Rost Attempts To NORML-ize Conn

by Tracy Duhamel

For the past few weeks, Brad Rost, a student member of NORML (National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws), has been trying to arrange a presentation of NORML's lecture-film program at Conn. College.

The purpose of NORML is to generate knowledge and action upon marijuana legalization and to remove all criminal and civil penalties for the private possession of marijuana for personal use.

This program entitled "Marijuana: The New Prohibition," examines the historical, medical, social, and legal aspects of marijuana consumption.

The program features an overall rundown of current progress toward decriminalization, and an analysis of the scientific research about the drug. In addition, two short films are shown: "Marijuana; Assassin of Youth," and "Highlights of Reeer arbitration." The program would be presented by NORML's legislative counsel, Frank Floriamento, Esq. The speaker would engage in discussion with .any opponent of marijuana law reform.

In order to raise funds to host this program, Rost brought the issue before Student Assembly last Wednesday. With a vote of 9-4, the request was subsequently tabled. After an undecided and four against, he was offered $200 to fund the program.

Unfortunately, the program costs $750, plus expenses. This fee, according to Mr. George Greenfield of NORML, is negotiable. Montes received the presentation of this program to help fund NORML's reform activities.

Pension Social Board approved Tracy Gilray, chairman of Social Board, has proposed to grant an additional $300 already fund NORML's program. This amount would still be inadequate, and an additional $800 is being solicited for consideration of more money for the project.

NORML was organized six years ago, and has helped to accomplish such reforms as decriminalizing marijuana in Oregon; securing substantial reduction of marijuana penalties in Texas; and filing a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the nation's marijuana laws.

They also brought legal action against the Drug Enforcement Administration demanding that marijuana be removed from the Schedule I classification. In addition, they have worked with nationally-known experts at legislative hearings.

Mellon Foundation Awards Conn $200,000.00

By Rose Ellen Santilippe

The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation has offered Connecticut College a $200,000 grant based on a proposal which was prepared by Dean of the Faculty Wayne R. Swanson, President Oakes Ames announced last Monday.

The grant will be used to strengthen general education, help expand interdisciplinary course offerings, and encourage Italian Leftists To Lecture

by Rose Ellen Santilippe

Vittorio Foa, Andrea Ginzburg, and Gian Gasconi Migone, who come out of the Italian Socialist and Catholic Left, will lecture on "Italy 1978: Communism and Capitalism" in Dana at 4:30 this afternoon.

Their lecture will not be purely of an intellectual nature, according to Robert E. Poetsor, Assistant Professor of Italian, who is one of the coordinators of their U.S. speaking tour.

"They've come to America to present another Chile. With the Communists already in the national government — albeit indirectly — and the Left as a whole stronger than ever at the electoral level: Foa, Ginzburg, and Migone hope to establish contacts here, both within the American political establishment and outside of it, which might be useful in maintaining some sort of joint control from both sides of the Atlantic, in the U.S. interest in Italian internal affairs," Poetsor stated, mentioning that a new disclosure in Congress of CIA activities in Italy as a step in this direction.

Poetsor said that he was recently contacted by one of Jimmy Carter's foreign policy advisors who wanted to arrange a meeting between Foa, Ginzburg, and Migone, and members of the Carter foreign policy staff.

"Despite the campaign rhetoric, the Cold War is over," Poetsor observed. "The problem for American capitalists is deciding whether or not they have the interests and investments are better served by letting Communist parties enter coalition governments in Italy, France, and Spain."

"For American leftists, of course, the question is whether or not these parties will favor or impede a move toward socialism in Southern Europe. We are particularly interesting to hear what Foa, Ginzburg, and Migone have to say about this," Poetsor added, "since they speak to the Left of the Italian Communist Party," he added.

Vittorio Foa is a well-known union leader and political activist in Italy. A member of the Constituent Assembly in 1946-47, he helped write the present Constitution of the Italian Republic.

Foa was one of the National Secretaries of the CIGL, Italy's largest trade union, from 1968-79 with a brief interruption as General Secretary of the FIOM, the metalworkers' union within the CIGL.

Foa was a member of the Political Bureau, or governing body, of the Parti di Unità Proletaria per il comunismo (PDUP), which is one of the major new Left parties in Italy.

Foa now teaches labor economics at the University of Turin. He is the author of several studies on the history of the Italian working class movement and movement.

Andrea Ginzburg teaches economics at the University of Modena, where he is a member of a group of well-known radical political economists. Gian Gasconi Migone received his M.A. from Harvard and is Associate Professor of American History at the University of Turin. He was born in Stockholm, Sweden. The son of a former Italian ambassador to Vatican, Migone was one of the founders of the MFI, a party of the Catholic Left.

Migone is a member of the Political Bureau of PDUP and the author of numerous studies on the relations between the United States and Italy in the fascist and post-fascist periods.

In addition to Connecticut College, their speaking tour includes Harvard, Brown, Yale, Columbia and Johns Hopkins universities, as well as meetings with workers and political activists in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York, and Washington, D.C.

"Palmer Slated To Become Academic Center"

by Vikki Fitzgerald

The Board of Trustees announced its decision to turn the old administration building into an academic building, that the new library is finished and the Alumni is providing it a success are over.

The alternatives were: a centralized dining hall; an academic building, which could include the Alumni Office, bookshop, and print shop.

John Delmol, director of development, said that the principal reason for the decision was that students did not want to walk far for meals on cold days in the library. Also, no one could think of another use for Harris Refectory if it were closed down.

There will be an all-campus study space to find out which department's needs and priorities. One important consideration is that last summer the building was used by the departments and Development Committees to see what is most feasible and least used.

Two departments ardently competing for space are the fine arts and the history department. Theater wants a movie theater in Palmer, and Dance would like a studio with wooden floors to eliminate injuries the dancers have received from dancing on concrete.

One member of the faculty said that the move from the dance studio would disturb faculty and students. President Ames suggested that giving the dance studio in the west wing of the lowest level in Palmer might be a solution. But added that architectural advice would be needed before making a final decision.

LeRoy Knight, Treasurer of Connecticut College, estimated the cost of renovating the library at $1,500,000. This would include architectural fees, construction, and furniture.

The renovation of Palmer will not begin until the new of the new library is paid for, and until donations for remodeling Palmer are received. Knight said, "It is likely that we will be starting construction this year."

President Ames would "like to see us break ground this spring," but agreed that plans would have to be delayed until the college receives a donation. He said that there are numerous foundations who would be willing to give grants for remodeling purposes. These foundations, he said, are more willing to give money for remodeling than for constructing a new building.

Meanwhile, it appears that the relations between the city of Clinton and Downtown may be left standing for use as an alumni headquarters, or for student activities.
Ritter vs. Gilday vs. PUNDIT

(Round Two)

Dear Pundit,

It is with a mixture of sadness, regret, and yes, disgust, that I find it necessary to address you in your editorial Work. Together in which you describe the "recent rift between members and organizations of the College Community over the planned Billy Joel concert."

First, the facts. I was approached by Mr. Ritter shortly before the College Council meeting of September 23 to discuss the proposed concert. He was told that in order to obtain Social Board endorsement he would have to run an all-campus poll. The purpose behind such a poll is to be able to roughly determine the amount of Connecticut College students who will actually buy tickets to a performance at any given time. In the case of Billy Joel, a poll was imperative because of the extremely high cost involved. Mr. Ritter refused to do it, and thus Social Board would not, and could not, endorse the proposal. The September 30 issue of the Pundit, in the article "Ode to Billy Joel" states that, "Because College Council will not approve the appropriation before any telegram could be sent, and because of the time element involved, the $5,000 request was brought before Council last week without any availability from the Social Board." This statement is erroneous. As previously stated, the lack of endorsement was due to a lack of cooperation on Mr. Ritter's part, and not because of the time element involved. Furthermore, this same article states that, according to Mr. Ritter, "he did not seek Social Board support because he doesn't agree with Social Board Chair Tracy Gilday's attitude toward handling a concert." Mr. Ritter did in fact seek Social Board's support initially, but he was refused.

Mr. Ritter next went before the College Council to present his proposal in order to obtain a $3,500 loan and $2,000 gift from the Special Projects fund. I was called upon to explain Social Board's position in the matter, and then discussion was turned over to the College Council as a whole. As stated in the "Ode to Billy Joel", Mr. Ritter's request was denied on view of the tremendous amount of money involved and the possibility of real financial failure such as that which we have witnessed with past concerts on this campus. The confrontation which occurred during this session of College Council was not pleasant, but the result was nevertheless democratically conclusive. Mr. Ritter's proposal was refused. Period. He could have tried again. He did not. Our Student Government Association must, and will work in this manner until the college community, with the use of its elected representatives, decides if such a council is necessary. Social Board works along the democratic principle imposed by the SGA. The decisions made are not my own. As a Board, comprised of dorm representatives, class representatives, and Umoe, we vote with quorum on whatever decisions must be made. Therefore, I feel that the Editorial Board of the Pundit is gravely at fault in stating that "Social Board would be more flexible and democratic." The Social Board is as flexible and democratic as any organization on this campus, and I challenge the Pundit to find any flaws in its machinery.

TO THE EDITORS:

The September 30 editorial that week certainly seemed to sum up the real problem involved in bringing a concert, or any other novel event, to this campus. There are too many egos (mine included) and too little cooperation in almost every aspect of this being as it is, I never feel it my responsibility to personally stick my neck out in order to correct certain matters which have been raised by both your editorial and my own column this week's article on the concert.

Why did I not go through the Social Board? Last year, Buzz Baer and myself were co-chairpersons of a sub-committee organized and ran two successful concerts on this campus. However, last Spring I was informed that the new Social Board and/or the new Social Chairman Student Government Association would assume the entire responsibility of doing the time consuming and involved work. The Concert Sub-Committee had been dissolved. As a member of the new Social Board, I did not then, and cannot now, understand how the Board can refuse to do both that and its usual cumbersome duties.

I also found it my experience and expertise, however limited, were not especially welcome by the Board. While my word is certainly less than law, I found last Spring that my ideas were generally ignored. For whatever reason, then I made my mind up then to try alternative methods of using my privilege to benefit the community; from what I could gather, if I wanted to use it, I would not be able to do so on Social Board.

About your figures on the funding of this concert: I asked College Council for a gift of $2000. This is $1100 less than I asked for, and received from them last year. The purpose of the money was not to allow the concert to happen per se, but to allow me to offer Billy Joel to the Connecticut College community. In effect, I was asking the Council to let me use the student money for a discount, a refund of the $5,000 fee, if you will. When my request was denied, I found enough students who were concerned enough to lend me the money so I could A) have the concert and B) give the students a break.

The figure of $5000 or so which you mention is not what I asked College Council for. I asked for the previously mentioned $2000 as a gift and a loan of $5000. The loan, which has always been granted, is usually paid back by the end of the first week of ticket sales. In the future, that will be by the first week in November. The $8,706 represents the entire amount of money which is being covered by WCN'T's non-sports fund, as well as by the money I was lent by the students.

Contrary to popular belief, I did not ever appear before the Social Board with a proposal for this concert. I was approached by Mr. Ritter and voted not to support this concert after having heard about it from the College Council. Moreover, I was not even aware enough to present the matter properly. Because of the shortness of time and invention in continued on page four

GRE SCHEDULED FOR OCTOBER 16

Seniors scheduled to take the Graduate Record Exam at Connecticut College on October 16 are advised that the exam will start at Harris Refectory (use Lambdin entrance) rather than at Thames as originally scheduled. Please report for the examination promptly at the scheduled hour.

Students who registered with ETS for the GRE at Connecticut College, who have not yet received their GRE ticket of admission from ETS should report this information to the Graduate Studies Office on Friday before noon. Check your Friday morning mail before reporting to the Graduate Studies Office.

Students reporting failure to receive the GRE ticket should supply the Graduate Office with the following information: Name, examinations applied for, birth date, amount of fee paid, proof of registration (if available, such as canceled check), and date application submitted to ETS.

This information will be reported to ETS early Friday afternoon. Instructions received from ETS at that time will be posted outside the Graduate Studies Office.

ATTENTION CLASS OF 1977: All those desiring their pictures to appear in KOINE '77 must submit a 5x7 glossy to Jane Whitehead, Box 1834, before Oct. 29. Only 5x7 glossies will be printed. Late submissions will not be included.

Self-nominations for two freshman Judiciary Board Reps open Thurs. Oct. 21 at 9:00 a.m. to Mon. Oct. 25 at 5:00 p.m. No more than one double spaced typed page of information or philosophy to be submitted. Send to pointing to Graduate Office with the following information: Name, examinations applied for, birth date, amount of fee paid, proof of registration (if available, such as canceled check), and date application submitted to ETS.

The Judiciary Board met on Wednesday, October 6, 1976, to discuss violations of the Academic Honor Code. The Board voted to have the following appear in print to clear up misunderstandings about what exactly constitutes a violation of the Academic Honor Code as regards discussion during exam times. Obvious violations (e.g. plagiarism, giving exams out of centers without authority) are well known and any specific questions may be directed to the chairman of J.B.
1. There may be some discussion about the nature of the exam, i.e. form and content.
2. No discussion may take place about the difficulty of the exam relative to other exams given by the professor at any time. Such discussion does constitute a violation of the Academic Honor Code.

The Judiciary Board recognizes the fact that students tend to discuss the degree of difficulty of exams. J.B. wishes to warn students that such discussion may alter the preparation of students who have yet taken the exam.

This policy is that of the 1976-1977 Judiciary Board and is subject to change after the expiration of this board's term.
Reflections On The Pragmatic

By Jan Herder

It is altogether remarkable that within the American community students with interests and passions as far separate as medicine, engineering, or music live together in apparent harmony. The greatest conflict would seem to be that between the golfer and the flag-football player over the field. But I often wonder if the harmony and annulleness is not rather a messianism and symptom of a complete lack of interaction between the various disciplines and pursuits.

Yes, the American college, and especially our own Connecticut College, runs the serious risk of atomizing itself into a conglomeration of mutually apathetic if not hostile monads. There is no sense of being growing daily on the horizon an institution which transcends this territoriality and subsumes it towards the atomizing — the pragmatic and the practical. The practical is the divine calling of modern man and permits him to keep his facades of existence. It is the end to which we subordinate our lives. And it may be the closest thing to a god we know.

The power of this god is manifest in the question which is on everyone's lips: "What are you going to do with your education?" It is as if we were radically incomplete, half-formed, on-born if unable to answer it. For if you don't know what you are going to do, if you don't know your proper calling, your proper cabbie-hole, you run the risk of drifting aimlessly in this world without a purpose.

What could be more terrifying, then, in our society to find an education that stands at level of material gain. Dedication means such a thing ultimately, for profit. If the cause of humanities benefits in the process, well, so much the better. Thus the hard working, goal directed, pre-this and pre-that student of our new library day and day-out. This attitude could be likened to a horse with blinders, to keep him on the right path. But blindered thus by the delfar we shall certainly be run aground.

My intent here is not to criticize any one discipline or major. What seems to need to be examined, at this level of one's education. For the logical terminus of specialization is, of knowing absolutely everything about absolutely nothing. The specialist becomes a "husar". And it may well be that such a phenomenon pragmatic individual will end up unable to cash-in on his rewards because he knows all but his specialty he awake to find that he was no longer living in a democracy.

The so-called unpragmatic person, on the other hand, may appear as the moronic, as his specialty is at hand, may appear as the most pragmatic, at this level of one's education. For the logical terminus of specialization is, of knowing absolutely everything about absolutely nothing. The specialist becomes a "husar". And it may well be that such a phenomenon pragmatic individual will end up unable to cash-in on his rewards because he knows all but his specialty he awake to find that he was no longer living in a democracy.

And so when someone asks the "great question" reply simply that you are not sure; reply that you are concentrating on "getting your education before you decide what you are going to do with it. Even at twenty-one one can be an expert and a beginner. It is appropriate, I think, to end with a quotation from Hawthorne's man's bewilderment is a measure of this wisdom."

Chaplain Robb Offers Some Thoughts On Berrigan's Visit

Chaplain Robb told us the power of death takes control of us when the odds seem too great so that no action seems possible. But when we face a situation is "Will it be effective?" or "Will it work?" rather than "Is it right?" then we make conscience bondage to our limited notions of success. The faculty of moral imagination is a form of death. Therefore choose life.

Berrigan recalled again the very tangible possibility to the power of death that informs this nation's nuclear strategy. When we can speak as blithely of a tolerable level of megadeaths in a "limited nuclear war," we speak of a reality known only in this past Friday's New York Times underscored the point in the findings of the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute's report "Armanent Great Powers: The Nuclear Age." According to the report, within nine years 25 countries will have atomic weapons and because of differing levels of nuclear sophistication, will be able to make war. But in a world that has lost touch with the poetry of our origins, the vast power of death can captivate us in any international Peace Research Institute's report "Armanent Great Powers: The Nuclear Age." According to the report, within nine years 25 countries will have atomic weapons and because of differing levels of nuclear sophistication, will be able to make war.

Honesty And Candor?

By Patty McGowan

Has the American public decided that it really is not ready for candor and honesty from its government officials and candidates? It seems that with the onslaught of criticism concerning Jimmy Carter's remarks made recently in a Playboys magazine media criticism of Nelson Rockefeller's gestures made to a group of hecklers; shock ex-pressed openly about Betty Ford's and Mrs. Carter's remarks about their families and the general disgust with any honest remark concerning a candidate's personal life, seems to be getting everywhere. It seems that we don't want to know about our government officials' lives.

Perhaps because we are suddenly faced with a new precedent, namely that frank and open remarks aren't used to the idea. However surprising, it does appear to be a good idea philosophy.
Round 3

Letter to the Editor:

It’s time for my bi-annual letter, and I would like to comment on the second issue of Social Board. It seems to me that if Social Board does not want to risk $5,000 for a concert, the only reasonable explanation is that Connecticut College concerts don’t make money, nor should they be required to, but $5,000 is a lot of money to tie up in a single event. Why should Social Board be required to delegate all authority to Mr. Ritter just because he’s had previous experience? It’s our college, and we don’t recall Mr. Ritter’s election to Social Board.

Mr. Ritter is already in a position of authority as General Manager and Vice-President of WCN, and he has already proven his lack of maturity to handle this responsibility. He exhibited his executive capabilities when he demonstrated his lack of understanding in a serious news broadcast and juvenile side commentaries. It is quite obvious that you understand that the concert is on, and I hope it is successful, but let’s not be angry at Social Board for asking Mr. Ritter to be fiscally responsible with our funds.

Sincerely yours,
David McLaughlin

Not So Bad
To the Editor,

Since I am a member of the class of 78 this school year is the third in which I have had the dubious honor of reading Ms. Kingsley’s commentaries. They are not as objectionable as the contributive critiques of Conn. College. My pen can sit idle no more than the time it takes to write this letter, for this semester, so it takes a while for PUNDIT to reach me.

I agree with Ms. Kingsley that Conn. has its faults. However, this year is clearly better even than the previous two. Conn. is comprised of mere humans, and as any zoology major will tell you, the species is imperfect. I want it to be made clear that Conn. does not have a monopoly on problems when it comes to small liberal arts schools in the Northeast. It is because this fact is often forgotten, and almost always acknowledged, that I write to you.

I am on exchange, for the fall term, to Williams College. Having been here for over a month I have witnessed some of the problems that are so often heard about on campus. Any problems on which too many Conn. students seem to think Conn. has a monopoly are the market. Not soon after my arrival I noticed long registration lines, even though Williams was only half the size of the market. The process of making sure that all of the bills have been paid, schedule verification, etc., is not a quick one. Lines for books were very long and equally as slow moving. As far as campus security goes, I have seen a security car but twice in the past month, and I am not recalling seeing a security person out of a security car. The doors to the dorms are locked, and I would recall seeing a security person out of a security car.

It’s time for my bi-annual letter, and I would like to comment on the second issue of Social Board. It seems to me that if Social Board does not want to risk $5,000 for a concert, the only reasonable explanation is that Connecticut College concerts don’t make money, nor should they be required to, but $5,000 is a lot of money to tie up in a single event. Zimmermen On Floor

I think that a newspaper, college or otherwise liability devoted to providing appropriate, useful, and fun forums and a waste of good wood pulp. Yet this concern is not regularly paid regard to the section of this college that I serve, that I feel obliged to challenge the remarks which have been made. In my six years at Conn. I have as other members of our physical education staff participated in the genetis of the department into what it is today. We’ve done this not to satisfy our egos but to answer the expressed needs of the students and their immediate predecessors. During this time the College emerged as a true coeducational institution.

At different times in my career here I have taught, coached, or supervised all of the following: swimming, diving, tennis, golf, physical education, wilderness programs, as well as advanced gymnastics offerings. I’ve coached the first Conn soccer team, cross country team, men’s basketball, as well as the gymnastics teams. I’ve supervised and brought into existence men’s intramural programs - flag football, intramural basketball, intramural softball, and the “Turkey Trot.” I’ve supervised the early development of men’s education and athletics. The building was not designed for these purposes nor will any further amount of “square pegging in round holes” accomplish the task.

We are a coeducational institution, we have been so for seven years. Yet, planning for the changes and needs for a coeducational institution has not moved beyond piece-meal innovations with the existing facility stage of development towards this end. In terms of the physical education department and I suspect many other departments, coeducation is not an accomplished fact.

All that our department asks, what we have submitted to the President, is an immediate, year by year, long range plan to be established now and to be enacted accordingly. We do this to stay in an increasingly competitive business. We do it foremost to serve our constituents, the student body and the college community. We have no other vested interests than these. I think that it is time for some members of the faculty and some students got behind us for a change. We want you to know the facts of our departmental goals and in subsequent articles, will enlighten you of them. If you have any questions—ASK, don’t just criticize.

your regattas to come to our school. We will provide you with a grandstand, with a full-service function. your article, I was unable to go before the entire Board to straighten out the misconceptions about that concert. Instead, I tried to have lunch with Groober. She stood me up and I had to go to Council without her support, something I did not wish to do. Because of what happened at Council that afternoon, Ms. Gilday is under the impression that I am conducting some sort of holy war as a personal vendetta. I would like to apologize if I gave her that impression. I was, and still am, upset with the job the students elected officials were doing for the students. However, this in no way should be taken personally by anyone, including Groober.

Be all of this as it may, I hope that I have cleared up this matter a bit. The Treasurer of the College, Mr. Knight, has reviewed the contracts and, after we discussed them, signed them. I have told that now Social Board has decided to re-establish the Concert Committee. Today, we can all throw off all of the bad feeling that has emerged and work together. Ms. Gilday and her chairperson will observe us and work with us on Billy Joel so that we can provide some good shows for this campus in the spring.

Attention!

Sometimes this month the Trident submarine's keel will be laid. The exact date has been withheld because of controversial issues surrounding this event. The Trident will be the most destructive weapon in history. The cost of the total program is now placed at a minimum of forty billion dollar. The Trident submarine will be larger then a destroyer. They are almost two football fields long (five-hundred and sixty feet) and almost four stories high. They will weigh 18,706 tons. Thirty are presently planned by the Navy. Tridents will carry 24 missiles, each with 17 warheads. The first Trident will be operational in 1979; there will be one made each of eight months following 1979. One Trident submarine therefore will be capable of destroying 44 cities or other targets with a nuclear blast 3-5 times the one that incinerated Hiroshima. Enough with the figures and now we speak to your heart. What can you do to prevent this monster?

1. Write to Senator Weicker, Representative of Connecticut, speaking directly on this issue expressing your feelings and beliefs. They really do count.
2. THE PEACE CENTER is presently an active student group on campus organizing meetings to discuss the nature and direction that the students of Connecticut College should take in voting opposition to this forthcoming act of nuclear escalation. After October break there will be in full swing look for signs and articles from this group. Join us and Help us!
3. Contact the Asia Peace Community, P.O. 685 New London, Conn. 06320.
4. Make a commitment the channels are open.

It is each person's responsibility to take a stand on this issue. Please come to the next meeting of the Peace Center which will be announced shortly (tentatively Thurs. Oct. 21, 7:00 p.m. Windham). Keep your eyes and hearts open and we can all work together, become informed together, and act together against the monster Trident submarine and its many off-shoots that live right next door to each one of you. The time has arrived to put our education into practical channels for the benefit of mankind. The reality is, there is no guilt. The apathy is the crime that allows this submarine to survive, its end must be now.

A hydrogen bomb has been ticking and is about to go off in your backyard. Let's get together and do something about it. Signed Consortium will hopefully serve two ends. It will be for the art department's artistic audience which will in turn, ideally attract more attention to it as the only modern art "museum" in the state. The department is in need of growth and the administration may present items and services to be gavelled off, with proceeds going toward a special book fund for the library, the senior class gift, and future scholarships.

If you have an idea for a donation, any Friedlander is running the show. Her phone is 442-8001, or P.O. Box 40, and she lives in Freeman. She also enjoys skiing, swimming, and folk fights.

About the auction itself — you can bid either by yourself or in a group. Groups who plan on bidding for the premier events, such as dinner for twelve with some faculty member, should probably organize prior to the auction. For instance, the Young Republicans plan to bid on the champagne for two, "to be served in the style of the leisure class."

Rumor has it that Punkit staff may once again try for breakfast with the Ames"; Bohonan et. al. are again scheming for the Highest cans trip to Shades of Deliverance there. Coach Wyn of tennis fame is offering X19 golf kisses Off one night rental of his old varsity sweater suitable for picking up girls with. Some member of the tennis team will offer lessons, but you'll have to outbid Greg (Wazoo).

One final note, Don't be bashful in bidding. Like your milk and cookies with the Deans went for hundreds, while a privately attended bubble bath for one (or two) with a massage and wine went for peanuts because no one would bid their hand. I'll take the latter anybody. Be brave — who knows, you might end up in the tub with some Dean. And tell me that won't help your transcript.

Campus Day

by J. Cooper

Remember senior year in high school — deciding which colleges to apply to and finally which one to attend?

The Admissions Office established a program in 1972 to help lure undecided students to Conn. College.

Campus Day, one feature of the program, was organized this year by Jane Breeden, an admissions officer, and Patricia Flemion, a junior. Students from various high schools in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and New York were invited to spend Monday, Oct. 11, 1972.

Over 100 students and 30 parents showed up. The day included campus tours, panel discussions, and lunch in the dormitories.

Prospective students had the opportunity to meet informally with faculty members and students, beside meeting with people from the Admissions Office.

As Jane Breeden says, "Students learn the best about a college from the people who are there. It is one of the best ways to talk about a college."

Discussions in the panels in the morning were on the following topics: "Academic Life", led by Dean Telleenne and Dean Curley; "Admissions", led by Jan Hersey and Patience Fleming; and "Social Life", led by Connie Sokalsky and Ann Rumsey.

Lunch followed in the dormitories and more discussion panels were held in the afternoon with Dean Swanson leading "Academic Life", Ron Ancrum leading "Admissions", and Charles Luce, leading "Athletics".

Campus tours were given throughout the day, Patience Flemion argues that the role of student guides, "It's important to get tour guides who are positive, who know the campus fairly well. If we can attract people who might otherwise go to Trinity or Brown or another competitor, all the better. Personally, I think the student body here is one of the best group of people in the country."

Some prospective students also took advantage of the Overnight Program and stayed with people in Burdick Monmouth.

Recently Student Government passed a proposal that dorm vice-presidents are responsible for seeing that arrangements are made for such guests.

Next year the proposal will become effective. For the remainder of this year, the job will be voluntary.

According to the Admissions Office, inquiries about the school have increased over the past few years. Last year there were 2,300 applicants for 440 places; the number of prospective students is at least equal.

The second Campus Day is planned for sometime in April, and it will be directed primarily at students who have been accepted to Conn. A two-week open house period is scheduled so that prospective students can attend classes and talk to people.

Both Ms. Breeden and Ms. Flemion feel the program has been successful. They attribute this mainly to the helpfulness of students who have volunteered their services.
Ace Critic Jordan Finds Going Up ‘Thoroughly Entertaining’

by David Jordan

“Going Up,” a Broadway musical comedy revived this season after a break of almost 60 years, is light, funny, whimsical and thoroughly entertaining. As T.E. Kalem wrote in Newsweek recently, it is “a post-World War I-let play.”

This restored antique, then, is about a man who appears to be a famous aviator-turn-writer. As might be expected, the writer, Robert Street (played by Brad Blaisdell), can’t even fly a kite, much less one of those new-fangled aeroplanes.

Challenged to an aerial contest against a dashing French ace, Street cringes, argues, finally accepts and wins. The prize: a complete the-fairy-tale setting, is a blonde Grace Douglas (Kimberly Farr), daughter of a lucky gambler.

Perhaps the only real problem with the show is that it is campy. The one-liners and witty-question-and-answer routines are almost too clever. Some of the songs are more than a little syrupy.

But, let that not discourage anyone who likes to go to the theatre. The plot is enjoyable, the acting fine overall and the song-and-dance numbers cute.

Brad Blaisdell, the male lead, was very believable in this, his Broadway debut, playing the airdrome instructor trying to attract the equality-plane switchboard operator Miss Zonze (Pat Lyanser). A snappy, agile dance number (“Every Body Ought to Know the Tickle Toe”) with the whole cast on stage, rhythmically stamping feet, clapping hands, singing as smiling, the audience was able to appreciate and enjoy what Ronn Robinson called “...some of the great euphoria and excitement of the times...”

Ronn Robinson led the performance of “Down, Up, Left, Right” and accompanied the lyrics with some marvelous charades, joining Street and two others in imitating an airplane zipping through the clouds. “My Samarum Girl,” again sung by Robinson, was hilarious in its ad-lib treatment of the dumpy instructor trying to attract the equality-plane switchboard operator Miss Zonze (Pat Lyanser).

All of that, was the snappy, agile dance number “(Every Body Ought to Know the Tickle Toe)” with the whole cast on stage, rhythmically stamping feet, clapping hands, singing as smiling, the audience was able to appreciate and enjoy what Ronn Robinson called “...some of the great euphoria and excitement of the times...”

Take a break soon and see “Going Up.” You’ll leave with a smile and half-a-dozen tunes you’ll be humming for days after.

Conn. College Joins Consortium Of The Arts

by See Metheo

The Connecticut Consortium of the Arts or, as it is more commonly known, Art Rehearsal, is a newly founded collective of college art departments and art co-operatives from throughout the state. Included in the collective as well, are museums, craft organizations and the like. The consortium’s concern is the exchange and circulation of art exhibits throughout Connecticut.

The objective is to expose the artist’s work to a wider range of audience and at the same time, expose the public to a broader range of art. While the struggling artist is allowed professional exposure, the average eye is artistically enlightened.

Connecticut College’s participation as a member of the consortium, provides the art department with the opportunity to engage in this reciprocal exchange of artwork. Their involvement allows them to book in outside exhibits as well as send some of their own work on the road. The department’s concern is the exchange and circulation of art exhibits throughout Connecticut.

College To Shoot-up For Swine Flu

The only requirements for a shot are a signature on a consent form and the reading of swine flu information. There is a slight chance a follow-up vaccination will be necessary if the flu actually hits.

"There may not be any swine flu epidemic," explained Dr. Frederick R. McKeenan, Director of Student Health Services, "but no one can predict. It is better to be prepared and get the shot, rather than risk getting swine flu," he continued.

This strain of flu is probably no more serious than any other, but it has not been seen in humans for over 60 years. Therefore no one has any immunity to it.

This Federally subsidized program should only take 15 minutes per person. A later time will be offered for those unable to go next Friday.

Yahia, the reincarnation of temls man. Regardless of sexual tendencies, Yahia proved an awesome display of serve with an awesome display of serve with an awesome display of serve with no volley. There is no truth to the rumor that John Kosa, who won his match in straight sets, checks his racquets into the infirmary at night. The most exciting singles match of the day was taken by Larry Yahia who knocked out the 6-4, 7-6 (5/4 tiebreaker) win.

Moving to doubles, the match score stood at 6-2, with Yahia needing just one more win to sew up the victory. Coach Wynne Bohonnon was so sure of the triumph that he went home to feed his dog. The deciding point of the match was taken by the team of Wolfe-Kossa 6-3, 6-2.

On their home courts last Friday, the Men's Tennis Team ran its season record to 3-0 with a 7-2 trouncing of Gordon College. Under threatening skies, the Camels roared off to an early lead and never looked back as in the past, lengthy, voluminous speeches and hot air. All challenges and acceptances should be forwarded to Box No. 99.

The Connecticut College Law Club announces the formation of a debate forum for the community. The forum will, we hope, be used to discuss issues which are current in the national, local, and college arenas. The Law Club wishes to offer its services at a rate of $25 for debate preparation, arranging and publicizing debates which will inform on problems and possible solutions. We welcome challenges from all members of the college community and will use our own resources to arrange some of the debates ourselves in the interest of the college community. Challenges for debate will be accepted only in writing, designating the topic, individual or group challenged; the challenged will then submit a written acceptance of the challenge and these will be presented to PUNDIT and printed. Unsolicited challenges will also be printed with an accompanied note stating that no acceptance was submitted. The College can use the forum to illuminate issues in a concise and fair way for both sides of the issues involved, and avoid as in the past, lengthy, voluminous speeches and hot air. All challenges and acceptances should be forwarded to Box No. 99.

Freeman's Tom Deeny throws pass over top green

by Cubbette, Bear is on vacation

Games of the week: This past week the Camels had two away games. In the first one versus a strong Western New England club they lost 0-1. It was a game which saw the Camels, under the always ex-FU coaching of Mark Warren (lifetime coaching record 94-5), playing uninspiring soccer and falling behind 1-0. Then, however, they came to life for the first time and scored on a Perry pass to Bear, and narrowly missed three more goals by shots of Case, Perry and Clark. It was, on the whole, a disappointing game highlighted by the suicide play of Carter, Behrens's yellow card, and Currier's exclusion. The Mystery of the week — Dinner in Crimes — has been put on hold because of the first one. Meanwhile, in an exciting game, the boys from Conn won 3-1. Losaria summed up the action: "great job by McNamara in the nets and the defense of Parsons, Roosevelt, McKee and Smith; a lot of rain; a simply excellent puddle shot for a goal by Perry; more rain; a Shasha blast for another goal; Behrens all wet; and even more rain." Bus ride back — beer, mix ... buzz, Howie smilling, more biz ... buzz, not having to change in the bus like on the trip up. Litwin's jokes, Losaria's jokes, but omnipresent was biz-buzz games.

Quotes of the week
Bill Farrar about John Perry, "he's a very physical guy, he never stops teaching me."
Coach Losaria to Hugo Smith in practice, "Don't think Hugo, you're dangerous when you think."

Quid Section

Is Clyde McKee, in actuality, an enemy foreign agent sent here to kill? Is Bill Losaria, despite his deceptive appearance, an ex-marine known for his Spartian-like toughness? Is Tree Anderson, in real life, not that debonair sophomore we all know but a post-graduate from Yale here to study the psychosomatics of Conn athletes?

Player of the Week

PETE GALE — This phenomenon of the field has truly exhibited poetry in motion as he has cut and twisted his way through even the tightest defenses over the past two and one-half seasons. He was the premier running-back for Morrisson last year and is again one of the main reasons why Morrisson is in first place this week. His uncanny ability to stop dead, change direction, and continue his run, astonishing without acceleration, has consistently mystified the experts. Unfortunately, it's fatuous to ask for an autograph, since Pete isn't allowed near sharp implements.

Morrison Machine Surge To Top Of North Division

by Bill and Happy Lonox

When you think about it, what would be considered a highlight in life? Being your girlfriend? No really, how can any of these measure up to pulling together to form the winning team? Flag football dominates the recreational recesses of many among us. Almost every team, whether hang-overs, our guads, our down and outs (our slant-ins, for that matter). Perhaps Mom and Dad don't want to hear about it but Suzy Creamcheese gets off on it.

While Freeman and Harkness figure to be "the powers," during playoff time, the North Division is shaping up as the most exciting and evenly balanced division. A more interesting factor the first four places are as Morrison, K.B., Hamilton, and Lambdin figure to fight for the top spot in the playoff berth. Park and Marshall, while not in contention for the playoff spots, are still filling the role of "spoilers" as they prove themselves capable of upsetting any of the other North Division teams.

Friday 4:30 Eastern Time (2:30 Mountain Time) pitted Blunt and McMarshall and 8:30 Freeman and Harkness and neither Blunt nor Harkness saw any smiles. Blunt got some legislation through to ban Peter from the competition between Freeman, a pass to Peter that sailed, and waltzed in two more steps up and go traffic. Offensively outstanding, in addition, were Michael "Gate-Spiller" Ganley as blocking-back and Frisky Fiskio who romped down the sideline for a 50 yard score. While Captain Squid and finally Mark Petzing has been helping coach the athletes? · t

Monday, as usual, following a period of rain, Bob Dawley, Physical Plant's man in charge of outdoor maintenance was lining Methodist's and Harwood Fields. Dawley has been at this chore for years and is perhaps the most giving extension of the Athletic Department. Along with lining the fields Dawley is always at work keeping the fields in good condition, resodding the goalmouth when it is needed and coming to the rescue when the field needed to be relined for the night soccer game.

Scott Masner is another of the department's unappreciated. Masner, a sophomore is acting as the school's trainer. He is always on call and is continually taping ankles, and still has time for football himself. Several more people deserve thanks. Among them Al Goodwin for his ever popular scoreboard. Now if he can only stay sober long enough to work it. Mark Warren, a '75 graduate, has started the ball rolling in an attempt to get an IFA (International Frisbee Association) and has organized several Ultimate games on South Campus. Finally Mark Pagent has been helping coach the Women's Volleyball Team. He is doing this for no compensation and deserves a great deal of recognition for that. Special thanks go out to the Secretary of Ohio State for making us for UConn, our own Carol Smith would love to do that.

Marge Howes is taking over for Miss Conkin as Women's Basketball Coach. All of us here at PUNDIT are hoping Mike Shainulin is feeling better following his operation. Shainulin is an integral part of the intramural program here and the seasons just aren't the same without him there.

Numerous events are coming up in the near future. This Sunday the crew Team lost by hard-working Ric Ricci is rowing in the Head of the Charles Regatta. The first Conn boat to go off will be the Women's Four at 10:25 a.m. All of you who live in the Boston area would be appreciated as spectators. On December 3 and 4 the Southern Annual Wabler City Open will be held. Teams entered this year in one of the two tournaments hosted by Conn are Clark, Babson and Coast Guard. Coaches Lewis and Bray will be looking forward to the tough competition. The other tournament is a volleyball clash on November 20 between Holy Cross, Assumption and New Haven. Finally, second semester numerous one-on-one and two-on-two hoop charmers will be held, the highlight of which will be the mixed two-on-two. Pick your partner now — Georgette is asking for $30 plus fringe benefits. Choose now before the asking price goes up. Incidentally, the Supreme Court has ruled all players free agents. This is Kratz speaking on sports and have a helluva good vacation.
