Spender Gives Hints of Life Criticism to Capacity Crowd

by Monica Hyde '57

The popular poet, critic, and lecturer, opening the Connecticut College College News Drive on Tuesday evening to a capacity audience at Palmer Auditorium, spoke on Tuesday evening to a capacity audience at Palmer Auditorium. His speech on the subject of "What is Poetry?" was of special interest to the English Department and those interested in the arts. Mr. Spender's talk was not only entertaining but also thought-provoking.

Community Fund Features Pledges Ideas for Charity

The annual Community Fund Drive is underway this Thursday, November 18, and will continue through November 22. During this week, each student and faculty member will be asked to participate in the drive or contribute to the fund. The money, which will be divided equally among more than fifteen organizations, will be used to help those in need. The fund has already raised a considerable amount of money, which will be allocated to organizations in need of assistance. The drive is open to all members of the community, and everyone is encouraged to contribute to the cause.

Dr. Goldman Brings Surveying of New America to CC

by Donna MacKenzie '57

Professor Erle Goldman, a distinguished scholar in the fields of history and politics, recently presented a lecture on "Recent Theology" at a previous meeting of the Connecticut College faculty. His lecture focused on the development of religious thought in recent years, particularly in the context of the United States and its role in world affairs.

Faculty Lectures, Attends Meetings Outside CC Campus

The interests of members of the Connecticut College faculty were highlighted at a recent meeting of the Alumni Association. Professor Goldman attended the meeting, which was held on November 14, and discussed topics related to recent developments in the field of theology.

News Poll and You!

The excitement of the Presidential campaign has spread across the country at a forceful rate. We, at Connecticut College, are privileged to have an analysis of the collection presented to us this evening by the noted professors Robert Dahl and John Stuart in the presence of Yale University. Both of them are prominent in the academic field, and each is fully qualified to present his subject matter.

We realize that extenuating factors influence our political views. We are young and not able to formulate our independent opinions. Because we are interested in both independent thinking and the opinions which result from that, we are interested in hearing the political views of the students, the faculty, and the administration. The poll has now been distributed, and we have the responsibility to exercise your "vote" before noon tomorrow.

The questions which we have presented are straightforward. It is our intention to mean by them to carry any significance. In support of your "poll", we have the responsibility to give you an accurate translation of the candidates you collectively support. It should also be interesting to note whether your views have shifted any since the 1962 election. Since opinions will be garnered from three different areas—students, faculty, and administration—you will be able to take notice of the various "vote" to find and VOTE!

Goldman

... attempting to reestablish the traditional way of conducting domestic and foreign policy. However, since 1952 and 1952 there has been a definite shift in position. The administration has found that the old tradition is more or less passé and the crisis appears to be over today.

Mr. Goldman stated that he thought this presidential campaign is "dull" if there is no conflict on basic fundamental issues; both parties are advocating similar things. America is in a period of transition and flux today. Intellectuals, we are ridding ourselves of the old arguments and clichés; the old carry-overs of arguments concerning New Dealism, etc., are gradually disappearing. Mr. Goldman remarked on the new popularity of H. L. Mencken, who said that he was tired of the old clichés and that one, should laugh at and mock them. The old arguments are no longer applicable to the new age at stake in the United States.

Politically, we may be in midst of a period of reverberations. The Post Office, analyzed today, were labeled "radical" by their progressive reforms. The Democrats were the "novices." With the advent of New Dealism in 1933, the labels were exchanged; who knew but that soon the labels will again be switched with the breakdown of the belief in the traditional American party within the Republican party?

Mr. Goldman closed with a statement that in such times of flux and transition there is possibility that the things that one is so sure of will be changed in the tide of the changes. It will be the job of generation to formulate new critical theories and apply them, possible, to a changing America and a changing world.

IT'S FOR REAL! • by Chester Field

SECRET YEARNINGS!
Oh, why must I be civilized instead of being me? I'd like to be a beast and kiss each pretty gal I see. I'd like to kick that brain next door, it's been my favorite dream And when I'm low I'd like to lie upon the floor and scream.
