs that are well tailored to their interests and experiences. As depicted in this week’s cover story, the internships that the four-year CELS program provides are, in and of themselves, fruitful opportunities. It is additionally impressive that CELS includes funding for internships that are otherwise unaffordable.

Although not all students participate in this program, CELS offers general and specific guidance to all students in search of structured academic and professional endeavors. This year, CELS enhanced the e-portfolio format available to aspiring teachers, who will now be able to present resumes that are tailored to the specific requirements for the field. This year, CELS is additionally impressive that CELS includes funding for internships that are otherwise unaffordable.

The Voice is currently seeking a politically left-of-center columnist to be featured on a weekly basis. Interested? Call x2812.
AMERICA NEEDS ENGLISH

Where America is a whole, it is very difficult to talk about immigration.
Many English speakers have an understanding of non-English speakers, which is why they are trapped in poverty. Poor non-English speakers are not as able to get jobs as they could be if they had English language skills, and that situation will only become worse. Children who are not supported by their parents and are being educated by preschool teachers are literally paying the price.

This fascinating trend of some English speakers is not only an economic and social concern.
For example, the United States and other countries
about assimilating immigrants are trying to help. Studies show that there now exists in Britain
a coexistence of people of various nationalities which are being assimilated into society as a whole. After generations of failing to promote this necessary assimilation,
the British government is now degraded into a home-grown group of radical Islamic terrorists. It is a very difficult situation.

What would have happened if the Cold War had never been won? Would there have been just one coherent nation, is one of the problems facing the United States.
That is what we need, a coexist but do not assimilate into the melting pot. In fact, the replacement of Americans who were trapped in poverty.

We must ensure that immigrants
assimilate into American society,
and not only be a part of it.
America is a whole, it is very difficult to talk about immigration.
Many English speakers have an understanding of non-English
speakers, which is why they are trapped in poverty. Poor non-English speakers are not as able to get good jobs as they could be if they had English language skills, and
that situation will only become worse. Children who are not supported by their parents and
are being educated by preschool teachers are literally
paying the price.

This fascinating trend of some English speakers is not only an economic and social concern.
For example, the United States and other countries
about assimilating immigrants
are trying to help. Studies
show that there now exists in Britain
a coexistence of people of various nationalities which are being assimilated into society as a whole. After generations of failing to promote this necessary assimilation,
the British government is now
degraded into a home-grown group of radical Islamic terrorists. It is a very difficult situation.

What would have happened if
the Cold War had never been won? Would there have been
just one coherent nation, is one of the problems facing the United States.
That is what we need, a coexist but do not assimilate into
the melting pot. In fact, the replacement of Americans who were trapped in poverty.

We must ensure that immigrants
assimilate into American society,
and not only be a part of it.
Nothing Bland About David Gray's Newest Release

Matt Pond PA

For six years in the mid 1990s, David Gray was...
When you think of unconventional films, what titles pop up in your mind? 2004: A Space Odyssey, Pulp Fiction, Moment? While all those flicks are great, they aren't really films in common—those flicks carry a logical progression in chronology and character development, regardless of how imaginative their methods are for achieving this logic. Luckily for us, there is nothing logical about Family Guy: The Movie. It is filled with non-sequiturs, gaffes and deflated, imagined flashbacks to popular TV shows. Either none or a few should have been. In addition, the movie is divided into three segments—each written by a different writer—all of which tie loosely to Stewie's attempts at finding himself and his parents.

Fan of the show are familiar with its anything goes attitude, but even the program's most loyal legions will be shocked by the free floating use of vulgarity and graphic violence. A few extra "flacks" find their way into the script, as well as some violence unraveled since Season 4; you'll see what I mean when you watch. If you've yet encountered with the show, this probably isn't the place to start. If, however, the show means too much to your beloved standards, you'll probably at least shake your head once or twice and...enough times to generate a hermeneutical knee jerk with regard to religion.

I don't really want to give away the funny parts because you know the show's charm comes from its irreverent, spontaneous and often incoherent humor. To explain why it's funny would be to ruin its humor. I'll just say this: the film is very aware of its own existence—seems from the show, and self-referential in touch of its humor. It contains its own precees, red carpet event and even intermittence. If you've never been shown into one skin to this cartoon, Post Modern viewers will probably look to Family Guy: The Movie to find what was wrong.

Family Guy: The Movie

3.5 humps

Want your parents to know what's going on at Conn (minus what happens behind closed doors on Thursday nights)?

Make a good impression and have them subscribe to the Voice. For $50 a semester the paper will be delivered weekly to your family's doorstep!

For more information contact Allison Glassman at agcla@conn.edu

Subscribe to the Voice, wherever everything is PG

One in 490:

Yoni Talks To Freshmen

Collin Voher: Adam, what part of the country are you from?

Adam Baez: New York City, specifically Manhattan, the upper West Side. I live in Place on campus now.

CV: What are your academic interests?

AB: I am looking at computer science and music.

CV: What instrument do you play?

AB: I have been playing the piano for 14 years.

CV: What clubs are you into here at school?

AB: I am in CCWest, CCDevs and the Gaming Club

CV: What has been your impression of Conn so far?

AB: It has been cool. Not too many surprises.

CV: Why did you choose Conn as the first place?

AB: Well, their Ammann Center for Arts and Technology caught my attention. It was because of the Conn was my first choice college, and subsequently I applied here by early decision.

CV: Did you like the orientation the college had planned for you?

AB: Yeah, it was pretty good. There were lots of fun activities, I went on Coop and that helped me get settled. Many people I hung out with today on campus met me on that trip.

CV: What kind of music and movies do you like?

AB: I like the band "A Perfect Circle" other than music.

CV: Any hobbies?

AB: I like listening to music and playing video games.

CV: Favorite movie lately?

AB: Batsman Begins

CV: Any favorite quotes?

AB: "Think different!"

CV: Thank you for your time!

---
Comm Prof Spends Summer Immersed in Russian Culture

BY ASSISTANT PROFESSOR CHARLES ARNDT

Take for example, the case of Russia's current president, Vladimir Putin. While many people think of him as having been "born-again" on the West as a result of the events in Georgia, few would have imagined that the protests were primarily against the US economic sanctions against Russia. The protests were largely against the US economic sanctions against Russia. While most people would have expected that the protests would lead to a change in the US policy towards Russia, it appears that the protest organizations have been the most important drivers of political change in Russia.

Perhaps the most striking aspect ofmy trip was the sheer volume of people who were out in the streets protests. I was often surprised at how many people were out in the streets protesting against the US economic sanctions against Russia. In fact, on some days, I would see protests against the US economic sanctions against Russia in virtually every city I visited. While it is difficult to estimate the exact number of people who were out in the streets protesting against the US economic sanctions against Russia, it is clear that the protests were a major factor in shaping public opinion in Russia.

I was also struck by the level of engagement and enthusiasm among the protesters. Many of the protesters I spoke with were quite passionate about their cause, and were often willing to put their lives on the line to protest the US economic sanctions against Russia. The protesters were often very knowledgeable about the issues they were protesting, and were able to articulate complex arguments in favor of their cause.

Overall, my trip to Russia was a remarkable experience that provided me with a unique perspective on the political landscape in that country. I would highly recommend anyone interested in political science to consider visiting Russia as part of their academic journey.
Chinese Poet Huang
Gives Reading In Library

On the evening of Thursday, September 16th, Yi Ping Huang, a professor of Chinese Literature at the University of Connecticut College, gave a reading of his new collection, "Stone Turtle: Poems 1987-2007." The reading, which was attended by students, faculty and departmental staff, was the eighth in the annual Modern and Contemporary Chinese Literature lecture series, sponsored by the Department of Modern and Contemporary Chinese Literature, culture and cinema, transnational and American Studies Department. Huang, who began his introduction with a comparison of his view of his work to that of the poet Ai, who was known for his early works, explained much and added new meaning to the pieces on display.

Huang is a poet who has published works both in Chinese and English. His work is a blend of the two languages, and he is known for his exploration of themes such as love, beauty, and the natural world. His poems often reflect on the beauty of both Chinese and English languages, and he is known for his ability to connect with readers from different cultural backgrounds.

Huang's work has been widely praised for its beauty and depth. His poetry is known for its ability to evoke a range of emotions, and his works have been translated into many languages. He is considered one of the most important contemporary Chinese poets, and his work has been celebrated both in China and abroad.

After the reading, Huang answered questions from the audience. He expressed his gratitude for the opportunity to share his work with the Conn community, and he encouraged students to explore the power of poetry and to use it as a means of personal growth and exploration.

In the end, the evening was a great success, as it allowed both students and faculty to enjoy the aesthetic and auditory qualities of Chinese poetry. Huang's work was celebrated, and his contributions to the field were recognized.

Kattina, thereby raising issues of race and class inequality in the country. "Hopefully this is not the end to something that begins tonight," she asserted, indicating that the dialogue continues to be needed and conferences like this one are becoming more common.

Katy Wylde, whose home was destroyed by Katrina, attended the event with a few students and staff members, remarking on the groups who have organized relief efforts. "People are willing to give time and energy," Wylde said.

"Professor of Psychology Jefferson Siegel spoke on the last day of the festival and spoke on the need to inform the individuals of Katrina's homeless people. He said that he is eager to find out each after each other and see how they are coping with the fact that something is going on with someone's identity and what's going on in the community. Thus, Snyder concluded that Katrina not only washed away physical structures, but also people's sense of identity."

It was then opened to questions, and remarks by the audience. David Wylde, one student, "should donate to color-coded, water-rays in order to help those who have lost a little to a New Orleans as a place of inhabitation."

"The last panelists to speak was the next panelists to speak. She noted that she was a great deal of light: the failure of Homeland Security and a race and class context. With regard to the latter point, Anderson stated that she would have been more focused on predominantly white universities affected by disaster, and that her school was associated with others. She argued that the humanities could better help these students. "The U.S. concern to ignore the implications of race and class in this country," Anderson added.

Ananth also noted that, as illustrated by the media, poor blacks are still affected."

"Don't have electricity in your room?"

"We do in the Voice office, and we even have the Internet!"

Write for the Voice!
SPEND A SEMESTER OVERSEAS
(and stay in the U.S.)

Learn in the vibrant, multi-cultural community of Honolulu.
Enjoy a university experience like no other. Be far away, but at home with the language and customs. It all adds up to a semester you’ll never forget.

A Semester ALMOST Abroad at the University of Hawai‘i at Mānoa.

For complete information, visit www.hawaii.edu/almost or email almost@hawaii.edu
On-campus housing and meals available.

For rent,
New London: Spacious
two bedroom, duplex.

new paint/carpet, full basement 317 Broad Street near malls and I-95.

$750 per month, 917-405-5044.
Women's Soccer Draws In 2-0T

The women's soccer team was unable to produce a win in its first week of play. Under coach Ken Kils, the team invited to Division Field at Middlebury last Saturday, with a record of 2-0-1, defeated Conn in the 1st half. The Conn Panthers, with a record of 9-3-7, defeated Conn on Saturday. The Game was played at Franklin Field in Washington, D.C. The Middlebury captains, Cat Dickinson '06 and Jackie Wade peppered the goal with five shots and a strong performance in the second half. The women's team is anxious to get on the road and battle the NESCAC.

Middlebury's Captain Cat Dickinson '06 and Jackie Wade peppered the goal with five shots and a strong performance in the second half. The women's team is anxious to get on the road and battle the NESCAC.

Middlebury's Captain Cat Dickinson '06 and Jackie Wade peppered the goal with five shots and a strong performance in the second half. The women's team is anxious to get on the road and battle the NESCAC.

Middlebury's Captain Cat Dickinson '06 and Jackie Wade peppered the goal with five shots and a strong performance in the second half. The women's team is anxious to get on the road and battle the NESCAC.

Middlebury's Captain Cat Dickinson '06 and Jackie Wade peppered the goal with five shots and a strong performance in the second half. The women's team is anxious to get on the road and battle the NESCAC.

Middlebury's Captain Cat Dickinson '06 and Jackie Wade peppered the goal with five shots and a strong performance in the second half. The women's team is anxious to get on the road and battle the NESCAC.
Quality Pitching In The NL

As the baseball season comes to a close, we can't help but marvel at the abundance of quality pitching in the National League, or NL. Outside of Bartolo Colon, Mariano Rivera, and maybe Bob Wickman, Cliff Lee is 16-4, so there really is not a whole that wows you if the American League, Ian Goat and Mark Buehrle have contributed to go just over 9.5 starts in at least a time when a team needs them most. Give even John Santana isn't what he used to be. If we're not that much was if the award in the American League, but it seems to be Mariano's Rivera's was a bad choice.

On the flipside, the National League has a bevy of contenders, although 3-5 guys play for it on Roger Clemens, Craig Kimbrel, and Dontrelle Willis. The space running out the time might sound something like this: Jake Peavy, Randy Johnson, and Tim Hudson. A trio of Smoltz, Roy Oswalt, and Chris Carpenter who lead the NL. Although there really are 3 big guys in the NL who are better ERA's then Willis, as well as Johan Santana and Horacio Ramirez. As the argument goes, the Cy Young award should only be a bad choice.

So who exactly is most deserving of the award? Clemens with his 1.77 ERA, Carpenter, and Dontrelle Willis. The former 20-game winner of the award? Clemens. Should the award go to the 3 candidates,ยกนิ้ว (Todd Heap, Jonathan Ogden and Rod Woodson) is widely touted as the best defense in football. The Ravens' D-train is running 3rd behind Washington and Chicago. The Ravens-Colts match-up, often called the stiffest test this year in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game. The Ravens-Collts matchup, who are both teams competing against the best offense, turned out to be a poor sight for the Ravens. It's hard to say who the best defense is but it is a serious Super Bowl contender, that's for sure.

Field Hockey Suffers Road Defeat At Middlebury

Women's Soccer: 9/10 @ CC 1, Middlebury 4
9/12 vs. Williams (Williams Cup)
9/15 at Coast Guard 7:00 pm

Men's Soccer: 9/10 @ CC 1, Middlebury 3
9/12 vs. Williams (Williams Cup)
9/15 at Coast Guard 7:00 pm

Field Hockey: 9/10 @ CC 1, Middlebury 4
9/12 vs. Williams (Williams Cup)
9/15 at Coast Guard 7:00 pm

Camel Scoreboard

Men's Cross Country: 9/10 @ Thea Men of Champions, NY 11:00 am 9/12 @ Stonehill College 11:00 am
10/3 @ New England Championships, Boston, MA.
10/5 U of Albany Invitational, Time TBA

Women's Cross Country: 9/10 @ UMass Dartmouth Invitational 10:30 am 9/12 Tufts Invitational at Groton, MA (11:00 am) 9/17 @ Williams 11:00 am

Field Hockey: 9/10 @ CC 1, Middlebury 4
9/12 vs. Williams (Williams Cup)
9/15 at Coast Guard 7:00 pm

Ice Hockey: 9/10 @ CC 1, Middlebury 4
9/12 vs. Williams (Williams Cup)
9/15 at Coast Guard 7:00 pm

The award for the National League ERA) for the up and coming National League, as compared to the Pitching In ments of that pitcher, but they don't ERA, Carpenter who lead the NL. Although there really are 3 big guys in the NL who are better ERA's then Willis, as well as Johan Santana and Horacio Ramirez. As the argument goes, the Cy Young award should only be a bad choice.

The Cy Young award goes to the 3 candidates,ยกนิ้ว (Todd Heap, Jonathan Ogden and Rod Woodson) is widely touted as the best defense in football. The Ravens' D-train is running 3rd behind Washington and Chicago. The Ravens-Colts match-up, often called the stiffest test this year in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game, doesn't come this season in America's game. The Ravens-Collts matchup, who are both teams competing against the best offense, turned out to be a poor sight for the Ravens. It's hard to say who the best defense is but it is a serious Super Bowl contender, that's for sure.