Panel Discussion, Round Table Talks Highlight Program

by Nancy Garland

UN Weekend, one of the most significant and rewarding of all college events of the entire year, will be held on campus Friday and Saturday, February 23-24. The theme of this United Nations conference is "The United Nations and the World: The United Nations and Our Future." The keynote address will be given by Dr. Peter K. Urry, assistant secretary-general of the United Nations, who will speak on "The United Nations and World Peace." The speakers will be Professors Sigfried Neumann of Harvard University, Dr. D. W. Chamberlin of New London, and Professor Alan Overstreet of Smith College.

On Saturday, schedules include round table discussions in which our foreign students will participate. A total of 16 foreign students will be representing five foreign countries and ten universities.

Future Poets May Vie for $25 Prize

All those interested in vying for the $25 prize for a "Poem on the Theme of Peace" are invited to enter. Poetry prize of $25 may turn their original poems into a life's work of literature. The deadline is April 2.

The poems must be signed with a pseudonym. The author may use either first or second name in the same pseudonym. Entries may be mailed in a sealed envelope to: The Poetry Prize, New London, Connecticut, Wednesday, February 21, 1951.

Tryouts For Two Parts

Tryouts for Wig and Candle spring play "Wig and Candle in Perspective," will be held in Auditorium 202 between 12:30 and 2 p.m. on Thursday, February 22. There are two parts open; the male, Amanda, and the female, Grace. Senior drama students have already been cast for the male parts. Everyone is welcome to try out for the parts, and students who are enrolled in the course may take part in the second semester production.

Auerbach Applications Must Be In By March 1

Applications for the new Auerbach squad must be turned in to Mr. Bebee by March 1. Applications are available in Mr. Bebee's office, Fanning 413.

Economies Majors To Attend Lecture By Freda Diamond

Freda Diamond, home furnishing designer and owner of G. Fox and Co., Hartford, will speak on "Trends in Home Furnishings Today" and "Careers for Women in the Field of Home Furnishings." An informal question period will follow the lecture.

The Auerbach majors are to be housed at a coffee, at 7:15 p.m., which precedes Miss Diamond's speech.

The poems must be signed with a pseudonym and submitted before March 1.

Tryouts February 27

Tryouts for new members Thursday, February 27, at 7:00 p.m., in Hall 101. To take the place of departing seniors, first and second sopranos and altos will be needed.

There is nothing to prepare, says Dr. Allen N. Overstreet, director, "just come and do your best."
This Is Your Conference

This weekend is the concern of every member of the student body. It is everyone's concern because the issues it will present affect your future as well as Europe's, affect your allowance as well as the nation's tax budget.

This weekend we hope you will want to participate. We hope you will want to learn the attitudes of a Turkish boy towards European federation, of a German towards tensions causing wars, and a Czech towards our Far Eastern policy.

We hope you will attend the panels, join the discussions, see the films.

This is your conference. Make the most of it.—S.B.
Five announcers were chosen at tryouts held by Radio Club, February 13. An annual program planned by Religious Fellowship. During this period there will be an evening the Vesper services will be conducted by representatives of different religious groups. Immediately following the Vesper services, the speakers will conduct an open discussion devoted to the religious problems of our society will be extended to the student body. Each week will be devoted to the religion discussed at the preceding Vesper service. It is hoped that this month, devoted to the religion of the Russian Orthodox Cathedral in New York City, Rabbi Bernard Baumberger, D.D. of the West End Synagogue in New York City, will speak on March 4, and Father Alonso J. McDonnell, C.S.P. of St. Ignatius Church in Boston, will speak on March 11. The final couple in this series, John C. Bennett of the Union Theological Seminary in New York City, will conduct the March 18 services.

The class clowns went out on a limb and tried to prove cigarette mildness by the quick-trick method! He tried the fast inhale, fast exhale test—a whiff, a puff—and they still left him up in the air!

But then he got his feet on the ground. He learned that there is a reliable way to discover how mild a cigarette can be!

And that test is . . .

The sensillo test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test which simply asks you to try Camels as a steady smoke—on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed. After you’ve enjoyed Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days in your T-Zone (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you’ll know why . . .

College Representatives Meet To Discuss Service Training

At the invitation of General Hoyt Vandenberg, Chief of Staff, US Air Force, representatives of twenty-one eastern women's colleges met recently at Miss Jacquie O'Cheskey's apartment in New York City to discuss the ways in which the women's colleges can assist in recruiting and training personnel for the Air Force.

General Vandenberg and his staff stressed the fact that they were thinking in terms of a small group of highly trained, carefully selected college graduates. He made it plain that they were not looking for college women to drive trucks or put gas in airplanes. They do not intend to recruit in a hurry but instead plan to set their standards very high and move slowly to attract the very finest college graduates who have leadership ability plus a liberal arts education. Their objective is to secure well-rounded and exceptional college graduates who have leadership ability plus a liberal arts education. Their objective is to secure well-rounded and exceptional candidates. The categories outlined by the General showed that women could be used in all essential activities except those involving unusual physical or combat duty.

The individual is more important than the subject in which she majored, although technical skills and scientific and mathematic training are essential for some positions. Other positions require language ability, unusually good judgment, and an analytical mind. Miss Edmasy will gladly give more details to any interested student.

D.O. Needs Novel Name; Winner Gets Free Meal

The Double Octet wants a name! They want a name with some zip, some oomph— one that has real personality! They are asking your aid in choosing a name with these qualifications. Write down any and all the names you think particularly sensational and send them to Bar Nash, Box 247, Barroom. Require that you avoid the use of numbers in the title as for example octet or dozen, etc. The winner of this contest will be announced sometime in March. She will be the guest of honor at a dinner given in the spring by the members of the Double Octet. Get your entries in soon — the D.O. wants to be named.

tended our power of control beyond our powers of comprehension, but Dr. Pollard believes that this situation will right itself in time.

In the techniques of science for use "people from all over the world meet in discussions, and experimental programs result." The scientist works with other experts and needs their help and understanding of the problem.

"Science is not a matter of personality, it continues without the individual. No one can really hope to make a contribution that no one else can make—one can only hope to make it at a time when no one else does," Dr. Pollard seriously advised those who enjoyed the sense of stimulation that comes from exploring and discovering to think seriously of a career in the sciences. "For," he concluded, "there will always be room for more scientists, and as long as the scientist can think freely the work and experimentation will go on for the betterment of society as a whole."
