Dr. Moltz to Talk on Rodents In Psychology Series Lecture

Dr. Howard Moltz, one of the foremost authorities on a specific form of learning known as "printing" will present "Parrot's Memory and its Role in Rodent Behavior" as the third lecture in the Psychology Series Lecture. The talk will be given on Thursday, December 10, at 7:30 in the Palmer auditorium.

After the play, which will begin at 8:00 in the main lounge of C.A. West Wing, copies will be served; Christmas cards will be sung in French.

Dr. Robert Lutz, of the Department of Psychology, will lecture on the topic "Psychological Behavior of Domestic Rodents" on Thursday, December 11 in the main lounge of C.A. West Wing.

Mr. Butler, Director of the N.Y. Metropolitan Opera, will lecture on the topic "The Art of Singing" on Friday, December 11 in the main lounge of C.A. West Wing.
Music Organization Invites Connecticut To Create Chapter

Music organizations offer, to its affiliated chapters, foreign art programs, special foreign students, and travel grants as part of the plan for students. For this reason, the Jeunesses Musicales chapter on the Connecticut College campus with the organization and the requirements for a campus chapter are explained in the accompanying article in this issue of ConnCen.

We would like to encourage the formation of a Jeunesses Musicales chapter on the Connecticut College campus with more student participation in music through the formation of a student chapter. The purposes of the Carnegie Hall-Jeunesses Musicales program are explained in the accompanying article in this issue of ConnCen.

Even if the Jeunesses Musicales program could not be instituted on campus, we would like to see more student involvement in the arts for the spring "Fine Arts Weekend." Student comment is invited.—Anne K. Taylor

Letter to Editor

To the Editor:

The death of Dr. Florence Waring, Jeunesses Musicales, which is only now spreading to the United States through the formation of special choral and instrumental groups. Although Dr. Waring, a great loss to Connecticut College, was an inspiring almost all who came in contact with her. Her death is a great loss to Connecticut College to affiliate itself with this musical organization and the requirements for a campus chapter are explained in the accompanying article in this issue of ConnCen.

College Hosts Adult Courses For Two Advanced Programs

This year, Connecticut College is host to two programs for adults. First, a mathematics institute and the other, a group of courses given in conjunction with the New London Symphony Orchestra are open to adults who wish to pursue the effect of the same western, southern, or New England orientation. Two courses have imposed themselves on the young adult, whether he is white or black.

In living here as an individual (representing anyone but myself) I may have come to understand if will get me discounts on room rates at Sheraton Hotels & Motor Inns. Good deal.

Secret Santas Lose Jolliness
Trying to Reduce Proportions

"'Tis the season to be jolly,"—but only the original Claus character seems to take this seriously. The "with a straight face" Santas are hardly the rotund stereotype. Most are walking away or trying to do so.

Yet, in the wake of this fasting fad, the Diet Watchers of America, a consumer group compiled a list of Diet Tips for a guide to the layman. It is useful in explaining the strange habits of the Dieting Breed to those who have not yet joined the ranks.

Substitutive-Slaver—they make sure everyone knows about their diet; while eating a hot fudge sundae, they will say that they had no potatoes at dinner because they're on a diet.

"Not to be confused with Last Night Flingers—their comment is a sly one, 'I'm too busy tonight, I'll start my diet tomorrow.'"

Team-Tempters—they need moral support and so convince fellow overweights to diet. Their method is the same as Team A, except that the group loses the most gets to eat it all back at the expense of the others.

Eat-and-Runners—they resort to the old Roman way of weight control.

QuickerCrashers—distinguished by shaky hands, bitten fingernails, and their empty chair at every meal. These desperate souls have music, decorations, set mood for sale of Russian foods

Strains of gypsy and cossack with "original" food and arts filtered through the dimly lit lounge as the Russian Club sponsored its first food sale, entitled "An Evening in Moscow." Produced by the Russian Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Wiles, presented a program of instrumental music Thursday, December 10, in Harkness Chapel.

Orchestra Presents Christmas Program

The Connecticut College Orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Wiles presented a program of Instrumental Christmas music Thursday, December 10, in Harkness Chapel.

The following selections for quartet were included in the program: "Seven Canonic Movements on Old Christmas Tunes" by General Wolfe, "Shepherd Music for Christmas" by Gregorio Werner and "Pastorale" by Locchi. Also presented were three "Arie Alleluia" with solo solo by Frances Rakatansky, of the class of 1967, accompanised by Mr. James Denby, college organist.

This Christmas program was given under the joint-sponsorship of the department of music and Religious Fellowship.
