

WAS THIS YOU?

ACT I.

Curtain rises and the Yale Bowl is seen. The general impression is that there are thousands and thousands of people. Not much can be told of them except that they have on brightly colored hats—the women at least. Two young people catch the eye.

She—"Oh, aren't the girls dressed gorgeously?"

He—"I wonder why the game doesn't begin."

She—"Who are we for?"

He—"Connecticut."

She—"All right," demurely.

The game starts. The ball is kicked off by the Yale team. A Harvard man misses it and makes considerable progress up the field.

She—"What are they fighting about?"

He—"Very agreed. They're not fighting. Yale is preventing Harvard from coming down the field with the ball. They're putting up a wonderful defensive today."

She—"Oh, see the aeroplanes. They are coming terribly close."

He—"Yeah, Yale—Ra! Yale!" Several forward passes are tried and are accomplished with great success. The teams play a very tight and even game. Finally Harvard makes a drop kick and scores. Much excitement follows.

She—"Wonderful!" claps violently.

He—"What's the idea? What's the comedy in clapping for Harvard's goals?"

Finally Harvard makes a "No Man's Land" that would make the trenches look like a hole in a ten cent piece. Kicked away. In the good old days, look like a hole in a ten cent piece. Needless to say that three times in one day at least, the trenches are most popular, being thronged with newly enlisted recruits, please notice the absurdity of this custom. Why should the usual term "ravine" only mean "the good old days," barbed wire entanglements, pitch blackness and a swirling gale of rain, and we'd have a "No Man's Land" that would make the trenches look like a hole in a ten cent piece. Needless to say that three times in one day at least, the trenches are most popular, being thronged with newly enlisted recruits, please notice the absurdity of this custom.

Special orders for books of all kinds, fiction included, will be filled as rapidly as possible, and full information about the book you want, including title, author and publisher, will help to avoid a delay at the start. This is purely a business proposition. The Book Store makes the expenses which such special orders impose on you. You get the book you've been wanting so long, for less than the net price. And in closing, let me add: Have you seen the new college stationery at the Book Store? And the fountain pens that make wonderful Christmas presents?

ACT II.

Mary and John are hanging to the sides of a car. The car is moving but the motion is very slight.

He—"Guess this is New York."

New Haven hasn't this many inhabitants, I understand."

She—"It's grand, isn't it?

He—"Oh, take me home."

Curtain falls.

MISS DUNKER SPEAKS ON CHILD WELFARE.

On the evening of Friday, November 19th, in Branford living-room, Miss Delphine Dunker of the Child Welfare Commission of Connecticut, addressed the students of the Sociology Department. She sketched the work of the Commission thus far, spoke of some of the outstanding problems in this state and outlined methods of relief. Miss Dunker is the first of several speakers who will lecture to the Sociology students during the course of the winter on subjects pertaining to their interest.

TANT THIS TO HEART!

Did you ever happen to think that the college does not generally realize the service the Book Store stands ready to furnish in other ways than more candy, theme paper, and required textbooks—necessary though they all be in their own ways? The books have theme paper, and most other supplies sold for less there than the usual retail price, at a discount usually of from five to 10 per cent of that price. In this way the Book Store aims to be co-operative without any special orders impose and you avoid a delay at the start. This is purely a business proposition. The Book Store makes the expenses which such special orders impose on you. You get the book you've been wanting so long, for less than the net price. And in closing, let me add: Have you seen the new college stationery at the Book Store? And the fountain pens that make wonderful Christmas presents?

POTTERY EXHIBIT.

A pottery exhibit will be held in the design room, New London Hall, next week Monday and Tuesday, November 28th and 29th, from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Contributions represented in the exhibit are from:

Marble Head.
Paul F. Carter Bowl Shop.
Grubey Tile and Palence Co.
North Bennett Street Industrial School, Boston, Mass.
Caroline Hardy and Eileen Colman, Marblehead.
Also a small group of pieces made in the pottery department of Connecticut College.

Proceeds from pieces sold will be used for the College Endowment Fund.

SUCCESS.

"He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often, and loved much, who has gained the respect of intelligent men, and the love of little children, who has filled his niche and accomplished his task, who has left the world better than he found it, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect peach or a rescued soul; who has never lacked appreciation of 'earth's beauty, or failed to express it, who has lived well, laughed often and loved much."—Caroline E. Bradburn, "Over the Top!"

"He whom the gods love dies young."—Virgil.

NEW LONDON, CONNECTICUT, NOVEMBER 25, 1920

MRS. FORBES-ROBERTSON HALE SPEAKS AT CONVOCATION.

Mrs. Forbes-Robertson Hale, a lecturer of well-known ability and charm, after a career of several years on the stage, took up lecturing and devoting her attention largely to poetry, drama and the woman's movement. She has talked on women suffrage in over thirty states and in August lectured for the Progressive Party. In addition to this profession, Mrs. Hale has written several books among them: "What Women Want," "The Cap and Bells," and "Little Helpers and Playmates." Last Tuesday Mrs. Hale spoke at Connecticut College on "What Will be Required of a Woman after She Leaves College."

"All of us want to be good wives and good mothers. Modern life with all (Continued on page 5, column 1.)

OVER THE TOP!

Speaking of trenches, why go to France for local color when you can get the real thing on Campus? The only details lacking to make the proper effect, are tin derbies and a first sprinkling of shell holes, a few ambulances ambling about, poke bonnets and doughnuts. Add to these a few good looking "loots," barbed wire entanglements, pitch blackness and a swirling gale of rain, and we'd have a "No Man's Land" that would make the trenches look like a hole in a ten cent piece. Needless to say that three times in one day at least, the trenches are most popular, being thronged with newly enlisted recruits, please notice the absurdity of this custom. General Regulations.

1. The names of all girls going out overnight or those coming in should be registered on the sign-up sheet.

2. After the signal for return to the building has been given, each girl is to return to her room in numerical order.

3. In case of illness of any student who could not go out for a reason without danger, the matter must be made known to the fire captain who will inform such a student if a fire drill is to be held.

4. Obey your fire captain and your side. Know the location and use of the fire apparatus in your dormitory.

5. Duties of the Student.

a. Turn out light.

b. Shut windows.

c. Leave door open.

d. Put on heavy cloak and shoes; go immediately downstairs, and out of corresponding exit.

6. Duties of Aides.

a. Be responsible for all the girls and servants in the rooms in your charge.

b. Second floor aides report to second floor to first floor aides, who, in turn, report to the fire captain of the dormitory. The fire captain of the dormitory will give the aides, upon successive drills, one can only think that the drills have been entirely forgotten. Our house drills have always been anything but successful; the New London Hall drill was worse. It seems that when one goes to the college stage, it is high time that the seriousness of drills should be realized. Why must one always "lock the stable after the horse is stolen?" Brief summary and speed are the two great essentials in a good fire drill. Know your floor aide and your drills. In New London Hall and go through it as quickly and as calmly as possible.

In the Campus houses, where the side exits are used, the girls are to come around to the front entrance and wait for the roll call before re-entering the dormitory. In New London Hall the first floor students go out through the front and back entrances; but the students on the second and third floors are to use only the fire doors—and not the wooden stairs.

There are entrances to the fire towers on the second floor, through the English office and cloack room, and on the third floor, through the German room and the Dietician's office. Please note this and use them.

The name of all girls going out overnight or those coming in should be registered on the sign-up sheet.

Duties of the Student.

1. Turn out light.

2. Shut windows.

3. Leave door open.

4. Put on heavy cloak and shoes; go immediately downstairs, and out of corresponding exit.

Duties of Aides.

1. Be responsible for all the girls and servants in the rooms in your charge.

2. Second floor aides report to second floor to first floor aides, who, in turn, report to the fire captain. R. F., College Fire Marshal.

SENIORS AT TEA.

Thursday afternoon from three to five the Seniors served tea, cake and crackers in Branford House lounge. The sale amounted to five dollars.

Each week a tea will be held in the living room of some campus house. Come early and avoid the rush for the luscious chocolate cake layer.

FOR OTHERS

The youth of this generation receive much severe criticism from their elders, for the generation before them, for a long time, has been known as the boisterous, forethoughtless and consideration for others has been almost entirely neglected. There is a right and a vast improvement on the depressed behavior of girls of our mother's day is not so evident. We are now on the trail of the evils which the last generation has done, and we are earnestly bent on study, and let everyone know that we are not a yelling, laughing mob, than a don Hall towards Chapel, resembles a group body proceeding from New London, Connecticut, August 27, 1913. Others.

FALLING LEAVES.

Leaf falling of Autumn tell
Birds scatter, and you song
Soon we'll feel chill Winter's spell
In the wintry air, and snow
Gloomy night is drawing nigh.
On the plains, wolves, prowling, roam,
Shudder, and call our names.
And call your sheep and cattle home.

G. F. 24

THEIR NOISES KNOW.

"How do you get so many girls?"
Skeptic: "O, I just sprinkle a little gasolene on my handkerchief."

"And!" he cried, as he picked up an egg from the plate stool, "the lay of the last minstrel!"

He took her rowing on the lake
She vowed she'd go no more.
I asked her why,—her answer came.
He only hugged the share."
FACULTY TENNIS.
The Women's Faculty Tennis tournament has been completed, with Miss Patton, of the Physical Education Department, as champion. The entrants in the tournament were: Dean Nye, Miss Ernst, Miss White, Miss Dickerson, Miss Allen, Miss Robinson, Miss Patton, Miss Faries, Miss Southworth, Miss Black, Miss Rector, Miss Batey, Miss Homan, Miss Walters, Dr. Todd, and Miss Lovell.
The winners of the first round were: Miss Ernst, Miss White, Miss Robinson, Miss Patton, Miss Black, Miss Rector, Miss Walters, and Dr. Todd. Miss White won from Miss Ernst and Miss Walters from Dr. Todd, by default, in the second round. Miss Patton won from Miss Robinson, with a score of 6-4, 6-0. Miss Rector won from Miss Black, with a score of 6-0, 6-1.
In the third round Miss Patton beat Miss White, with a score of 6-4, 6-1. Miss Rector won the sets with Miss Walters, with 6-1, 6-2 score.
Miss Patton and Miss Rector played off the final game, with scores of 6-3, 4-6, and 6-2 in Miss Patton's favor.

AT HOME AND ABROAD.
"Swiss hospitality shelters both King Constantine and the League of Nations, but it perhaps finds the League the 'easiest troublesome guest.'"—Springfield Republican.

DEFEAT OF WRANGLER.
The tide turned against Baron Wrangel when Trotsky's troops secured a decisive victory. This victory means that Wrangel will be forced to retire again into the Crimea. "The American Government has been approached by one of the powers, presumably France, to see if the United States would come to the aid of Wrangel by participating in a blockade of the Black Sea. Our Government has not yet com mitted but the State Department still expresses confidence in Wrangel's victory and the speedy collapse of the Soviet power."

"Ireland seems bent on being one of the United Kingdom's exiles."—Norfolk-Virginian Pilot.

FORCE FOR THE FIRST TIME.
The League of Nations is to have a military force to ensure carrying out its decisions for a force has been sent to Lithuania to maintain order and to supervise the plebiscite which the Lithuanian Government has decided shall be held in Vilna. The sending of troops is authorized under Article XI which says that "the only logical explanation of the price of coal is that the earth has begun to charge storage."—Baltimore Sun.

SEN IORS ARE HOCKEY CHAMPIONS.
The last hockey game of the season was played on Saturday afternoon, November 20th, between the Seniors and Freshmen, ending with a score of 2-0 in favor of the Seniors. The Freshmen put up a hard fight, and would probably have scored, if it had not been for the splendid work of Lydia Marvin, the senior goal keeper. Miss Marvin, undoubtedly the most efficient goal in coal, will be missed during next year's hockey season.
The Senior team work was particularly good and their quick pass from center to left inside, to left wing proved most effective. Both points scored by Dorothy Wulf, in the last quarter of play.
The line-up was as follows:

FRESHMEN
L. Ratchelder ............... G. Barnes
c. f. R. Wilson ................ M. Corneli us
R. Wulf ....... V. Eggleston, M. Higgins r. f.
R. Smith .. V. Eggleston, M. Kendall 1. w.

Mrs. Forbes-Robertson Hale Speaks at Convocation.
its complexities requires so much more of women today that it is not enough just to get a meal on the table, but we should know the food values of the constituents prepared. We should also be familiar with art and make the home a place of rest and beauty. Besides the care of the home a woman should take an interest in the affairs of her community, state and nation and now that she holds the ballot it is in her power, through co-operation and organization, to put into effect her most cherished ideas.

"How is a woman to do all this and get away with it?" The strain of the complex life is wearing on the nerves of those physically unfit. Therefore, it is the duty of every woman who wishes to meet efficiently the demands of the present day, to build up a strong, healthy constitution. Health is of primary importance. Paint is not health!1

"Clothes should be based upon the human form, and upon beauty of line and design. We are in the grip of the wholesaler and the Parisian designer, and it is only through organization that we can hope to influence the retailers not to buy extreme styles only. We want well made clothes but we shall have no time to do it ourselves. Therefore we must organize to direct tailors and modistes."

SOCIETY NOTES.
Quite a delegation of students attended the Yale-Harvard game at New Haven, Saturday. Among them were Anna Greenbaum, Betty Moyle, Claire Calen, Elizabeth Bixler, Frances Schwartz, Florence Hamitcher, Gertrude Trayfrie, Helen Hemingway, Nata Purvis, Elizabeth Irving, Clara Cooper, Ethel Ayres.

Abby Gallup, Hattie Goldman and Blanche Finneysier attended the News Conference at Goucher College, Baltimore, last week.

President E. T. Marshall and Professor Frank Morris went to the Yale-Harvard game on Saturday.

Last Tuesday night, a very unhappy accident befell one of our number. Romola Martin was walking home on the State road in company of one or two other Freshmen, was struck by a passing truck, which, although it was a Dodge, failed to live up to its name, and dodge Romola. As for her, she cannot remember anything except that in the course of time, she was revived and picked up, all intact, as far as could be ascertainment at the time. The owner of the fateful machine was most solicitous, — how could he be otherwise? And he insisted that an X-ray be taken of her head to be sure that she was all there. All of which came to pass the next day, revealing every convoluted in its rightful corner of her brain and no damage done. So Romola is resting comfortably in the infirmary, suffering only a few minor bruises and a slightly swollen and pensive head, and making fun, like a true sport, of an affair that might easily have been much more serious.

Miss Caroline Francke spent a very pleasant weekend at her home in New York.

Alice Partel honored South Glastonbury with her presence over Sunday.

And still our menagerie increases! Blackstone has added to it in the last week a young bat and an owl! "H. 171."

Lydia Jane Lord Martin '21, soloist at the First Baptist Church in New London, assisted Mr. Bush, the church organist, at a recital given in Groton on November 16th.

Verna Kentner ex-'23 was in New London last weekend.

Helen Gage '29, famous dramatic star, visited Grace Fisher last week.

Elke and Rose Doherty paid a visit to their sister Kathleen '24 on Saturday.

Julia Hawley entertained two guests from New York, over the last weekend.

Among the week-end visitors was Jean Mundie's sister, who spent some time at Connecticut.

On Saturday at four o'clock Miss McKeever entertained her Freshmen visitors at tea at her suite in Blackstone House.

Rachel Smith entertained her family Saturday night in Branford.

"All first year's Spanish Club present, was here last week-end visiting Miss Ernst.

SENIOR-JUNIOR HOCKEY.
The Senior-Junior hockey game played November 18th, was won by the team of '21. The work of Dorothy Pryde, of the Senior line, was the outstanding feature of the game. Dorothy Wulf, Ruth Wilson and Rachel Smith played well on the Senior forward line. Ruth Levine and Catharine McCarthy nobly upheld Junior prestige.

The line-up was as follows:

Senior. Junior.
L. Batchelder ............... C. McCarthy
R. Wilson ............... L. Lattes
D. Wulf ............... H. Lindvall
H. Hasle, D. Littlehales .... G. Pfeifer
B. Hall ............... R. Wulf

C. Hall ............... G. Powell, M. Dameral
L. Dickinson ............... R. Levine
A. Flaherty ............... J. Sperry
I. H. Stiches, A. Peck
Score: Seniors 4, Juniors 2. Referee Miss Ernst.
