Quimby Will Give Organ Recital in Chapel Tues. Eve

Program Will Include Works of Bach and a Symphony by Soverby

Professor Arthur W. Quimby, head of the Department of Music, will present an organ recital on Tuesday, November 6, at 8:30 p.m., in Higham Chapel. A glance at the program indicates a musical offering interesting and varied.

The program will open with two works of the pre-Bach period, Dialogue by Markle and Passion by Hindemith. The second part will be the Bach Prelude and Fugue in C minor and Frick's Piece Endear. A work that promises to be a highlight of the program is the Claudio Symphony by Soverby. The last work written for organ and orchestra, has been transcribed by the composer for organ and piano. Miss Patricia Rapp of the Music Department will assist as pianist. The remainder of the program will consist of compositions of the students of the College of Music. In the time of the first concert, the students will be away from campus, which was performed for the first time by the College Band and Orchestra during the first movement exercises last June.

The results of the British elections have been announced, and the Conservative party did not do as well as was expected. The Churchill era will end this week, and a new era will begin. The new era in Britain will have to be more committed to the welfare of the lower classes, and a larger element of the working class will have to be involved in all aspects of the nation's life.

The political situation in the United States has also changed, with the passage of a new law that will affect the lives of millions of people. This law will make changes to the way in which social services are provided. In addition, a new law will be introduced that will affect the way in which the court system operates. It is hoped that these changes will lead to a more equitable and just society.

We Want Criticism!

Susan Vall Crowe

Dear Editor:

It seems to me, however, that the fault lies chiefly in a marked lack of summarized material. There is practically no source to which one can turn to study a situation thoroughly in one sitting. Every text book contains great superfluous and confusing detail. Actually, any phase of learning may be compiled into a summary, compact enough to be read in a single sitting, either the faculty or the authors of textbooks should make it their business to create such summaries. The students should then be expected to study the summaries thoroughly.

I imagine the result is to be gained through outside reading. I believe, however, that it is unnecessary for each student to do all of the reading. Of course, the more the student reads, the broader his outlook becomes, but it must be practical. The student has not the time required for a great deal of intelligent, careful, and complete reading. Different reading, therefore, could be done by different members of a class and reported on by them. In this manner, a great deal more material could be covered. Meanwhile, the summaries would still be available if the student decided not to do all of the summaries.

A course taught in this suggested manner would be of great experimental value. It seems to me that it would be a definite step toward more fruitful results from studying.

Professor of Religion

Will Speak at Vesper Service Sunday Night

A STUDENT
Halloween Customs Will Be Observed at College Wedded.

by Carolyn Chapple

Halloween, originally designated a holiday by Pope Gregory I of All Saints Day, has now become the only night during the year when the Federal library students can exchange and enjoy the fruits of their labor with the students. Even when people seem to forget their inhibitions and guard, and enjoy the holiday by trying to match each other's skills. They may be slightly confusing, but all through the United States people will be dressing up in costumes, ranging from pirates in princesses and skeletons to sheets; and there will be various sounds and colors of ghosts and witches in great numbers.

For October, 31st is said to be the last night when the creatures of the supernatural wander abroad, and one of the scariest times of the year. The old rhyme says: "The first of November, the last of October, life begins to mend." Hence the yearly round of haunting. Any resemblance to the natural creatures a week earlier in Mesopotamia is the present system and upon the transformation, its members are its own critics. They may be discouraged by poor leadership on some campuses, apathy on others, however, who watch NSA's in action. One of the most effective ways of helping the students, they may think, is to start collecting money to help them resist aggression. They may think that the United States can defend itself best alone or with allies.

The faculty of Florence State Teachers College has voted into operation an unusual program designed to screen and select carefully the students to be trained, graduated and recommended by the college for teaching positions. As set up after careful study, the plan requires that students make application for admission to teacher training courses not later than the last quarter of the sophomore year, stating their desired field of education, whether elementary or secondary.

Applicants for admission to professional training must be recommended by the department in which the student is majoring and by the Department of Education and Psychology. The prospective teacher must have at least a C average and must have made a satisfactory showing in tests used to measure ability in the use of English.

During the senior year, students will be required to take practice teaching under the supervision of experienced critical teachers. No student will be permitted to take practice teaching who has less than a C average in his professional training or major field. Cooperation with the placement service of the college in preparing the candidate's personal data will also be required.

A committee will be set up to hear appeals from students who are rejected because of a physical or personality difficulty. The committee will also act in an advisory capacity in helping the student revise his vocational plans if he is not accepted for professional training.

Well... That's a sea horse of a different color!

This little pro-gre-ee was all at sea. It was enough to upset his equine-imity. He'd been reading about those rush-rush cigarette tests—the quick sniff, the fast puff. "Hardly the scientific approach," he said in his confusion. But then he realized that one test is an equine of a different pigmentation—a thorough, conclusive test of cigarette mildness.

It's the sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke—on a day-after-day basis. No snap judgments! Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why...

After all the Mildness Tests, Camel leads all other brands by billions!
