Around The Town

Perhaps you are wondering where you could go this week end that would be "different." The Lighthouse, Malloy's, Blue Meadow, and Windmill all have their advantages, and are conveniently located, so that you can get to them with ease. For those of you, however, who want a change of pace, and perhaps to spend the evening, you might want to suggest a few of the following places to some of your friends. While you can get to the Lighthouse or Windmill by bus, you will need a call to reach the Norwich Inn, or Norwich Inn The Wagon Wheels, The Ferry Tavern, or the Sea Horse.

The Griswold Inn in Essex is excellent both for dinner and dancing, as well as the Wagon Wheels, and the Wagon Wheels is about fifteen minute drive from the Windmill. They have made a specialty of French foods, which is sometimes a nice change from the seafoods which other places offer as their specialty. The price starts at about $1.75, and the food is very good. The Ferry Tavern in Old Lyme is more formal than the Wagon Wheels, and is also an expensive Dinner starts at about $2.50, but if it is well worth the service. There is excellent food and atmosphere. There are lots of little"extras," and they certainly do not spare the food. Though the service is good, prepare to linger over dinner, for you probably won't get such a good meal for a long time. Even the rolls are hot! I advise you to make reservations beforehand for all these places, so you will not be disappointed after you have made the long drive.

What to do during the day is always a problem, and I have only two suggestions. First, why don't you visit the Marine Museum in Mystic? You can make your date feel very special by helping her help you get up and down the old whaling ships, and even learn something on the side. Second, some of you may not know about the added attraction at the Windmill every Sunday afternoon at 3:00. The trio plays different songs, for which you have to name the title, the winner who names the most titles receives two free dinners there. They also serve hors d'oeuvres, so when you finish your plate at the end of the week end you can pick up a free stepper. This ends a gay week end!

ADVERTISMENT

Try Muscol (new variety of your old favorite Hadiclo). This is our wonderful New cure-all designed especially for ailments of the nose, throat, and lungs. It is the only thing I know of that cures what everybody has heard about the new Muscol.

"My throat is often hurt by singing. Muscol feels so good on my throat."

Thank you L.L. Linda of the Smithgrovrd.

"My T zone is such a bairer. My but I find Muscol most valuable!

Thank you Dotty Lamb of Vahsar.

Thoreau Descim of the Weslayan Jacky says:

"In an extinguishing search for throat relief, I tried all of your medicinal aids including Hadiclo, Havigcal, Hadiclo, I find, however, that New Muscol is much better!"

Muscol: Rah!

Dick Imball of the Wheatpoffs affirms:

"Try Muscol, it really works!"

Freeman middlesex: yourself. Come to the Comm. College Soup on Frederick day. February 24, and see for yourself some one hundred and fifty living examples of the way in which New Muscol soothes the throat and aids in producing Muscol harmony.

As you may know, my office is in Palmer Auditorium. Before concerts, convocations, and the like, I am frequently bothered by delivery men who, apparently, believe my office is the Business Manager's, deliver into my hands banquet, ticket programs, and other unnecessary trinket stage properties. As long as I am able to discover what these items deliver and to whom they are supposed to belong to, I don't mind these intrusions, and I generally make an attempt to notify the person for whom the items are intended.

But now the situation has become intolerable: for the past week, my office has been entered or opened or may other wise accessed, this is a matter of my author, an above all, your honor.-"...

Show Proceeds Aid Post War Services Which Help Needy

The Post War Services Committee will be receiving the proceeds of Skits-o-Frenia 1952, one of our more worthy organizations on campus. Working particularly through the Save the Children Federation, this joint student-faculty committee contributed more than $3200 last year to needy children both here and abroad. Besides sponsoring a Greek and a French school, they contributed half the proceeds of this entertainment.

The theme of both the dance and the entertainment will be announced later. Tickets are on sale at $3.20, a bargain for the week. Purchase your ticket on February 19, through Thursday, February 21. Although there is a limit on the number of these tickets, there is a 50-cent charge for those who will sit at the table next to you.

All the proceeds from this dance will go to the fund of the Connecticut College Service League. For information of those who wish to make a contribution in advance of this fund, the Service League uses it in order to aid institutions which are not included in either the Community Chest or in the Red Cross.

Among the committee heads for the dance are Sue Bennetto '52, Miss Brett, Miss O'Neill's Shop, Miss Oakes, Miss Mayhew, and Mr. Rocco.

The Fleur de Lys, the symbol of Freshman Sophomore Week was brought to close last Wednesday evening by the Fraternity speech on Citizenship and Education. A graduate of Amherst College and an editor of the Daily Princetonian, Mr. Tead has first experience in education in his position as trustee of his alma mater. He has been Chairman of the Board of Higher Education in New York City. Mr. Tead began his lecture by listing what citizenship means. He stated that citizenship is any action which is participated in or supported by man. It is his belief that Citizenship implies the recognition and fulfillment of the responsibilities of one's self. He stressed the point that a good citizen must have responsibilities to his fellow men over and above, and beyond, the self-conscious and self-centered society like our is weak because its citizens do not understand their democratic traditions. The traditions combined to make a sense of adequacy and its well being. Citizenship implies the rights and duties of man. It is the recognition of the limitations of one's own capacities.

Further advantages to man is gained from the study of history. He quotes a respect for facts, an appreciation of human rights and the spirit of collaborative effort.

The business of compulsory meetings and the making of clubs is definitely confused, misunder.

stood by many, and to date—unchilled. Here is the way it will work.

For the present winter season:

1. The criteria for Club membership for all sports will be in terms of presence at tryouts and practices, and participation in scheduled competition. Presence at the present compulsory meeting will be considered an extra point in the girl's favor and can be used in deciding borderline cases.

2. For all seasons after the present:

1. Compulsory meetings will still be held for the individual sports. At this time the manager outlines rules, regulations and schedules for the coming season.

1. In team sports there will be no question of presence at tryout meet-

2. The first tryout, however, will be compulsory for club members.

3. Class managers will be elected at this tryout.

It's the sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camel as your steady smoke, on a day-after-day, pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments! Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why...

Marines Offer Inducements of Travel And Good Pay for College Graduates

Why does a woman join military service? That's a question many CC students probably have asked time and time again.

"Answers—plenty of them—were given by Lieutenant Patricia Maas, a United States Marine Corps officer of the familiar variety, Lieut. Maas visited the Connecticut campus recently to rekindle college officials with the Women’s Officer Training Corps. She did it by explaining this:

"There are still many women these days who look forward to getting married and rearing a family right after they leave college," according to Lieut. Maas. "But there are quite a few others who want to try their hand at a vocation first."

"Military service offers both practical and emotional appeal to women who are choosing a vocation or career," she said. "College women, with their educational backgrounds, are very practical on the subject of a career. They want to know about the pay and opportunities of a job as quickly as anything else."

Advantages Over Civilian Jobs

"Women in the Marine Corps are on an equal footing with the men. They get the same pay, responsibilities and privileges. A Marine Corps second lieutenant draws $313.75 a month as basic pay. In addition she gets $42 a month for food, and if quarters are not furnished, she receives $60 more. That's a total of $373.75. How many civilian jobs offer that much to a young woman just out of college?"

Lieut. Maas also pointed out that women in military service are not required to spend as much on clothes. While on duty, women Marines wear their uniforms, off duty, they may wear civilian clothes. They have commissary privileges, free insurance and free medical and dental care.

Emotional Appeal

"There is definitely an emotional appeal to military service," she answered. "I think of few careers in which my work would be more worthwhile. There are shortages of officers in all branches of the armed forces and women officers have the satisfaction of serving their country in a time of need. We feel necessary and useful, so to speak—and I think that means a lot to any woman."

In answer to your question, "And why did you pick the Marine Corps?" Lieut. Maas replied:

Chance for Travel

"Noting that many young women are interested in travel, Lieut. Maas said that the Marines offer many opportunities for visiting interesting places throughout the United States and a limited number of women Marines are now selected to serve with the Pacific Fleet Marine Force headquarters in Hawaii. On the social side, the Marine visitor said ample recreation facilities are available in the Marines. Women officers have full use of clubs for themselves and their dates.

"I believe the opportunities for leadership and responsibility are among the principle attractions of military service," Lieut. Maas contended that a flush officer is faced with many situations that require initiative, intelligence and common sense. College campus leaders will find ample opportunity to use their talents in the Marine Corps. Interested CC women are asked to consult the Personnel Bureau in regard to Women's Officer Training Class. College women enrolling in the class can earn a promotion as second lieutenant in the Marine Corps upon graduation by successfully completing two summer training courses at the WOTTC at Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va. Physically qualified students, at least 18 years of age and not over 25 by July 1 of this year, are eligible for enrollment.
