DR. W. T. FOSTER OFFERS CURE FOR DIPRESHION

"Abundance in the midst of plenty" is the "Man-Made Miracle" according to Dr. William T. Foster, Secretary of the Pioneer Foundation for Economic Research, who spoke at Convocation on Tuesday. There is poverty and want because there is too much wealth and too much food. What is wrong? The solution so far offered is to limit production. This is wrong. Production goes on as long as goods can be sold. Consumption stimulates production. The producer can't sell because most people haven't the money to buy what they want. The money with which to buy has been drawn out of circulation, to the extent of nine billion dollars. Therefore wages have decreased to the extent of nine billion dollars. The depression is a monetary phenomenon. It is the regulation of money. There is every material means of abolishing poverty, of raising the standard of living in the United States which was present three years ago. The trouble is not physical, but mental.

There is need for collective action on a large scale. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has recognized this as a financial depression. The latest encouraging word from Washington shows that the leaders are beginning to realize the need for collective action to increase wages.

Technocracy is not a new idea. What should be done is that the machines already in use should be used for the necessary work, instead of being turned out of business. College papers, which are likely to have such an attitude, are often given to revising the book...The discussion of the war debts is an instance of that attitude. This League has been established in the world of journalism, economics and politics. The announcement of a gift of ten thousand dollars by Dr. W. T. Foster, benefactor of the American Foundation for Economic Research, who has given to the League.

BEQUEST MADE COLLEGE BY MRS. FREDERIC BILL

At the Women's Intercollegiate Conference in New York at which the Arecu was represented, Mrs. Ogden Mills Reed of the New York Tribune spoke on "Woman's Place in the Field of Journalism." Having shown how the field of business in general, and journalism in particular has widened until to-day the woman has almost equal opportunity with the man to obtain a position. She explained the requirements for newspaper work, and advised how best to attempt to get a job with a newspaper.

Mrs. Reed said that when women first began to do work outside the home they did only creative work, such as music and the like. Because the newspapers are a combination of both the professional function in general, and a religious and moral function in particular has widened.

L. I. D. TO HOLD LECTURES

The New London League for Industrial Democracy Committee is holding a group of eight lectures by as many men, prominent in the world of journalism, economics and politics, which is the second series of lectures.

The league was formed by people interested in helping America get back on feet again. Many thousands of men and women are deeply shocked by the continuation of the depression. This League has been established as an aid to these men and women in finding an expert presentation on the future, present conditions and also to find constructive solutions.

The first of the lectures will be held Monday evening in the High School Auditorium at 8 P. M. Paul Blanshard, director of the City Affairs Committee (Continued on page 2, column 2)

MOST COLLEGE PAPERS JUST BULLETIN SAYS CONFERENCE SPEAKER

In addressing the various college representatives at the Women's Intercollegiate News Conference held at Connecticut College December 9, 10, and 11, Mr. Clyde Miller of Teachers College said that although the function of the college newspaper is essentially that of a newspaper, it does not normally perform this function in whole, and as a result is more a college bulletin than a real newspaper.

As he explained, the function of college newspapers is to entertain, and to encourage and stimulate thought. It is essentially educational. In that which is really news, however, there is always the element of conflict and of contrast. News items which will necessarily be of interest to the reader are those which show probable disagreement or conflict, and various possibilities of outcome. The discussion of the war debts is an instance of that which is news. Mr. Miller explained further that because a newspaper is not a public body of interests and intelligence, the paper must have an universal appeal. The newspaper, therefore, must be based on the basic elements of man's nature—such as vanity, ambition, hate, love, and the like. The newspaper is in general, however, controlled by an intellectual appeal. It is the tendency of educators to see conflict as not quite so serious as it is when clouded by a浅淡-tilized view. College papers are likely to have such an attitude, unless they want to stir up the desire to evade issues. As a result, college papers become merely college bulletins, printing what has happened or what is happening in the field of college activity and there is nothing to stimulate thought in the mind of the reader.

CONN. DOES ITS BIT

Connecticut College is endeavoring to do its part in relieving the local unemployment situation by raising funds among the faculty, administration officers, and other employees of the college, to be used in furnishing work to the unemployed. To date $1040 has been contributed and 18 men have been given temporary work on the campus. Most of the men employed have previously been connected with the college.

Under the direction of Robert Wheeler, superintendent of the arboretum, work has been extended over the green areas, including the dry wall north of the arboretum entrance, and covering the dam in the arboretum. Other jobs will be created as the relief fund is increased.

PROF. WELLS PUBLISHES IMPORTANT ARTICLES

In a recent issue of the London Times Literary Supplement appears an article by Professor John Miller, which also appeared in the English Department on Variant Copies of the 1798 Edition of Lyricall Ballads by William Gilchrist and Taylor Coleridge. This work, one of the most important monuments of modern literature, and one of the most sought after by scholars and collectors, underwent various changes in the course of its publication.

Dr. Wells is one of the most prominent bibliographers of America. He recently published a book which contains specimens of almost all of the first editions of Wordsworth's writings, the various forms in which they were published during his lifetime, copies of a number of volumes from the poet's personal library, and certain copies of other unique features and associations.

STUDENTSGAINWEIGHT

More than 75% of the freshmen have gained an average of five pounds each since entering college in September and almost 50% of the seniors are eight pounds heavier on an average than when they entered as freshmen. The average loss of weight 3.5 pounds. The average amount of weight lost had been overweight. In this group the average loss of weight was 3.2 pounds.

MODEL LEAGUE MAKES PLANS FOR MEETING

Plans for the New England meeting of the Model League of Nations which is to take place at Smith College in Northampton, Mass., on March 9, 10 and 11, are becoming definite.

There are to be three committees this year. The Disarmament Committee, headed by Ruth Lawson of Mount Holyoke will discuss its problem from the angle of the manufacture and sale of arms. The Political Committee on the Bolivia-Paraguay dispute, under the leadership of E. A. Thompson, and the Economic Committee will discuss its problem from the angle of the like. Because the newspapers are a combination of both the professional function in general, and a religious and moral function in particular has widened.

BEQUEST MADE COLLEGE BY MRS. FREDERIC BILL

The announcement that Connecticut College had been bequeathed a large sum of money with which to build a Chapel or Assembly Hall, received official confirmation this week by President Martin. Mrs. Frederic Bill of Groton, Conn., who died recently, had established through Connecticut College for Women residuary legatee of her estate—the money to be used in building either an Assembly Hall or a Chapel according to the needs of the college.

The amount of money which the College will receive is, of course, not yet known. It is thought that the bequest will be a large sum, it will not be enough for the immediate construction of the building. The probability is that the money will need to be given time to increase before definite plans can be made.

we cannot fool others. Why not be frank about it, acknowledge our system and other ideals of the college. We may fool ourselves, but why be lazy, indifferent, or cowardly, about it?

But though we are annoyed, we are not annoyed enough to try to forget them. We become generally indifferent and lax. Things repulsive to members of a student body. But glossing them course pleasanter not to see or mention the ugly thing in life, or the other deliberately go against his code of honor, and in watching it would be severely criticized for our lack of loyalty to the school, and its necessity for a working honor system, it is time we woke up a bit different to conditions as they are. We refer not to indifference to a calm; it is too much like the calm before the storm. It seems to he desirable. Issues may arise as they have the habit of doing, but as

It is hoped that this service will not only bring worthwhile returns to the students assisting in the work, but that it will gradually assimilate a real place in the college life and be made use of. Prof. Wells Publishes Important Articles

Prof. Wells marked his retirement from the editorship in 1862 by the publication of his astonishing story "The Notch on the Air" in three issues of the magazine. Several years ago, in an elaborately annotated edition of Thackeray's "Roundabout Papers," Dr. Wells showed the story to be a burlesque on the then popular Tale of Terror and on the spiritualistic craze raging in America and Europe, and he presented other novel results from his study of the original manuscript of the piece, all but the opening sheet of which are in the Harvard College Library.

The present article deals with the missing sheet, which was communicated to Dr. Wells recently by Thackeray's granddaughter, through the courtesy of its owner, a friend of the author and of Tennyson. The readings of this sheet enable Dr. Wells again to exhibit Thackeray in the midst of his composition, to trace in detail the hitherto unsuspected development of his conception for his burlesque, and to reveal with interesting intimacy striking practices of the author to be detected only through close familiarity with the original manuscript of his later years.

To me, they are mild—that is, they don't seem to be strong; and there is certainly no bite, so far as I can tell.

To me, they taste better and they have a pleasing aroma.

Every CHESTERFIELD that I get is well-filled, and I feel like I am getting my money's worth—that there is no short measure about it.

I like CHESTERFIELDS. They satisfy me.

You can't blame people for saying "That sounds just like my old college roommate. Some one must have given her the air."
