New Appointments Made to Editorial Staff of C.C. News

News has announced three new appointments to the editorial staff. Bryna Samuels '46, Shirley Armstrong '43, and Bernice Riesner '45 have been named to key positions on the staff.

Bernice Samuels, who will succeed Bernice Riesner '45 as managing editor, served as a reporter on the staff because she is accelerated in her studies. Bernice Armstrong, who has contributed to the paper for the past two years, will sing in the Christmas Caroling service. She will sing alone a Choral of Bach, O Tannenbaum, and a Cantata: Jingle Bells, and Christmas Carol. The quartet under the direction of Elizabeth Travis '44, the faculty pageant advisor, will sing Lo How a Rose E'er Bearer on December 8, 1943.

Shirley Armstrong succeeds Trudy Woolston '44 as feature editor. She will concentrate on the Christmas theme this year and will be put up in all houses so that girls may sign up. Ethel Feinne '44, Jane Dill '44, and Dorothy Raymond '44 are co-chairmen of the pageant. All others are assigned to chairs under the direction of the choir. The recording committee, which includes the faculty, is in charge of this years pageant. The pageant will go on from November 25 to December 1.

Pageant Committees

The faculty pageant advisors are Miss Margaret Ginn, Mr. Robert Logan and Mr. Irving Caine. The faculty pageant advisor, the committee and the pageant are composed of the following staff: Ethel Feinne '44, Jane Dill '44, and Dorothy Raymond '44. The pageant begins at 8 p.m. at candlelit dinners or before the Yule log in the communal hearth. The pageant is in its own right, not a part of the Christmas pageant. The pageant will be put on in all houses so that the girls may sign up. Ethel Feinne '44, Jane Dill '44, and Dorothy Raymond '44 are co-chairmen of the pageant, in which members of both the faculty and student body will participate. The selection of the masks will be made by a secret committee of seven students, and the pageant will be performed by the students.

A Chance For Student Action

There is already open for Connecticut college students a significant opportunity to apply their abilities and training to a problem of war education which is just beginning to take the foreground in the mass of current events—namely, the problem of post-war education.

The opportunity in this field is not confined only to the medium of thought; there is a chance for immediate student action in this field. In her chapel talk last week, President Schaeffer pointed out the possible steps which the student body and student post-war organizations might take. Here is a chance for action! Which student organization will be the first to respond to the challenge of its capabilities in this valuable field?

Letters to Congressmen written by each college student expressing their support for the war effort would be one of the immediate steps which could and should be taken in this area.

The bill, as explained in last week’s News, “calls for a government subsidy to the prospective students, as follows: in order to make it financially feasible for them to spend at least one year in a school, college, or university studying where ever and whenever they may be stationed, the maintenance of well qualified men and women will be given subsidies”... (details of the legislation)...

The American people, particularly those who have been in the service, are anxious to get some education. If support of educational institutions is to be an important area of the post-war education plan, the students of today can take part.

Dear Editor,

There are still too many among us who refuse to realize that dormitory life means a cooperative life. That there is a definite lack of consideration for others living around us. At times the noise has got to be muted, even if the houses are to be used for concentrated study, the noise has got to be muted, even if we cannot be "polite"

Lassie Come Home

One of the most appealing movies of the current year will be this feature starring the dog, the Garde theater beginning on Wednesday, December 8, and continuing through Saturday, December 11. Lassie Come Home is the film which stars Roddie McDowell, Donald Crisp, and the canine artist, Lassie. The story is based on the devotion and love between a boy and his dog. Roddie McDowell is the young Yorkshire youth whose life is centered in his pet, and the adventures of the two create some heart-tugging scenes in the picture. Lassie is a beautiful collie, brought to him by his young master and, during his wanderings, is accused of the theft of money, the events which lead up to her being innocently accused of the crime are all a matter of suspense to the audience. This film is excellent both in the simplicity of its story and the acting of the players.

Guadalcanal Diary

The Capitol theater will show Guadalcanal Diary from Friday, December 10 through Tuesday, December 14. William Bendix and Lloyd Nolan hold the list of the best male cast which comprises the acting in this picture. As the title implies, the plot of the film concerns the experiences of a marine unit on Guadalcanal. Except for the fact that there have been a multitude of such war pictures on tele movie market lately, Guadalcanal Diary would be an exceptional film. The acting of the cast is extremely realistic and well done. The settings are good and some of the combat and episodes of the men in the thick of battle are worth remembering. The film is in spite of the fact that this is not a new story, but by no means a bad one, perhaps, more true to fact that many of us would like to believe. For those who are interested in seeing a reasonable story, this is definitely one of the best films of the South Pacific, the film is well worth the time.
Dr. M. S. Stewart Diagnoses Trends Of Post-War Aims

Dr. Maxwell S. Stewart, Editor of the Public Affairs Pamphlets and Associate Editor of the Nation, warned the audience present Wednesday of the operation of all nations, after this present war, to maintain the peace in his conversation speech in Palmer auditorium, Wednesday, December 3.

Our failure in the last peace resulted from a lack of responsibility on the part of the American people.

Today, however, Dr. Stewart seemed to feel that we were moving toward an establishment of responsibility on the part of the American public.

Jerry And U. I. T. derson, motorcycling on Palmer, presented the problems of the present war to the students.

Jerry lives in the famous fishing village near the harbor.

The Perspectival Personnel Bureau

The Personnel bureau has a number of new items for jobs which are now open.

For February graduates there is an opening at the Curran house, North, New York, W.C.A. for a Night Reserve secretary to work with clubs, coed groups, the board, and committee work.

Somebody to do office work for Mrs. G. H. Pierson would be necessary, for she is so busy with her work that she should be requested not to return things or sign them out, and this work can be finished as a personal favor.

The second and immediate problem concerned the short supply of dynamite. Students have been taking dynamite books which are needed for the whole class from the library with the result that many have caused considerable interruptions in many courses which depend on outside reading. One practical solution is that the dynamite books should be borrowed and returned.

Betty Brown, chairman of the student council, reported that inasmuch as student body was interested in the future of the student body, 149,949 students, of the faculty stated that they would gladly entertain one of the students, who was only interested in informal talks.

Jerry Anderson, motorcycling Printer of News, Will Leave Ganc to Enter Service

Jerry Anderson, motorcycling Printer of News, will leave the Ganc to enter service. His last work will be on November 28th, when he will leave for his Uncle's house in New York. He figures to spend the next three months with his Uncle, after which he will return to his work at the Ganc on Easter Sunday.

Jerry arrived one week before the end of the semester to take over the work of the printers who are expected to leave the bureau before the end of the semester. Jerry hopes to return to his work at the Ganc after the war.

Our government is learning that the price of a war is not just to stop war. Also our congress must be cooperative with the other nations.

A considerable amount of work must be done for the war to be effective, and that is easier and easier to be done if we have a policy, and our increased tariffs.

The United Nations to contact the United States and Canada to see if they can be made to join the war.

The personnel bureau has suggested two dangers which face the nation, that we are not just now fighting the war, but that we are also fighting the war against our isolation roles when students are co-operating with the other governments.

It is hoped that the United States will send more soldiers to the front, and that the United States will send more soldiers to the front.

'Ship Everything!' Warn C. C. Victims of Baggage Troubles

by Priscilla Wright '46

Christmas vacation only a week away! Already noticeable on campus is the hustle and bustle of last minute papers and quizzes. Those happenings, important as they may be, do not gain first place in the causes of student headaches and backaches. This distraction has already been acquired by that problematic necessity: packing.

Barbara Caplan '46 remembers with horror the baggage troubles of last vacation. She thought she had the jump on herself when she went home three weeks earlier, in hopes that it would be unpacked for her upon her arrival—she forgot to add the keys! When she left school she was carrying three suit cases, a gauze wrap, a golf bag with a complete set of clothes, a sport coat and a fur jacket. Auerbach Majors Work at Fox's

It took three trips to get all the luggage off the trains when she finally arrived in Boston; to make the situation complete her overnight bag burst open in the porter's arms and spilled underwear, toothpaste, soap, and silk stockings on the floor of Back Bay station. Last minute odds and ends had been stuffed into the pockets of the golf bag; these hung over the edges and fell out periodically. "Oh, it was a mess," Caplan commented.

This Christmas she hoped to send everything home in her steamer trunk, but when she found that the lock had sprung she began to accumulate six laundry bags and three boxes which are going to transport her things home ahead of time.

"From here on I travel railway express," quoth Caplan.

Auerbach Majors Work at Fox's

Four Auerbach majors, Muriel Duenewald '46, Connie Fairley '46, Helaine Hays '46 and Bets Kellock '46 begin their vacation jobs at Fox's store in Hartford at 1:30 December 15, two hours and a half after Christmas recess begins. The packing here offers complications, as not only black dresses, required of all Fox's employees, must be taken, but also clothes to wear when they go home have to be carried. They are trying to pack only essentials, as there may be a scarcity of space in the one room which the group will share at the hotel in Hartford.

Agreeing with Barbara Caplan Winch's viewpoint is Ruth Howe '44 who from experience advises: "Send all your stuff home, yes, all your stuff." Over Thanksgiving holiday, while trying to extricate her suitcase from the rack of a crowded bus, she accidentally hit a woman over the head with a bag full of books, fell on the floor, and then was promptly stepped on. Again Ruth emphasizes: "Heed my words; ship absolutely everything. Carry nothing."

ing they come back to campus as soon as the class is over.

The cab pulled up in front of the Belasco Theatre on 46th street in New York. Two view-ers correspondents joined the throng of New York City high school weekly publication representa-tives and stopped into the theatre. After presenting our ad-mission cards, we filed down thefrontrow, and six freshm en from C.C. went through the doors. They went most of their time skip- ing. They went into the drunks on some freshman Dartmouth ments, and the Thespians would go to the Oudown club and entertain the men. Meanwhile, the reel Outing club was frantic, searching the tracks above and below the Hanover station for fear the C.C. delegation was lost in a drift. Several eastern colleges were rep-re sented, and the big event was skicing at the Brunswick camp of the college at Moosehead mountain. Snow came in, the midway, good weather, and a good crowd. C.C.'s spot was pleased to repre sent and would not extend.

Psych Majors Snare Subjects
To Push Keys, Go On Hunts
by Bryna Samuels '46

"Gotta class at 10? No? Oh, then come on over to the psych lab and be a subject for our experiment. Please?" And many unsuspecting girls, filled to the brim with curiosity, have been recruited into the lab on the promise of helping or disproving all sorts of psych theories.

The girls snared by Alice Carey '46 and Virginia Binford '44 found three stacks of playing cards placed before them and were told to take a card from any of the packs. For each face card they picked they were rewarded with a pretzel. Profitable gesture, they thought; all the more profitable for the experimenters too, because they found out a great deal by registering the experiment and watching which cards the girls went to. It all sounds very scientific, even though the subjects did learn how to play a mean game of black jack.

Memory Test
Jane Dill '44 and Millie Holland '44 have recruited almost 200 girls in the last couple of weeks for their experiment. It's a type of memory test put to trial by associating colors and keys, or a key board. It all sounds very confusing, but it isn't. You just feel astoundingly ignorant after being a subject. The object of the experiment and all the little catchers in it are being carefully confined to the experimenters' minds so that nothing will leak out until the test is completed and the results known more completely.

Treasurer Hunt
Half of the subjects who came to be "guinea pigs" for Phyllis Miller '44 and Cindy Towsey '44 went on a treasure hunt—for a dictionary! Of course there wasn't one in the room where they were told to look (these psych experts really got you coming and going), but the futile search was supposed to be a test of science! After the hunt, these girls were put into another room and given the rest of the subjects and were told to try to remember everything in the dictionary. Then they were given a memory test. The theory: the memory is much stronger if more time is given to memorize, even unconsciously; the results: ask Phyl and Cindy.

Taste Test
The other experiment tasted terrible. Just ask any of the unfortunate subjects! They had to taste bite-size concoctions that were the same color as their favorite candy, and then tell if they still liked that color best. Bobbie Gahin '44 and Joan Buck '44 must have had to buy brainwash by the barrel! At any rate, the subjects weren't very cooperative with their decisions. They didn't change their minds as it was hoped.

But all these experiments, whether they work or not, deal with problems that have never been worked out before, and if they work, a tremendous sense of pride sweeps through the ranks of the psychology department. Although Mr. Barner places the problem before the experimenters, the methods used are all figments of the girls' imaginations.

Xmas Vacationists to Work, Wed, Wend Ways Southward by June Rotter '46

“Just X More Days T’l Vacation” has been the campus theme song for the past few weeks, and now that vacation for which we have been so anxiously waiting is almost a reality. Yes, Christmas is almost here. The shouts of “Where’s my hat box?”, “Why’s got a shoe brush?”, and the last “Have a wonderful time!” fill the air and the dorms vacate for the day. Then comes the mad dash to make the trains, an exhausting search for seats, and the gay dawgs are off to their homes.

MURIEL KERR
New York Play Suggested For Xmas Pastime by Nancy Trooban '44

The Innocent Voyage, now playing at the Belasco theatre in New York, is a play about children and pirates, but it must not be considered from the stand point of children’s play, for it is definitely adult entertainment and of very high calibre at that. The charming wisdom of childhood is in this play thrown into high relief against the contrasting lack of it in the adventure which often characterizes of adulthood. Once Lois Bonime, playing opposite Abby Bonime, does a fine job of pointing up this contrast. The play has a well-motivated plot with very remarkable music and good characterizations throughout; these attributes alone would justify going to see it twice. But its unique quality is its wit in its infinite under tones of child psychology, some slight knowledge of which enhances the value and meaning of the play’s other attributes.

Captain Jansen (Oscar Homolka) as professional pirate...“Thou art but a bloody scoundrel” order, boards the ship Clirdna (in slip-shod style) must be considered with intentions of mere robbery, but circumstantial evidence is enough to lay to his charge the crime of highway robbery. “My God!” is his frequent reaction to the adventures which naturally follow when a pirate ship tries to journey with six children aboard the ship. The pivotal plot device which makes the first act a little strained, but as the dramatist sets off with intentions of more than just a slight, these characteristics and the psychological aspects of the play begin to dominate, the play becomes excellent.

In the second and third acts Abby Bonime (as Emily Thornby) and Lois Bonime (as Phyllis Thornby) are phenomenal. Captain Jansen’s (Oscar Homolka) professionalism and Abby Bonime’s (as Emily Thornby) genuine affection for Miss O’Neill’s Shop

A group over in Windham visited Miss Noyes over for Sunday night supper last week. Being the perfect hostess, Miss Noyes brought a box of super deluxe brownies as her contribution. It so happened that the college dessert for the Sunday evening sandwich pick-up meal was brownies also. Dessert time arrived and Ginnie Bowman '45 raved about the brownies several times. The rest of the group were also enjoying brownies because Miss Bowman was raving about the brownies several times.
