Ten Voice Articles Published in Peterson's College Guidebook

by ROB KNAKE

Managing Editor

With the most recent edition of Peterson's The Inside Scoop on College Life, The Voice has received an increased amount of public exposure.

The Inside Scoop includes ten pieces of previously unpublished material written by members of the Student Publications Board. In the book, a compilation of news stories covering a variety of topics, the school's students and faculty are given an outlet to express their opinions and viewpoints.

Most of the pieces feature student writers and include a wide range of topics, from campus events to personal experiences.

The Inside Scoop also includes a collection of stories from the Voice, the college newspaper. The stories range from in-depth features to brief sibling articles on various subjects.

The book is available for purchase and is a great way to keep up with the latest happenings on campus and gain insight into the student perspective.

Gaudiani Induced Into Free Enterprise Hall of Fame

by BRIAN BIELICH

editor-in-chief

Connecticut business leaders and industry leaders attended Thursday morning's induction ceremony as William J. Gaudiani, president of the Connecticut Junior Achievement Program, received the Free Enterprise Award from the Connecticut Free Enterprise Foundation in recognition of his dedication to the company's mission.

Gaudiani, along with 11 other individuals, was inducted into the Free Enterprise Hall of Fame. He and his colleagues were commended for their efforts in promoting free enterprise and economic education.

The event was hosted by the Connecticut Free Enterprise Foundation, which is dedicated to fostering a strong business community and promoting free enterprise. The foundation was founded in 1953 and has been a driving force in the state's economic development.

In addition to the induction ceremony, the event also featured speeches from various officials and a keynote address by former U.S. Secretary of the Treasury Henry M. Paulson Jr.

The ceremony concluded with a reception where attendees had the opportunity to network and celebrate Gaudiani's induction.

The Connecticut Free Enterprise Foundation is a non-profit organization that provides educational programs and resources for students and educators. The organization is dedicated to promoting free enterprise and economic literacy among young people.

A Big News Story of Being Detected

by JOHN M. CONROY

In a scenario based on current US Customs and Border Protection (CBP) statistics, Ronald G. Silver, was specifically named in a recent report. The report, based on data collected by CBP, indicated that Silver was one of many individuals who were caught attempting to enter the United States.

The report noted that Silver was attempting to enter the United States through a border patrol checkpoint, but was detected and returned to his country of origin.

CBP is the lead agency in the United States for border security and protection. The agency is responsible for enforcing immigration laws and preventing individuals from entering the country illegally.

According to CBP, the agency encountered more than 500,000 attempts to enter the United States during the year 2021. Of those attempts, CBP was able to detect and prevent the majority of attempts.

Silver's case is just one of many that highlight the challenges faced by CBP in enforcing immigration laws. The agency is constantly working to improve its strategies and technologies in order to better detect attempts to enter the country.

The report also noted that while Silver's case is being reviewed, CBP is committed to ensuring the safety and security of its borders.

CBP is committed to working with other agencies and governments to prevent individuals from attempting to enter the United States illegally. The agency is also committed to providing information and resources to individuals who are seeking to enter the United States legally.

According to CBP, there are various legal channels available for individuals who wish to enter the United States. These channels include family reunification, work visas, and student visas.

Ban Cigarette Sales on Campus?

Yale beat us to it

University Properties Won't Let Tenants Sell Cigarettes

Dr. MICHAEL CHEUNING

Yale Daily News 09/09

The Wall Ford Store's proximity to Silliman and Timothy Dwight dorms has made it an easy stop for students. Owners say smokers find it easier to buy cigarettes from the store than from the local convenience store.

According to the conditions of a new lease signed two weeks ago with University Properties, Wall Ford convenience store can no longer sell cigarettes after the current summer.

As a tenant of Yale's New Haven commercial property manager, University Properties, Wall Ford convenience store is subject to University Properties policy, one of which state that no tenant can operate a tobacco business.

The challenge of that editorial stands.

Therefore, the challenge of that editorial stands.

The College Store will continue to sell cigarettes as long as the lease permits.

Yale, well-flushed, is making a choice (due to its highly addictive nature) that it will not sell cigarettes.

The challenge of that editorial stands.

Wall Food is subject to University Properties policy, the terms of its new five-year lease, which is up for renewal this year.

Any business wishing to lease on campus will need to satisfy the terms of the lease for the Wall Ford Store property that the cigarette lease come to light. Defiant said that would require the store's convenience store to sell cigarettes.

"If you want to sell them, I would welcome them," a tenant owner Pasquale DeSisto said.

The store, a tenant owned and operated by former Tenants' Rights Committee Chair Peter Will Edwards, is a popular stop for smokers on campus.

DeSisto said that if he were in charge of the store, he would sell cigarettes.

Although my personal commitment to tobacco-free living began with a decision to give up the habit a couple of years ago, I have a harder time imagining an environment in which cigarettes are available for purchase.

Stigmata Fails to Live up to Promise

By REBEKAH PAGE

associate a&e editor

Two years ago, in a scene so powerful that it will stay with me for the rest of my life, I was drawn to the screen by the dire passions of Patricia Arquette, playing the role of a young woman wracked by a terrible form of mental illness. She moves across the screen as if possessed, with a look in her eyes that could chill a heart. "It's like I'm a different person," she moans, emerging from a deep haze as if a spell is broken.

Now, in "Stigmata," Arquette is back in a role that is very similar to the one she played in "To Die For." She is a woman who is subjected to religious "miracles," and who is driven to the brink of madness by the conflict between her human nature and her spiritual impulses.

In "Stigmata," the story is told from the perspective of a Jesuit priest, Father Andrew Kiernan, who is assigned to investigate the case of a young woman who claims to have received the stigmata, or the marks of Christ, on her hands and feet. The priest is a man of faith, but he is also a man of science, and he is determined to get to the bottom of this case, no matter what the cost.

The movie is directed by Rupert Wainwright, and it is a film that is both thrilling and disturbing. It is a film that is about the power of faith, and the need for reason, and it is a film that is about the ultimate conflict between the two.

But in the end, "Stigmata" is not a film that is about anything. It is a film that is about the Stigmata, and the concept of stigmata-injuries received by individuals who are thought to be possessed by demons or spirits. The concept of stigmata is a powerful one, and it is one that has been the subject of much debate and controversy throughout history.

So, what is the point of "Stigmata"? Is it a film that is about the Stigmata, or is it a film that is about something else? I don't know. But I do know that it is a film that is worth seeing, and that it is a film that will stay with me for a long time.

Charleston String Quartet Performance Impressive

BY: YEVGENIY TSIFRINOVICH

staff writer

Connecticut College's Musicians-in-Residence, the Charleston String Quartet, treated the community to a stellar performance last weekend, one of the first of their time at the College.

The two-hour concert featured the works of Franz Josef Haydn, Charles Ives and Antonin Dvorak. All were equally exceptional and emotionally provocative due to the musicians' mastery of their instruments.

The group dazzled both on the technical and on the emotional level. The musicians' mastery of their instruments was patently obvious throughout the rigorous pieces, which included a great deal of prismatic (plucking the strings) and tremolo (in short, rapid) passages. The players demonstrated a strong sense of ensemble and timing, with each performance by the Quartet, whose members have been in residence at Connecticut College since 1997 and were previously at Brown University in Providence, Rhode Island from 1986. They have also performed at the American University, including Harvard, Yale and Haverford College.

The first piece, the "Empire," was exhilarating and emotionally well expressed. Haydn's music is written for the soul, and the Quartet made it connect fully. The group shied both on the technical and on the emotional level. The musicians' mastery of their instruments was patently obvious throughout the rigorous pieces, which included a great deal of prismatic (plucking the strings) and tremolo (in short, rapid) passages.

Martin Lawrence Action Comedy Falls Flat

Blue Streak is a moderately entertaining and recently released action comedy. Although it has enough explosions and broken glass to keep most action fans satisfied, it lacks the humor to entertain or on any other level. One expects more from comic/movie star Martin Lawrence than this. He delivers, a Hokeywood string of facile lines and the odd action sequence.

Martin Lawrence stars as Logan, a jaded thief, who accidentally is released from prison. He then dedicates the piece which he hid in a half constructed diamond, and it is now a police station. The diamond back. It starts off as a dimwit, by-the-book detective, leads to a few humorous scenes. As one might imagine, this leads to a few humorous scenes. The best part of the movie is the second billed co-stars, Luke Wilson (Homefries) and David Chappelle (Half Baked). Lawrence, in a supposed comedicTrimming, is expected to show Wilson's rookie cop the ropes. As one might imagine, this leads to a few humorous scenes.

Hurricane Floyd Makes This Year's Blood Drive Especially Important

By STEVE REYNOLDS

Spurred on by the national need for blood in the aftermath of Hurricane Floyd, Connecticut College students, faculty, and staff donated their blood at the Red Cross Campus Blood Drive on Tuesday and Thursday.

"I think students were very willing to give their blood to help others in need," said Katshly Vill, a first-year dorm director. "I was very impressed with the students, faculty, and staff who donated. It's wonderful to see the community work together."

Vill added that the college's student dorms, faculty and staff formed a 'blood bank' to help stock the shelves at the Red Cross Blood Drive.

"It was great to see the community come together," said Vill. "I was very impressed with the number of people who donated."

According to Vill, the college community was very willing to give their blood as a way to help others. "I was really impressed with the number of people who donated, and I don't think enough people donate their blood," said Vill. "It's great to see the community work together to help others in need."

For Connecticut College, that requires using the resources of the College in helping the individuals of the College to graduate. "If we have more people who donate, we can truly have paid off," said Goodwin. "It would be a great thing for the community and the college.

"Our aspiration is to connect economic prosperity and social justice," said Goodwin. "For Connecticut College, that requires using the resources of the College in helping the individuals of the College to graduate."

Sunday Walk-a-thon to Benefit PKD Research

On Sunday, September 26, 1999, 9:30 a.m., the Connecticut Chapter of the Polycystic Kidney Research Foundation will hold its 4th Annual Walk-a-thon for Polycystic Kidney Disease (PKD). PKD affects 800,000 Americans and more than 1.3 million people worldwide. PKD is the most common life-threatening genetic disease in the world. There is no known cure for PKD.

The New London Rotary Foundation, Inc. will sponsor its 4th Benefit at the Beach, a festival celebrating patriotism and friendship, on Friday, October 22, 1999 from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. at the Port 'N Stars Ocean Beach Park in New London.

Brewfest will feature entertainment, light pub fare, and microbrews and imported beers. All attendees will have the opportunity to taste from over 60 microbrews and imported beers, talk with 30 microbrew companies and enjoy light pub fare while listening to live entertainment and intermittent tunes courtesy of local DJs and New London Rotarians.

The cost is $55 per person and includes 15 tasting tickets. Picture ID is REQUIRED for entrance.

All proceeds will directly fund New London Foundation projects in particular Camp Rotary, a summer program for youth. For more information, visit NLRF’s website at www.sarahlawrence.edu.

SARAH LAWRENCE COLLEGE AT OXFORD

Sarah Lawrence College at Oxford offers students the unparalleled opportunity to work individually with Oxford scholars in private tutorials, the hallmark of an Oxford education.

Open to qualified undergraduates, it is the only visiting student program sponsored by an American college that gives students from other colleges access to the full range of tutors and disciplines of Oxford University’s 37 colleges. In addition, each student has a wide range of privileges in Wadham College. This special relationship gives students access to the College’s junior common room, athletic teams, library, dining halls and social events, as well as voting rights in the Student Union.

Anne’s Bistro

Bistro, n. (Fr. Parisian) small village restaurant or tavern serving regional fare

Anne’s Kitchen began in 1979 as a catering business which Anne operated out of her home while raising her children. By 1986, she had outgrown her home kitchen and decided to expand the catering business and open a restaurant. Anne’s Kitchen was opened in the Old Lyme Shopping Center in 1986 with seating for 48 as a gourmet deli/bakery.

Ten years later, in 1996, the business once again outgrew its quarters and moved to this location. While still a gourmet deli/bakery, the new restaurant became Anne’s Kitchen & Bistro to reflect the addition of evening meals. Anne’s is now open five days a week for breakfast, lunch and dinner with seating for 40. Patrons can also enjoy outdoor dining on the patio.

The catering business Anne started 20 years ago still thrives behind the scenes — catering for all occasions from small dinner parties to extravagant wedding receptions.

Welcome to Anne’s Kitchen and Bistro. Bon Appétit!
Women's Varsity Soccer Opens League Play with Win at Tufts

Welch scores 2 goals; Ballads returns shutout

By MATTHEW B. KESERIAN

Last Saturday's NESCAC (New England Small College Athletic Conference) opener at Tufts University provided the women's soccer team with an excellent early season challenge for the opening Fitchburg Tournament. No match, however, was more exciting for the women's soccer team than their season opener against the Polar Bears. As a league-contending powerhouse, Connecticut College had little reason to feel nervous about the game. But the Camels were ready for the challenge, and with a season-high 18 shots on target, they pointed to the early stage as a harbinger for the years to come.

The game opened in a defensive battle, with both teams working hard to maintain possession. However, the Camels were able to break the deadlock in the 46th minute, when senior midfielder Anne Marie Pyle ('10) scored her first collegiate goal. Pyle's strike was a well-placed shot that found the back of the net, giving the Camels a 1-0 lead. And that lead held for the remainder of the first half, with the Camels leading 1-0 at halftime.

In the second half, the Camels continued their offensive dominance, outshooting Tufts 12-6 in the final 45 minutes. However, the Polar Bears were able to find the back of the net in the 62nd minute, leaving the scoreline 1-1. Despite the equalizer, the Camels were able to hold on for the 1-1 draw, earning their first shutout of the season.

Intramural Season in Full Swing

By FRAN SHIELDS

In the midst of the academic year, Connecticut College's intramural season is in full swing, providing students with a variety of opportunities to stay active and competitive. The Intramural and Club Sports Office has organized a diverse range of activities, from sports like field hockey and soccer to activities like dodgeball and tug of war. These events not only encourage physical fitness but also foster a sense of community and camaraderie among students.

On Saturday, September 25, the field hockey team took on Amherst College, and on September 26, the women's soccer team faced off against Williams College. Both teams are known for their competitive nature, and the games were a testament to the high level of talent within the college community.

The field hockey game was a hard-fought battle, with both teams playing exceptionally well. The women's soccer game was equally competitive, with the teams working hard to gain control of the ball and create scoring opportunities.

Women's Tennis Starts Season with 2-0 Record

By NED DEBAKEY

The women's tennis team opened their 2023 season with a 2-0 record, earning victories over Roger Williams and Connecticut College. The team is led by Head Coach Claire Collins, who is in her second year at the helm. The women are looking to build on last year's success and make a strong statement in the conference.

Volleyball Team “Hit” with Defeat

By CHARLES HASSELL

The women's volleyball team suffered a setback in their opening game of the season against Colby College, falling to the cluster 3-2. The Camels were outmatched in the first set, losing 25-16, and struggled to keep up in the second set, losing 25-17. However, they fought back in the third set, winning 25-20, and set the stage for a memorable fourth set. The Camels were ahead 10-6 in the fourth set, but the Bantams rallied to win 25-18. In the fifth set, the Camels took a 10-5 lead, but the Bantams fought back to win 15-12, securing the win for Colby.

Despite the loss, the women's volleyball team remains optimistic, with Head Coach Ethan Driscoll expressing confidence in the team's ability to bounce back. The team is scheduled to play their next match on October 7 against Bates College, where they will have a chance to improve their record and gain valuable experience.
