Camels net first ECAC men’s soccer win!

by Susan Feuer
Features Editor

Bill Clinton won the presidential election on Tuesday, winning forty-three percent of the popular votes and receiving 370 electoral votes.

EITHER PONTER, co-president of the College Democrats, said, “It was the best night of my life to date. It was fabulous, great, all the superlatives.” However, the College Democrats do not intend to become inactive after the election. According to Ponter, “We’re going to have speakers. The Cone College Review is going to have a feature with a Republican/Democratic viewpoint in each issue.” The group is also trying to get one of the newly elected state representatives to speak on campus and is still hoping to schedule Hillary Clinton to speak. Said Ponter, “We’re trying to keep the awareness up even though the election is over.”

Best Goldstein, public relations director for the College Republicans, said, “In this election year, we’ve seen a big movement through MTV to push for Clinton. We feel that due to this big push most of the campus went for Clinton. There is a minority of republicans on campus who made a strong showing for Bush. We’re happy for that turnout.”

As for the future plans of the College Republicans, Goldstein said, “We plan to remain fairly active until the next election. The Democrats had no chance in view of conventional wisdom of the Republican party.”

He asked, “Is the election a blip or is it real? Is this the beginning of a trend?” Frasure believed there were several turning points in the election. One was Bush’s selection of Dan Quayle as a running mate in 1988.

“I’m not being facetious when I say this. Many people think that Quayle was a much better campaigner than Bush this year. I think so. But when Bush chose him four years ago, questions were raised about Bush’s judgment. ‘He added, “The Democrats had no chance four years ago; he didn’t matter then.”

Another error that Bush made, See Panel p4

Index:
Features pp 4-6
Culture prevails in a fallen Soviet Union.
Comics pp 6&10

A&E pp 11-13
Play asks “What about Black Women?”
Sports pp 14-16

Field Hockey ends with a winning season

The College Voice November 9, 1992 Page 1
Not voting is also your right

Risky (new) business?

Students-at-large are circulating a petition this week demanding that Campus Safety officers regularly patrol the arboretum during its open hours. A collaborative effort of employees and administrators organized this week’s “Take Back the Arbo” rally to protest the violence of a few weeks ago. The College Voice has raised the issue that this college lacks an official escort service, and reporters are asking why there are no emergency call boxes in the arboretum. And in this week of issue-awareness, the Student Government Association held a meeting with no proposals.

This seems more than a little odd, given the plethora of policies searching for formulation and student input on the college level. Here are four legislative opportunities within the realm of Campus Safety alone.

According to Michael Gaffney, house senator of Harkness and chair of the Campus Safety Committee, these security issues were discussed with Stewart Angell, the department’s director, on Friday, and the group is using the committee process to investigate the logistical questions of change.

Increased participation at the research level is not all bad, but it can also be risky. Security is not an issue to put on the back burner. Security issues—with students’ lives in jeopardy—deserve timely progress.

This year’s Assembly held its first mid-semester review a few weeks ago. If the weekly meetings have been a fair indication of the legislative process, the SGA appears to be moving in the direction of making officers’ reports, committee briefings and action items the agenda’s highlights.

With students and administrators taking the lead outside of the SGA system, however, it is clear that this fall, closest campuses process is not enough. There needs to be responsive debate based on concrete legislation and discussion based on common information. It is irresponsible to leave these tasks unaware to others. It is irresponsible to settle for few.

Letter to the Voice

Gone are the days of Bermanesque antagonism, and The College Voice now has resigned itself to writing heavily diluted, unobjectionable, nonpartisan fodder in order to be safe. Despite the new penchant for moderation, the Voice has managed to fail self several steps away from a new generation reflecting mass opinion instead of leading it. This often leads to a “bandwagon” effect whereas the Voice simply adds its “voice” to the rest and thus compounds the problem.

Nowhere is this trend more apparent or irritating than in the Voice’s recent editorial on voting, “A Different Kind of Year Four,” (November 2, 1992). Every four years, candidates are bombarded from all sides by everyone and everything from newspapers to academics to commentators to new even MTV with this message: We must defeat the evil archvillains Apathy and Neglect and vote to save our democracy.

Our very democracy is at stake! People who do not wish to vote are portrayed as lazy, disinterested, irresponsible, amoral, immobile, unpatriotic, and even borderline traitorous. The other side that is never given is that there are some very good reasons to abstain: darn good if you ask me. This is no way means that I advocate going to the polls in the days of grandfather clauses; I believe that anyone who wishes to vote should be able to, in the spirit of the greatest of care. There are proposals floating around in Congress right now to extend voting times and facilitate registration, and I would support any legislation. However, I firmly believe that the right not to vote is equally as precious as the right to vote.

Support the liferights of children

Letter to the Voice

I would like to congratulate Chris Delvalle for his courageous letter in last week’s Voice, “The other side of the issue,” (The College Voice, November 2, 1992) At last, we have an opinion on the abortion issue from someone who knows it for what it is—a choice; no one listens to anyone else’s view on the matter.

This is a debate that we need to have in order to better ourselves. The establishment should finally do what General Motors did earlier this year—lay off!!

Sincerely,
Kevin Korzenik
Class of 1993

Cleaning staff offers thanks

Letter to the Voice,

The Housekeeping Staff would like to take this opportunity to thank the staff of The College Voice, the Housekeeping, and all students involved, for their outstanding support in trying to assist us with problems we are encountering. It is greatly appreciated!

Sincerely,
The Housekeeping Staff

Soul Brown IM football team demands retraction

Letter to the Voice

It was bad enough to have to play in a league full of over-confident, whining, wanna-be athletes who run up the score against nice guys like us. As it turns out they were never damaged enough on the field, we then had to pick up the Voice’s so-called “sports section” and read a heap of outright lies and blasphemy!

While our legal counsel has not yet filed suit, we are currently exploring this option. For the record, we did “officially” reach the endpoint against KTC on October 13th. Furthermore, our team was 0-4 against the dominant regime, and the soullessness that is KTC’s George Bush was not “victorious.” Our team gave its all, and the only thing that was “wrong” with us was that we were not souls. We must point out that this is not a case of attempting to retaliate for the “KTC” program that we, as a group, have no idea even exists. We are simply a college football team, and we believe that we were properly honored by your very editorial.

Sincerely,
Soul Brown football
CONNOTHUGHT

Clinton's promises may turn hollow

I would like to interrupt the Clinton/Gore celebration at Connecticut College before some student or faculty member seriously injures himself doing backflips in the Arbo. Republicans on this campus are being told that conservatism is on the decline and that the election represented an ideological shift to the left. However, the fact that more Americans find themselves "concerned" than "optimistic" on the impending Clinton presidency indicates that Clinton won this election more by default than due to the enormous excitement over the "new covenant."

There are three main reasons why the Republican Party is not the people who made this big heroes of this election year were George Bush lost the White House. They are:

1. The excellence of the Clinton campaign. The real heroes of this election year were James Carville, Ron Brown and Sister Souljah, the vitalization of the "new covenant."

2. The failures of the Bush campaign made Clinton appear to win in 1988 and changed the political spectrum, scrambling for votes. With the little Texan staying home, it is difficult to imagine Bush losing the closely contested states of Tennessee, New Hampshire, Nevada, Louisiana, Kentucky and Georgia that Clinton won.

3. - The success of Ross Perot. Conventional wisdom says Perot and Lester had little impact on the election's outcome. However, when one considers that Bush lost eleven states by four percentage points or less, it seems plausible that the race could have had a different outcome if the little Texan stayed home.

Students Organized Against Racism

The excellence of the Clinton campaign was not the only reason why Democrats won this election. The victory of conservative rhetoric when talking of excessive government bureaucracy and regulation, or simply shaming Hillary up, the campaign made Clinton appear to be moderate and made this victory possible. This seems to show that Lincoln was wrong and you can fool all of the people all of the time (if you have the media on your side.) The infamous Republican Party tricksters and character assassins were never able to put a dent in the Clinton armor. No matter how many times Clinton contradicted himself or changed his story on issues like his draft record, the North American Free Trade Agreement, the line item veto, potential tax hikes, and the Persian Gulf War, it didn't seem to break the stride of this politician or the public thrust. As long as there was a vice-president who couldn't spell potato, no concessions or contradictions of Clinton's character and record seemed to raise the ire of the press.

The failures of the Bush presidency. People should not see the faltering economy as a repudiation of Reaganomics or confusion in Bush's economic policy with that of his predecessor. Allegedly twelve years of "trickle down neglect" has left the U.S. badly in need of investment and infrastructure. The problem with this hypothesis is that "investment" helped negate any tax increases under Bush and under Bush we have witnessed enormous taxing and spending increases. Bush's breaking on the no new taxes pledge not only impeded economic growth but doomed his chances for four more years. The Republican Party was unable to really assault Clinton's proposals for taxing and spending increases because of the "read my lips" debacle and was left with family values and questions of character as the best hopes for holding onto the executive branch.

3 - The success of Ross Perot. Conventional wisdom says Perot had little impact on the election's outcome. However, when one considers that Bush lost eleven states by four percentage points or less, it seems plausible that the race could have had a different outcome if the little Texan stayed home.

Tuesday night was a night we'll never forget. That night America voted for change. Hundreds of us packed Hill House Common Room to watch the returns come in. Apathetic image remains at Conn

Apathetic image remains at Conn

We of SOAR (Students Organized Against Racism) were hoping that the students of Connecticut College would challenge their image of apathetic, party-holic children during SOAR's Social Awareness Week. However, we were disappointed to find that students on this campus have greater interest in attending a party than an event focused on real social change.

During Social Awareness Week, one hundred and fifty students showed up to the Unity Halloween party, while only about one fifth of that number attended the week's keynote speaker, Giancarlo Esposito, as he spoke of each individual's responsibility in the struggle against racism. Students at Connecticut College would challenge their image of apathetic, party-holic children during SOAR's Social Awareness Week. However, we were disappointed to find that students on this campus have greater interest in attending a party than an event focused on real social change.

Students Organized Against Racism
Panel explores election process and results

Continued from page 1 according to Frasure, was that he "wasted his political advantage after Desert Storm. He didn't know what to do with power."

Frasure said, "I think that Bill Clinton ran a superb campaign. The Democratic party was damn lucky that Bill Clinton was their candidate."

"The assumption that Bush would win turned," said Frasure, "when Clinton 'tore into Sister Souljah' while speaking in front of the NAACP.

"The Democrats tend to have a party that wants to raise taxes. The party appeals to a constituency that benefits from increased government spending. I don't mean just welfare recipients," he said.

Frasure added, "I live in New London, Connecticut. If I didn't pay property taxes I could be making payments on a Mercedes-Benz. Instead, I'm paying money to this hell-hole, stink-pot, cesspool city."

"Young people, she explained, supported Ronald Reagan's economic campaign. The turning point was that [Clinton's] was a brilliant campaign. The best Price and the Best Food"

"The Be$t Price and the Best Food"

Said Swanson, "I'm fairly optimistic that Bill Clinton will be a good president."

Borelli focused primarily on the congressional elections. "There are one hundred new members of the House of Representatives."

According to Borelli, "The state of New York got totally shafted." According to Borelli, "The state lost twelve incumbents. They are not going to get their fair share of government funding."

Said Borelli, "Never viewed Bill Clinton as a particularly strong candidate. Clinton won by default."

After the panelists finished speaking they took questions from the audience. Mike Sneiderman asked the panel if "this is a bad sign for both parties that Perot got so much support."

Swanson answered, "It's a symptom of the times."
FEATURES

A Walker in the PARK
by Shoham Payne
The College Voice

There are many advantages of being a housefellow, according to Suzanne Walker, the housefellow of Park. Meeting the other housefellows, interacting with the residents in Park, and seeing the 'big picture' of Connecticut College's residential side, are only a few of the perks of the job, says Walker.

Walker enjoys the positive relationships that she has established with her dorm residents. Although I have friendships with the people in my dorm, they still respect my position as housefellow, she explained.

Some of the key issues that Walker hopes to focus on this year, in her role as housefellow, are creating a positive dorm unity and making people feel comfortable in their dorm life.

Walker commented that she has gained several benefits in her role as a housefellow so far, and that she has grown personally because of this experience. Walker said that she has improved her interpersonal skills, and become stronger in standing up for her own convictions, especially in a group situation.

Walker is an anthropology major and is double-minoring in women's studies and English. She has not only found time to play both field hockey and lacrosse, but to serve as a captain for both teams.

Walker is considering traveling to Japan through the study abroad program here with Connecticut College.

Robert Sumner, a junior here at Connecticut College, is currently taking part in the "Semester at Sea" program of the University of Pittsburgh.

Elkind, a World War II veteran, holds a PhD from Leningrad University; where he subsequently taught. A liberal of sorts, Elkind defended and supported a variety of Russian writers and poets, such as the novelist Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn and the poet Josef Brodski.

Walker commented that she has experienced in international affairs, especially in a group situation. Walker said, "After I've done this, I can do anything."

Although the job of being housefellow is rewarding, it is also a challenge. Walker finds herself dealing with noise complaints in the middle of the night, and the difficulty of balancing her schedule between dormitory, academics, sports and the social scene.

Walker is an anthropology major and is double-minoring in women's studies and English. She has not only found time to play both field hockey and lacrosse, but to serve as a captain for both teams.

Walker is considering traveling to Japan through the study abroad program here with Connecticut College.

Summer sails into his junior year
by Jenna Roberts
Associate Features Editor

Robert Sumner, a junior here at Connecticut College, is currently taking part in the "Semester at Sea" program of the University of Pittsburgh. He and 475 other students from various colleges around the world are sailing worldwide on a "university cruise" of sorts. Semesters at Sea travel around the world, visiting both rural and urban areas, and is double-minoring in women's studies and English. She has not only found time to play both field hockey and lacrosse, but to serve as a captain for both teams.

Walker is considering traveling to Japan through the study abroad program here with Connecticut College.

Robert Sumner, a junior here at Connecticut College, is currently taking part in the "Semester at Sea" program of the University of Pittsburgh. He and 475 other students from various colleges around the world are sailing worldwide on a "university cruise" of sorts. Semesters at Sea travel around the world, visiting both rural and urban areas, and is double-minoring in women's studies and English. She has not only found time to play both field hockey and lacrosse, but to serve as a captain for both teams.

Walker is considering traveling to Japan through the study abroad program here with Connecticut College.
King Crossword

ACROSS
1. Actor Tom
2. Wet
3. Mine entrance
4. Minneapolis
5. Mayor's city
6. Broadway
7. Tires
8. Ballpoint features
9. French salad dressing
10. Like some canned tomatoes
24. Soldier's bed
25. Before
26. Continued
27. Loud noise
28. Anesthetize
32. Word with wine
34. Peak
35. Painless
37. Almonds
39. Cavity
41. Employ
42. Obstacle

DOWN
1. Science
2. French lake
3. Personal objection
4. Like some socks
5. Chopsticks'
6. Unending
7. Lose control
8. Lewis May
9. Sandwich shop
10. Gleason's "How Sweet It Is!"
11. Earn shed
12. Caviar
13. Apollo
14. Evaporation
15. First lady
16. Conger
17. Gorse
18. Sunbather's goal
19. Submariner's goal
20. Sunbather's sound
22. Clarinetist's need
23. Symbols
24. Morse code term
26. Numbers (e.g., 1893)
27. Numbers (e.g., 1893)
29. Cat or dog
30. Scottish Gaelic
31. Clarinetist's need
32. Word with sockwire
33. Symbols
35. Brit. air ann
36. Painful
37. Abounds
38. Glum
39. Cavity
40. Employment and family Gabors
41. Obstacle
42. Obstacle
43. Summary
44. Fidgeted
46. Follow a
48. Soviet sea
49. Virgil's "$22"
50. Caviar
51. Ripped
52. Teacher's favorite
53. Actor Carney
54. One of the Gabors
55. Yeoman in a decade
56. Dutch cheese
57. Eng. river
58. First lady
59. Buddies
60. Grape
61. French salad dressing
62. Teacher's favorite
63. On the briny favorite
64. Mother of Apollo
65. Apollo
66. Broadways musical
67. Tires
68. Ballpoint features
69. French salad dressing
70. Like some canned tomatoes
71. Soldier's bed
72. Lake or tribe
73. Lake or tribe
74. Before
75. Continued
76. Loud noise
77. Anesthetize
78. Word with wine
79. Peak
80. Painless
81. Almonds
82. Cavity
83. Employ
84. Obstacle

THE COLLEGE VOICE NOVEMBER 9, 1992
Results of Office of Career Service's Graduate Study and Employment Survey of the Class of 1991

Employment 68%  Graduate Study 28%

Arts 13  Arts & Sciences 5
Business/Finance 36  Professions 3
Communications 12  Allied Health 3
Education 32  Business 5
Government 5  Education 4
Health & Science 5  Law 9
Human Services 11  Medicine 4
Law 5  Social Sciences 4
Non-profit 2  Other 1
Other 1  TOTAL 122

28% Employment 68% Graduate Study

Survey claims 96 percent placement rate for members of class of 1991

More Connecticut college graduates opt for graduate programs

Tinker continued by citing a liberal arts education as a major reason for student success. Their success "is evident in the fact that our students pursue jobs in many diverse areas." He also indicated that the college's commitment, to preparing students for the global marketplace contributes to the success of the applicants. Studying abroad, proficiency in a foreign language, and working abroad all give the applicants' resumes strong edges.

Tinker said Connecticut College graduates could be selective about the jobs they accepted in this difficult market. Most, he noted, did not simply accept "survival jobs" but chose from positions with the Metropolitan Museum of Art, The Oprah Winfrey Show, Anderson Consulting, Gourmet Magazine, Salmonon Brothers, and are participating in such graduate programs as the Eagleton Institute.

Tinker concluded by stating that the college's culture and the applicants' resumes provided the organization with a competitive edge that long-distance outgoing calls from campus offices are unrestricted, but said, "We don't go scooping into bills. We have an honor system at this college. If people make personal calls they are expected to reimburse the college."

College reviews toll-free bills

In reviewing the bills we do not see abnormal activity, although calls last at night are a little suspicious," said Makofske. "If people have been abusing this number, it is [really the college] just a few dollars. It's not a big deal," he added. Makofske went on to acknowledge that long-distance outgoing calls from campus offices are unrestricted, but said, "We don't go scooping into bills. We have an honor system at this college. If people make personal calls they are expected to reimburse the college.

Makofske added that using the 800 number, customers can "see abnormal activity, although..."

"In reviewing the bills we do not see abnormal activity, although..." said Makofske.

Please recycle

Now open Sunday 4-9

The Recovery Room

CALL FOR TAKE OUT, TOO: 443-2619

Inexpensive Incomparable Indecency Good

The College Voice

November 9, 1999 Page 7

College will host collaborative 1993
Special Olympics

by Jennifer LeVan
Annette News Editor

The Connecticut chapter of the Special Olympics gives "mentally challenged athletes" continuing opportunities to develop physical fitness, determine competitive experience, exercise enjoyment, and participate in sharing of gifts, skills and friendships with their families, other Special Olympics athletes and the community.

Connecticut, the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, Mitchell College and the U.S. Submarine Base in Groton will host the 1993 Special Olympic Games on June 11-13, 1993. Participants, after training for weeks, compete for spots on local teams before advancing to regional games and finally the national competition.

In 1969 the Connecticut Special Olympics held its first Summer Games at the University of Connecticut. Eight hundred participants took part in the track and field events, today the Olympics have expanded to include 50,000 athletes from 100 countries and 181 communities.

Aquatics, soccer, adapted basketball, gymnastics and other events are part of the sporting events which will be held at the Summer Games this year.

College reviews toll-free bills

In reviewing the bills we do not see abnormal activity, although calls last at night are a little suspicious," said Makofske. "If people have been abusing this number, it is [really the college] just a few dollars. It's not a big deal," he added. Makofske went on to acknowledge that long-distance outgoing calls from campus offices are unrestricted, but said, "We don't go scooping into bills. We have an honor system at this college. If people make personal calls they are expected to reimburse the college." Makofske added that using the 800 number, customers can "see abnormal activity, although..."

"In reviewing the bills we do not see abnormal activity, although..." said Makofske.

Please recycle

Now open Sunday 4-9

The Recovery Room

CALL FOR TAKE OUT, TOO: 443-2619

Inexpensive Incomparable Indecency Good

The College Voice

November 9, 1999 Page 7

College will host collaborative 1993
Special Olympics

by Jennifer LeVan
Annette News Editor

The Connecticut chapter of the Special Olympics gives "mentally challenged athletes" continuing opportunities to develop physical fitness, determine competitive experience, exercise enjoyment, and participate in sharing of gifts, skills and friendships with their families, other Special Olympics athletes and the community.

Connecticut, the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, Mitchell College and the U.S. Submarine Base in Groton will host the 1993 Special Olympic Games on June 11-13, 1993. Participants, after training for weeks, compete for spots on local teams before advancing to regional games and finally the national competition.

In 1969 the Connecticut Special Olympics held its first Summer Games at the University of Connecticut. Eight hundred participants took part in the track and field events, today the Olympics have expanded to include 50,000 athletes from 100 countries and 181 communities.

Aquatics, soccer, adapted basketball, gymnastics and other events are part of the sporting events which will be held at the Summer Games this year.

College reviews toll-free bills

In reviewing the bills we do not see abnormal activity, although calls last at night are a little suspicious," said Makofske. "If people have been abusing this number, it is [really the college] just a few dollars. It's not a big deal," he added. Makofske went on to acknowledge that long-distance outgoing calls from campus offices are unrestricted, but said, "We don't go scooping into bills. We have an honor system at this college. If people make personal calls they are expected to reimburse the college." Makofske added that using the 800 number, customers can "see abnormal activity, although..."

"In reviewing the bills we do not see abnormal activity, although..." said Makofske.
NEWS

By Jennifer LeVan
Associate News Editor

With this semester's reports of crime on the Connecticut College campus, questions are arising regarding the exact nature of Campus Safety's escort services for students after dark. According to Catherine Woodbrooks, dean of Student Life, "Campus Safety escort services have always been in place." The service, which provides campus rides for students after dark, has been an informal policy of Campus Safety; however, said Mike Gaffney, house senator of Hackwoode and chair of the Campus Safety Committee, it has never been an official college program. Joseph Silvestri, assistant director for College Relations, said this week, "Increased student interest has led the college to start working on formalizing an escort policy which the director of Campus Safety, the vice president of Finance and the dean of Student Life will work together on." The College Voice raised the issue in its regular "Curtail Heard" column last week.

Woodbrooks said, "A student-run escort service is an option which would develop a sense of community [among students]." Woodbrooks has observed other escort services at other colleges and believes they work well. There have been concerns raised by Campus Safety Committee members that this option could place student drivers at risk. In addition, staffing cars with student workers could be problematic. There are, according to Gaffney, still four Campus Safety student worker slots available.

Although the escort service is not used a lot according to Woodbrooks, it is available in as an option and all students have to do is call Campus Safety. Time constraints are a problem, and students cannot be guaranteed immediate response to an escort call, she added. When student activity offices moved from Crozier-Wills to Strickland and Nichols houses, students in these organizations were made aware of the after-dark ride option, but no information for the entire campus has been distributed. The College Voice was not granted an interview with Stewart Angel, director of Campus Safety, this week.

Faculty propose restructuring numbering to include 400 level courses

By Safia M. The College Voice

The Connecticut College faculty has motioned for an adoption on a "provisional" basis of the numbering of courses that would move some upper division courses to the 400 level. The actual vote will be taken at the next faculty meeting. The renumbering of courses is expected to be completed in time to be included in the new catalogue being printed for the spring term.

The new course numbering will draw on existing sources, the only difference being that some courses in the upper divisions will be labeled as 400 levels. Also, some faculty members do not believe the current course numbering of independent studies (001, 002) reflect the difficulty, and they will be renumbered at two levels: one at the 200 level, and the other at the advanced 400 level. Several reasons were cited as the impetus behind this move. First of all, Connecticut College needs to have comparable numbering systems at similar institutions. Also, some people believe the current lack of 400 level courses puts Connecticut College students applying to graduate school at a disadvantage, because many institutions view 400 level courses as more advanced courses. Moreover, some students feel that this move is a "provisional" change to the "the greatest scope between 000's and 700's."
The College Voice
did not send out a questionnaire.

SGA believes alcohol policy survey threatens collegiality

by Family Stravros

The College Voice

In an attempt to stop the controversy alcohol policy survey from being sent home to parents, the Alcohol Policy and Recommendations Committee is working with the Student Government Association to send out a questionnaire that is more informational and less interrogatory. Maria Parita, senior class president and member of the APRC, presented to the SGA Assembly the new format that the APRC was trying to follow. This informational packet would contain a summary of Connecticut College's alcohol policy, quotes from students and Campus Safety about drinking on campus, and would finish with questions for the parents.

The initial idea for a survey was developed by Claire Guadiani, president of the college, in response to a request by parents at a panel held during last year's Parents Weekend. The first survey was brought before SGA in the Spring of 1992 and was strongly opposed. SGA asked that the students be questioned about the policy before the parents. This fall, another survey was shown to SGA, and this also met with strong opposition. In response to the SGA's concern over the new survey, the new information packet was developed. Many members of SGA were again dissatisfied with the new pamphlet, as they felt that questions should not be a part of this packet.

One question that caused extreme unrest concerned whether parents felt that they should have a say as to what happens on this campus. Colleen Shanley, president of SGA, was opposed to the idea of questions remaining on the pamphlet. "We don't need parents' influence on campus. We have governing structures in place here." Shanley also reasoned that if parents have say in one aspect of campus life, they will have say in other aspects that they are ignorant about. She urged the APRC to "really think about the consequences of the questions." Sean Podielsky, house senator of Lambridge, said that he saw the questions as a way to help the administration deal with parents who call to complain, rather than as a way to benefit the students. Maritell Yoder, house senator of Blackstone, remarked that if the questions are sent home, the replies back would not be representative because only the parents with radical views would return the questionnaire.

Parita commented that the only way to stop the administration from sending out the original survey would be to send out something regarding the alcohol policy. According to Parita, "We're being mature about this. We're not afraid to educate our parents about the alcohol policy." The APRC will meet again soon to discuss the opinions shared during the SGA Assembly. Because of the strong disapproval voiced by the Assembly, the APRC plans to reconsider what will be sent home.

College offers ride service

College considers creating formal program

The recent violence in the Athenbarium has some students concerned about the informal escort service provided by Campus Safety.

by Jennifer LeVan

The College Voice

With this semester's reports of crime on the Connecticut College campus, questions are arising regarding the exact nature of Campus Safety's escort policies for students after dark. According to Catherine Woodbrooks, dean of Student Life, "Campus Safety escort services have always been in place." The service, which provides campus rides for students after dark, has been an informal policy of Campus Safety; however, said Mike Gaffney, house senator of Hackwoode and chair of the Campus Safety Committee, it has never been an official college program. Joseph Silvestri, associate director for College Relations, said this week, "Increased student interest has led the college to start working on formalizing an escort policy which the director of Campus Safety, the vice president of Finance and the dean of Student Life will work together on." The College Voice raised the issue in its regular "Curtail Heard" column last week.

Woodbrooks said, "A student-run escort service is an option which would develop a sense of community [among students]." Woodbrooks has observed other escort services at other colleges and believes they work well. There have been concerns raised by Campus Safety Committee members that this option could place student drivers at risk. In addition, staffing cars with student workers could be problematic. There are, according to Gaffney, still four Campus Safety student worker slots available.

Although the escort service is not used a lot according to Woodbrooks, it is available in as an option and all students have to do is call Campus Safety. Time constraints are a problem, and students cannot be guaranteed immediate response to an escort call, she added. When student activity offices moved from Crozier-Wills to Strickland and Nichols houses, students in these organizations were made aware of the after-dark ride option, but no information for the entire campus has been distributed. The College Voice was not granted an interview with Stewart Angel, director of Campus Safety, this week.

Faculty propose restructuring numbering to include 400 level courses

by Safia M. The College Voice

The Connecticut College faculty has motioned for an adoption on a "provisional" basis of the numbering of courses that would move some upper division courses to the 400 level. The actual vote will be taken at the next faculty meeting. The renumbering of courses is expected to be completed in time to be included in the new catalogue being printed for the spring term.

The new course numbering will draw on existing sources, the only difference being that some courses in the upper divisions will be labeled as 400 levels. Also, some faculty members do not believe the current course numbering of independent studies (001, 002) reflect the difficulty, and they will be renumbered at two levels: one at the 200 level, and the other at the advanced 400 level. Several reasons were cited as the impetus behind this move. First of all, Connecticut College needs to have comparable numbering systems at similar institutions. Also, some people believe the current lack of 400 level courses puts Connecticut College students applying to graduate school at a disadvantage, because many institutions view 400 level courses as more advanced courses. Moreover, some students feel that this move is a "provisional" change to the "the greatest scope between 000's and 700's."

Differences in opinion resulted from the move to renumber courses. According to a survey conducted last year, ten departments were in favor of the changes, fourteen were neutral and two were opposed to it. In telephone interviews, many department chairs expressed the belief that renumbering was an issue of minor importance. However, most agreed with John Burton, chair of the anthropology department who said, "If the college decided to move in that direction, we certainly would agree to do the same." The history department on the whole expressed opposition to course renumbering. According to Bruce Kimmene, chair of the history department, "We [the history department] see no need for it. It's a waste of time." He added, "No one seems to feel very strongly about it." Currently, the Russian and anthropological departments have already drawn up a suggested renumbering system.

As of now, department student advisory committees have not had the chance to discuss the issue and its impact on various areas such as double majors and minors. According to Savanee Dhall, chair of the student advisory committee, "If [renumbering] is done, it should be done consistently.

The Camel Heard...

"We've got a range war up here!"

-Campus Safety officer on the walkie-talkie to his colleague, in response to the broken door in Blackstone on the night before Halloween

"It's wrong for us who have an education and who have all the privileges to teach each other how to cheat."-

-Clare Guadiani, president of the college, when commenting on financial aid fraud to Time magazine

"It explains why no one knows any chemistry here."-

-Bill Frawne, chair of the government department, at Thursday's post-election panel, referring to the acoustics in Brown Lecture Hall, Halse Laboratory.
Solemn ceremony “reclaims” arbo as tranquil spot

by Michael Del'Angelo
News Editor

Members of the college community participated in an emotional ceremony Friday to “reclaim” the arboretum. Students, faculty and staff met outside the arboretum gates to, in what was described as a symbolic gesture, show the college and the local community that it belongs to them.

The solemn thirty-minute ceremony was held in response to the sexual assault that occurred there on October 23. A 22-year-old local woman was walking through the arboretum with her daughter and her niece was sexually assaulted. Wayne Treat, the only current suspect to be apprehended in Florida.

Camera crews from channels 3, 6 and 30 and local print media covered the event. Approximately forty dozen people met at the arboretum gates to take part in the ceremony. They then marched to the amphitheater where William Niering, acting president of the college, addressed the crowd on the importance of both the Arboretum and the arboretum itself.

Niering said, “Recently, the image of the Arboretum was marred, and therefore it is the purpose of this very special occasion to symbolically take back or reclaim the arboretum as ours, since it belongs to those who are gentle and loving.”

The event was developed by Wendy Hooper, supervisor of the post office, and Claire Gaudiani, president of the college.

The Camel Connection

by April Osins
Associate News Editor

Solemn ceremony “reclaims” arbo as tranquil spot

College president gains national media attention: Gaudiani lambastes falsified financial aid information

by April Osins
Associate News Editor

Even when she isn’t here, her influence is felt. Claire Gaudiani, president of the college, has gained national media attention—once again—for her criticism of false scholarships.

Even today’s high college tuition rates, many middle class families are finding themselves in need of financial aid in order to send their children to school. However, some discover that they appear too wealthy "on paper" to qualify for financial aid. Consequently, when filling out aid applications, such families may try to make themselves look less prosperous than they actually are.

In order to assist them, there are many financial advisors who have expertise in finding legal ways to maximize their eligibility for financial aid. This can be accomplished by shifting some of the family’s assets into retirement funds, tax-deferred annuities, or into separate accounts in relatives’ names.

This worries Claire Gaudiani, who lambasted this “get whatever you can attitude” in an interview with Time magazine, saying that such accounting methods amount to “dirty tricks.”

Gaudiani believes that families who shelter their assets in order to qualify for financial aid for college tuition are not only cheating students who are more needy, but also cheating taxpayers and forcing colleges to waste time and money in validating their claims.

According to Gaudiani, it has become an accepted practice for parents to be advised to do this, and are often told how.

“Is it easy for a lot of people to condemn youngsters who walk into stores that have been blasted open and take things that don’t belong to them. Everyone calls that looting, and it’s certainly illegal and not appropriate. But when people with $350,000 incomes shelter that by transferring assets to grandparents and reporting $41,700 and then qualify for $12,000 in aid, that’s another form of looting.”

The United States Congress has responded to the high cost of college tuition by passing new financial aid regulations. As of last month, any family, regardless of income, may borrow the entire cost of college with low interest government loans. Federal grants will still be awarded according to financial need, but home equity and family farms will no longer count as a part of a family’s assets.

The administration of Oklahoma State University maintains a policy in which visitors of the opposite sex cannot be in student’s dorm rooms after midnight on weekdays and 2 a.m. on weekends.

In an effort to change this policy, forty juniors and seniors protesting by holding a “sleep-in” during homecoming week in order to gain more on-campus freedom. Many students believe that since they are adults, the administration should allow them more privacy as campus residents.

Student pleads guilty to SAT perjury charges

Lawrence Adler, a teenager who allegedly paid his friend David Srulevich to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test for him, and then sued the Educational Testing Service when it challenged his scores, has pleaded guilty to two perjury-related charges and will serve a six month jail term.

After his jail term is completed, Adler must perform 100 hours of community service and undergo psychotherapy. Srulevich pleaded guilty to obstruction of justice and will be sentenced at a later date.

Sleep-in protests Oklahoma State University’s overnight guest policies

The administration of Oklahoma State University maintains a policy in which visitors of the opposite sex cannot be in student’s dorm rooms after midnight on weekdays and 2 a.m. on weekends.

In an effort to change this policy, forty juniors and seniors protested by holding a “sleep-in” during homecoming week in order to gain more on-campus freedom. Many students believe that since they are adults, the administration should allow them more privacy as campus residents.
Answers to King Crossword on page 6.
Baez stays vital in a fickle industry

Star from the '60s to perform in Stamford

by Diane Myers

Joan Baez celebrated her 30th anniversary as a recording artist this past year. Born in Staten Island, New York, on January 9, 1941, Baez was a child of Quaker parents. Her mother, Louisa, a Quaker social worker, and her father, Albert, were a Quaker farming couple from Massachusetts. The family moved to Connecticut when Joan was 13, and it was there that she began to find her musical voice.

In 1960, Baez was a管道 intern at the radio station WBAI in New York City. She was also a co-founder of the Quick Silver Theatre, a group that performed plays and readings to draw attention to social issues.

Her first album, Joan Baez, was released in 1960, and it featured her cover of Bob Dylan's "If I Had a Hammer." This song helped to establish Baez as a prominent figure in the folk music scene. She continued to release albums throughout the 1960s, including her critically acclaimed album, Diamonds on the Soles of Her Shoes, which was released in 1966.

In the 1970s, Baez's music took on a more political tone. She became a prominent figure in the anti-war movement, and her album, The Night They Drove Old Dixie Down, was released in 1971. This album included her powerful version of Dylan's "The Times They Are A-Changin.'"

Baez has been active in social and political causes throughout her career. She was a early supporter of the civil rights movement, and she marched with Martin Luther King Jr. during the Montgomery Bus Boycott in 1955. She has also been involved in the peace movement, and she has been a vocal opponent of the war in Vietnam.

On Saturday, October 25, 1992, Joan Baez will perform at the Palace Theater in Stamford, Connecticut. Tickets for the show can be purchased at the box office or by calling (203) 325-4466. The show is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

The College Voice

November 9, 1992

Page 11
by James Speranta
Associate A&E Editor

November 9 - Latino Cafe Night - Student will perform and Spanish drinks will be sold. Coffee Ground Café. 8 p.m.

November 10 - New German Cinema - Hour Zero, directed by Edgar Reitz. Black and white, 108 minutes with English subtitles. Blaisstein 210. 8:30 p.m.

November 10 - An Expression of Human Rights Through Latino Poetry - Chilean poet Marjorie Agosín. We have poetry and readings.

November 11 - German Film Series - Veronika Vozi, Oliva Hall. 8 p.m., $2.50 Admission.

November 12 - Connecticut College Fun Society - Airplane, Oliva Hall. 5:30 p.m., $2.50 Admission.

November 13 - The Sorrows of Women: A Musical Journey Through Our Lives - The Connecticut Women's Chorus will perform in Harkness Chapel 8 p.m. Admission is free.

November 13 - Connecticut Film Society - Alien 3, with Sigourney Weaver. 7 p.m., 9:30 p.m., midnight. Oliva Hall. $2.50 Admission.

Lyman Allyn showcases many of the college’s best female artists

by Luke Brennan
A&E Editor

The Lyman Allyn Art Museum has a reputation for well-done, interesting exhibits. The Connecticut Women Artists exhibition being held this summer is no exception.

Connecticut Women Artists was founded in 1929, when 13 women artists exhibited at the Wadsworth Athenaeum. Since exhibitions devoted to women’s artwork were rare at that time, a society for female artists was established. The group was officially incorporated in 1932.

Today, the group has over 200 active members, and exhibits works at varying locations throughout the state.

The exhibition at the Lyman Allyn is comprised of original works in oil, watercolor, pastel, acrylic, mixed media, collage, graphics and sculpture by members of the Connecticut Women Artists. The juror of this exhibition is Barbara B. Bonner, a professor of printmaking at the University of Rhode Island. She is also the owner and operator of Queens River Press in South Kingston, Rhode Island, as well as being a member of Hera Gallery, a cooperative women’s gallery in Wakefield, R.I.

First place winner in the show is Gigi Herr Liverson of Colchester. Her pastel drawing, The Gaze, catches your eye the minute you enter the gallery.

According to Pugh, “I liked the scale, the color, the sense of light. It’s recognizable and yet it has strong abstract qualities.” Herr Liverson, a graduate of the Paier School of Art, in New Haven, has exhibited her work at the Whitney Museum of American Art, the New Britain Museum of American Art, and the Chrysler Museum in Virginia.

Melody Knight Leary of Norwich received second place with her collage/painting Between A Rock and A Hard Place. The piece, a body print with mixed media, explores the pressures women are up against in the world.

Pugh remarked on Leary’s piece, “I like the way the figure is emerging from something. There appears to be a struggle going on. I sense the figure is defending itself; it’s an ominous feeling.” Leary is a teacher of art at Norwich Free Academy and serves as the chairperson for this exhibition. She received her Bachelors degree from the University of Hartford, and her Masters from Central Connecticut State University.

Taking third place was Joan Zamore Jacobson of Milford with her print The Best- New Mexico. This lithograph with pastel overlay depicts a southwestern landscape with mesas and buttes. It is composed of six panels which come together to form the whole.

Pugh said, “I like the energy and the motion in the forms, the sense of heat and a potential storm.” Jacobson received both her Bachelor’s and Master’s degrees from Hunter College in New York. She has exhibited at the John Slade Ely House in New Haven, the Artworks Gallery in Hartford, and various museums and galleries throughout the state.

There are over twenty-five other artists represented in the exhibition; the show represents a cross-section of what the artists in this state are doing.

The exhibition will run until November 25, and is open on Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Sundays 1-5 p.m., Wednesdays 1-9 p.m., and Saturdays 11-5 p.m. For more information call 495-2545.
Wadsworth boasts $5 million bequest
Monies used to enhance collections

A seventeenth-century altar piece by the Florentine master Ludovico Cardi is the first work of art to be purchased by the Wadsworth Atheneum with funds from the bequest of Douglas Tracy Smith and Dorothy Potter Smith, the largest sum of money devoted to acquiring art in the museum's 150 years of existence.

The "Adoration of the Shepherds" was unveiled on October 27, 1992, and is now placed in the baroque paintings on the second floor of the Atheneum's Morgan memorial building.

"This extraordinarily generous bequest is a multiple blessing to the Wadsworth Atheneum."

-Patrick McCaughy, Atheneum director

Curator of the European Paintings, Sculpture and Drawings, explained that the works served as an altar piece and was owned by the Marcelli family of Florence from the time of its creation until the mid-twentieth century. "This uneventful ownership history explains the exceptional preservation of the picture," Cardi said. "The painting is in tact, and the canvas is on its original stretcher."

The painting is an excellent example of Cardi's work, according to Cardi. "In the clarity of his narrative and the naturalism of his forms, Cardi revealed his position at the emerging style of the seventeenth century," he said. "He creates in the idiom of Florentine painting an equivalent to the revolutionary works of Caravaggio."

Dorothy Potter Smith was an Honorary Trustee of the Wadsworth Atheneum in 1982-1983 and a donor of the American miniatures, glass tumblers, and an extensive collection of Staffordshire children's mugs to the Atheneum's collection.

Robert H. Smith, Jr., President of the Board of Trustees of the Wadsworth Atheneum, said of Smith, "I remember her well as a shy, modest and principled lady."

The Wadsworth Atheneum's other major acquisition fund is the Ella Gallup Sumner and Mary Catlin Sumner Fund, established in 1927 by Frank C. Sumner for the sole purpose of acquiring paintings. The original amount of the Sumner gift was just over $1 million. Today its principal sum is in the vicinity of $5 million.

The Douglas Tracy Smith and Dorothy Potter Smith Fund (for the Benefit of the Wadsworth Atheneum) is to be paid to the Atheneum for the sole purpose of acquiring works of art of the museum's permanent collection.

The net income from the larger trust, known as the "Douglas Tracy Smith and Dorothy Potter Smith Fund for the Benefit of the Wadsworth Atheneum," is to be paid to the Atheneum for the sole purpose of acquiring works of art for its permanent collection.

"This extraordinarily generous bequest is a multiple blessing to the Wadsworth Atheneum," Patrick McCaughy, Atheneum Director, said.

"The Douglas Tracy Smith and Dorothy Potter Smith Fund will allow the Atheneum to enter a whole new arena in collecting," McCaughy continued. "It will bring the museum's acquisitions to new levels of excellence in all areas of collecting."

The new painting depicts the Virgin Mary as she lifts her drapery to show a sleeping Child and the Christ child. A chorus of angels above parts to reveal the heavens, from which a Host appears.

"It is a particularly inventive '90s piece," said Dr. Jean Carola, the Charles C. and Eleanor Lamont Cunningham

Student/faculty dance performance promises to be a very great success

Here at Connecticut College, one can almost always find a clear example of the immense talent possessed by both students and faculty involved in the arts.

On November 12, 13, and 14 the Dance Club will be performing "In Transit," a recital of several pieces, almost all of which were choreographed by the works served as an altar piece, and at Site 2 in Dana Hall.

I was able to preview three of the pieces and from this viewing I can safely conclude that attending this recital would be time well-spent.

The first of the pieces, "Her Own Wings," was created by sophomore Suzanne Blezard, and is a jazzy, evocative number. According to Blezard, it was "inspired by the wooden birds that my father would carve as a hobby."

In a clever touch, the music used by a famous Bird—Charlie "Bird" Parker, in the words of its creator, junior Karen Whitlock, is "a mixture of sex, drugs, and religion."

The number was inspired by the beginning of the second act of the ballet Giselle, in which a man is danced to death by the "Wills," the ghosts of women who were betrayed by men.

A particularly inventive '90s twist has been added: the distracted individual who is set upon by the Wills is clearly under the influence of a hallucinogen, blurring the line between fantasy and reality.

Even though I was only able to see part of the recital, the quality of work clearly indicated other pieces of the same distinction. Other pieces in the recital are "Said Squarely," by senior Karen Milliner; "Krakowiak" and "Bialy Mazur," both choreographed by faculty member Kim Neal Noftinger; and "Labyrinth," by junior Nicholas Leichter, I definitely recommend "In Transit."

Comedians kick off Yale Rep season with a guffaw

The Yale Repertory Theater's 1992-93 season begins its run November 10. Reno, a performance artist/comedian, begins it all with her piece Reno Once Removed, directed by and developed with Evan Voinovich.

Reno has been called "Harpo Marx with a can of mace, Bette Midler on amphetamines. Grace Allen crossed with Karen Finley sans chocolate."

This artist's shocking one woman show centers on America, covering all of its highs and lows in a hilarious comedic fashion. Reno has performed on HBO and is in the beginning stages of a film career.

She is also appearing at the Long Wharf Theater in a work-in-progress. Her show promises to be an explosive opening to the Yale Repertory's 1992-93 schedule.

On November 21, Paula Poundstone will be performing twice, at 8 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. Poundstone has been a regular on "The Tonight Show" with Jay Leno, and has also appeared on "Late Night with David Letterman" and in HBO specials.

Poundstone is a winner of the American Comedy Award for Best Female Stand-Up, who the New York Daily News declared will "make you laugh in Technicolor."

Poundstone, like Reno, circles around the topic of America, poking fun at American home life and politics. Poundstone's shows are known for their improvisational approach, which leads to large amounts of audience interaction.

Tickets for both shows are $22.50 for the general public and $12.50 for students with an ID. Tickets are on sale now. For more information and to charge by phone, call (203) 432-1234.

Please recycle
The goal characterized the passive appeared to have scored on their After outshooting The Judges by

It uninspired. Its third straight defeat as the Judges jumped jump jumped jumped upon the left edge when junior Vandy French scored of an errant pass amazed for Hackett just over nine minutes into the game. The goal characterized the passive, uninspired play the Camels had exhibited in previous games. Brandeis continued to dominate the game for the next ten minutes until Tom Christy scored a goal through a丛 of shots with a rocket that awed the goal. "That's where it started," said rechtman. "FC. Pete Speer, Maurice Hackett, and myself came out and showed we could do it."

Conn finally tied the game up at the 56:34 mark on a goal from junior sweeper Pete Speer. Senior forward Xelani Xunza chanced down a loose ball near Brandeis' right side and lobbed a cross to the far side of the goal. There was time enough for the ball to snare its victim. Cheney and Gilmartin both were well rebuffed by a diving Robb Bilbury, the Brandeis goalie. Bilbury was unable to control the ball, and Speer punched it by him for the fourth goal of the season.

Then, with a little over three minutes remaining, the Judges appeared to have scored on their second of three consecutive goals. Sophomore Brad Acker beat the Conn defense and lofted a shot over Hackett that appeared to be the Brandeis game winner. But the referee waived the goal off, a hand ball on Acker just before he released his shot. The Camels were relieved to see the clock end regulation as the Judges squandered two breakaways. The winning goal was provided by Cantu-Stille at the 1:15 mark of the first overtime. Cheney launched a rocket that glanced off of the bottom of the cross bar from about twenty yards out and Cantu-Stille was there to head the rebound in.

An insurance goal was added thirteen minutes later when Melchior fired the ball in at the upper right portion of the net. Cheney fed Melchior on a three on two break away, who passed the ball to Cheney and cut towards the goal. Cheney then assisted it to roll to Melchior, who fired it in for the score.

After outscoring The Judges by 25-11 margin, the Camels were fired up for the semifinals against Middlebury. It snowed the night before, and the poor playing conditions made for a low scoring game as Conn won 1-0 and Hackett recorded his seventh shutout.

The winning goal was provided by Speer at the 67:56 mark. Cheney had a foal shot from mid-field and the ball was headed to Gilmartin. He tapped it with his chest and lobbed it to Speer, who put the shot in from six yards out.

IM Update:

NFC and EM Airplanes advance to Superbowl in IM flag football

This weekend the IM department sponsored the Fifth Annual Mike Shirtsall Three-on Three Basketball Tournament. This year it was Team Hansen who took home the championship jerseys as they were undefeated in the double elimination tournament. In the finals, Team Hansen (Rob Hansen, Randy Sco, and Pete Francis) met Team Stefani (Kris Stefani, Matt Sche, and Fran Higgins). A team they had easily EM Airplanes, the preseason favorites, before falling to the unfrequented Planet in the quarterfinals. The Team Hansen was the superior team, and they proved it by winning two TDs to one. The final score was 1-0, The Motor City Team came from nowhere last year to re-state their dominance over the NFC Central.

The IM Super Bowl

For those of you who are unaware of the fireworks that are about to take place on Tuesday afternoon on the Chapel Field, we warn you to be there. The Lions promptly to absorb some artistic lines he has spontaneously brought heavy arsenal with them: a brat. However, the whole production got raves from Schmoozing. Dynaball! Explosive! A Rollercoaster of Emotion! Better than Cash! We Laughed, We Cried, We Didn't Laugh. Schmoozing was an overwhelmingly moving experience that Dob and Pops both changed religions a full three times before intermission.

Monday Night Pick

Last week: Minnepals plus three versus Da Bears Result: The Vikes absolutely and totally destroyed their arch-rivals Da Bears who are slowly being revealed to be the sorry-ass franchise they are. Did's look of desolation across the grass was quite sad, but Dob loves every minute of it. The Vikes are 7-2 and on their way to the NFC Super Bowl. Record: 5-3-3 (625). This week: The San Francisco 49ers travel to the new Georgia Dome to play the Falcons. We're slamming a bit (that's a surprise), so unfortunately we have no idea what's going to happen. So, we're going to get a little light and easy on the spread this week. So, the spread is, take the Falcons. Although the Niners are playing well, we feel they're feeling deep down inside our boners, so that might just be the after-effects of a Harris branch. We'll see you in the winner's circle.
Women's soccer, though unable to close the season with a victory, looks forward eagerly to next season's team.

By Scott Rosenbloom
The College Voice

On Halloween the women's soccer team was still optimistic about making Women's ECAC tournament against Williams in their final regular season game at home. When Williams handed Conn a 3-0 loss, all was quiet as it appeared that the women's varsity soccer team had put on their cleats for the last time in 1992. However, since Halloween was unwilling to treat Conn to the tournament, Santa Claus and Christmas came early on Monday morning presenting the Camels with a special gift: a sixth seed in the ECAC tournament! With rekindled enthusiasm, Conn packed their bags for Massachusetts to play undefeated Babson College on Wednesday, hoping to take advantage of Santa's gift. Unfortunately, Santa did not include a victory in this package and Conn was once again defeated solidly 4-1 by Babson to officially conclude what has been one roller coaster of a season for the Camels. The Camels record for 1992 was a split 7-7-1.

The game against Babson was similar to the game against Williams in that Conn had immense difficulty putting together any offense. Conn's only goal came late in the second half off the foot of sophomore talent and leading scorer for the Camels, Courtney Skully. Babson, on the other hand, demonstrated their own version of "blitzkrieg," scoring one minute into the first half of the game! They managed to score two more goals in the first half and one for good measure in the second half. Needless to say, Babson had no trouble formulating an offense against Conn College's defense — which had been consistently superb throughout the season.

Looking toward next season, a new goalkeeper will be inserted to replace Palmgren, while some of the key players returning next year include junior Crissy Haywood and sophomore Sara Ciotti. A three-year starter, Haywood should be one of the leaders for the team with her experience and solid play on defense. Ciotti’s and Skully’s talented offensive play and maturity in their junior year should also help guide the Camels in the right direction in 1993.

The game against Babson was similar to the game against Williams in that Conn had immense difficulty putting together any offense. Conn's only goal came late in the second half off the foot of sophomore talent and leading scorer for the Camels, Courtney Skully.

Babson, on the other hand, demonstrated their own version of "blitzkrieg," scoring one minute into the first half of the game! They managed to score two more goals in the first half and one for good measure in the second half. Needless to say, Babson had no trouble formulating an offense against Conn College's defense — which had been consistently superb throughout the season.

Looking toward next season, a new goalkeeper will be inserted to replace Palmgren, while some of the key players returning next year include junior Crissy Haywood and sophomore Sara Ciotti.

A three-year starter, Haywood should be one of the leaders for the team with her experience and solid play on defense. Ciotti’s and Skully’s talented offensive play and maturity in their junior year should also help guide the Camels in the right direction in 1993.

Ciotti was very optimistic about next year’s chances. “Next year I think we’ll definitely be stronger,” she said, “and I think that a lot of the young players from this year have gained experience that will help us next year.”

Although Conn had a worse record than last year, soccer coach Ken Kline should be optimistic about his team next year. This year the Camels only graduate two players, which will allow the squad to maintain a solid team chemistry.

The Best Pizza in Town

Sunday - Thursday 11:00 a.m. - 9:00 p.m.
Friday & Saturday 11:00 a.m. - 10:00 p.m.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PIZZA</th>
<th>10&quot;</th>
<th>16&quot;</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>MOZZARELLA</td>
<td>3.95</td>
<td>7.25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ONION</td>
<td>4.25</td>
<td>7.95</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PEPPER</td>
<td>4.25</td>
<td>7.95</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PEPPERONI</td>
<td>4.50</td>
<td>8.30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HAMBURG</td>
<td>4.50</td>
<td>8.30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>OLIVE</td>
<td>4.50</td>
<td>8.30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SAUSAGE</td>
<td>4.50</td>
<td>8.30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MUSHROOM</td>
<td>4.50</td>
<td>8.30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>BACON</td>
<td>4.50</td>
<td>8.30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ANCHOVY</td>
<td>4.50</td>
<td>8.30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>EGGPLANT</td>
<td>4.50</td>
<td>8.30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HAWAIIAN</td>
<td>5.60</td>
<td>9.75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>KIELBASA</td>
<td>5.60</td>
<td>9.75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MOUSAKA</td>
<td>5.40</td>
<td>9.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 WAY COMBO</td>
<td>5.40</td>
<td>9.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3 WAY COMBO</td>
<td>5.65</td>
<td>9.85</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SPECIAL</td>
<td>6.15</td>
<td>11.25</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

WHITE PIZZA 10"

| CLASSIC - Sausage & Green Peppers | 5.95 |
| SUPREME - Eggplant, Sausage & Mushrooms | 6.15 |
| VEGGIE SUPREME - Tomato, Broccoli, Mushrooms, Onions & Peppers | 6.25 |
| MEAT LOVERS - Bacon, Pepperoni, Hamburg & Sausage | 6.95 |

SHEET PIZZA 12.00

1.50 Each Additional Topping

CALZONES

| CHEESE        | 4.50 |
| 1 WAY MEAT    | 5.25 |
| 2 WAY MEAT    | 5.75 |

For Delivery Call 440-2511

Orders to Go 440-2511
Men's Soccer's 1992 ECAC Championship Season

13–2–2

9/16 at Assumption 8–1
9/19 Tufts 4–2 OT
9/23 Coast Guard 1–0
9/26 at Amherst 2–1 OT
9/30 Trinity 2–0
10/3 Salve Regina 5–1
10/6 Clark 2–0
10/10 Wesleyan 2–0
10/14 at Albertus Magnus 5–1
10/17 Bowdoin 3–0
10/23 at Wheaton 1–0 OT
10/24 at Bates 1–1 OT
10/29 at Eastern Connecticut 0–2
10/31 Williams 1–0
11/4 ECAC Quarterfinals Brandeis 3–1 OT
11/6 ECAC Semifinals at Middlebury 1–0
11/8 ECAC Championships at Williams 2–1 OT

Sticksters eliminated from ECAC tourney

by Matt Hravack
The College Voice

The field hockey season begins in the heat and humidity of August and early September. The days are still long; the sun is still bright. It continues through crisp October days filled with orange leaves and weather conditions, the game itself reflects the coach. "We played with the best," said Parmenter. "Sometimes, the ball just has to roll with the best," said Parmenter. "Sometimes, the ball just has to roll

While the field hockey team was bumped out of ECACs by Smith College, they finished with a winning season.

But it is not yet time to completely forget the past. While the Camels did not equal or surpass their 9–5–1 record of 1991, they did finish with a winning mark of 8–7. "It was an up-and-down season," reflects the coach. "We played fantastic in some games. In some games, we didn’t." Mostly, Conn played fantastically. In the eight games in which they triumphed, the Camels out-scored their opponents by a wide-margin of 16–3. In five, Conn did not allow a single goal.

However, in the seven games in which they fell to defeat, the Camels were out-scored by an even wider margin, 14 to one. Six of their losses ended with a zero for the Camels on the scoreboard. Yet most of the games were close; only a 5–0 defeat at Trinity and a 3–0 loss to Clark could be considered blowouts. The last two losses, perhaps two of the best played games of the season, were both lost by a score of 1–0.

With many close contests, at times it seemed as though the only deciding factor was the abstract and enigmatic concept of chance.

"We have the abilities to play with the best," said Parmenter. "Sometimes, the ball just has to roll our way.

The coach has no more time to reflect on a season that now is the property of the ages. The past must be left to the present and future, we'll get the future straightened out."

"Seven seniors are graduating," she says. "Next year's team will have a different blend."