I believe that a whole lifetime is nothing weighed in the balance against a moment's lifting of the veil that hides Beauty.

and that the worst private sin is to take pleasure in the pain and discomfort of others.

just as it is necessary to keep to the right in traffic.

and, indeed, in the cations, for a world without art is no world at all.

Away from "sad tales of the death of kings" is the amazing success of the million dollar patriotic parade, "The American Way.

The writer of the article seemed to forget the above facts completely. To me the write-up lacked the life and the color that I believe a good college newspaper should have. It was dull and impersonal. In reading it I was reminded of the words of a Ladies Quilting Bee at Tampers Corner.

Please, someone, tell me why we, as Sophomores, don't deserve greater recognition!!!

I believe that the best luck in life is to be happily married, and that the next best luck is to have good friends.

I believe that we are ninety per cent animal, and that the remaining ten per cent offers us our chance to rise above or sink below the animal level.

I believe in the enjoyment of simple things—a child's love for a toy, a smile between friends, a touch of kindness, a word of greeting tossed after a long walk, being old again.

I believe that Music is the highest of the arts because its peak is the unanswerable mathematics in having no meaning interpretable in words as is the case with the Binomial Theorem and a Bach Fugue, are in the long run more important than all the battles in history.

I believe that it is good to know that the exploitation of desire in terms of greed for profit is the same cause of our civilization is dying.

I believe that Ideas will survive, and that, if there were no other immortals, this would be many others of the class of 41 who bear my same sentiments.

The Soph Hop write-up in the December 7th edition of the "News" was certainly anything but inspiring. Yes, I am a Sophomore, but that is not my sole purpose for being so indignant. I think this is a CCP affair which interests the entire college. It is one of the largest dances of the year, and every year the Sophomore class goes to great lengths to make the dance a festive affair of prime importance. It selects members of the Freshman class to act as hostesses, it plans for original decorations, and hopes to attain almost unrealized success in engaging a "name" band.

Dean Burdick Addresses Students; Urges Appreciation and Consideration of Significance of New Chapel

Editor's Note: The following article is from the chapel service of Feb. 8.

For as many years as I have been at Connecticut College, students and faculty alike have complained that we have no proper place in which to hold devotional services. At least four times in each college generation there have been requests to have our religious services somewhere other than in this building—in the Outdoor Theater, since we've had one, in Knowlton—places where there is positive atmosphere more conducive to religious thought. We have said we cannot think of spiritual things with glaring lights, ropes, rings and bankets to detract from our otherwise concentrated attention to spiritual things.

How were these complaints and requests meant that we really desire services devotional in character? Do we really wish to have services of dignity and reverence? Are we really for devotional services, or were the usual activities of halls and buildings from this serve our purposes as well?

How much will a building called a chapel do for the religious life on this campus? What if any responsibility is ours for preparing ourselves for each other? I should like to call your attention to portions of President Blunt's annual report referring to the chapel.

"We laid the corner stone of the beautiful Harkness Chapel on Oct. 14, with a brief but impressive ceremony.

"The only speaking was the prayer and invocation, and our own very own expressions of appreciation and hope for the great service which the chapel will accomplish for the College.

"The chapel will fill a great need on the campus, for the Alumni, for the scholars, for the students, and for the alumni; and if it is doubted as to how we might serve, we have already seen the great result in the unifying mood of atmosphere of worship, and that religion is ours... We must comprehend in worship. As great care must be taken in understanding as is taken in the classroom. And, by the way, the classroom is a good place to learn things. I commend you to the taking of courses in religion; yes, and in philosophy. Are you studying these subjects earnestly and with profit? (Continued on page 4)

Notice... What could be better than an afternoon of outdoor skating, plus music, food, and fun served in Buck Lodge the Sunday afternoon following Mid-Winter Formal? The skating party will be there in ice!—will last from three to five in the Arboretum pond. Bring your dates, bring your skates. Enjoy having the skating party yourself and seize the opportunity of seeing some exhibition figure skating.

Breakfast Skating Party Enjoyed by Students

Twelve C.C.O.C. girls celebrated Lincoln's birthday in this nationwide organization. It was an excellent day for skating, crisp, clear, and windy. At 7:45 we met at Buck Lodge for breakfast which consisted of hamburgers and rolls, fruit, crullers, and juices. After breakfast, the girls soon poured out of the Lodge.

Women's Group Offers Seniors Membership

American Association Of University Women Extends Welcome

The American Association of University Women extends its cordial welcome to all members of the Class of '39 to become members of this national organization.

Founded in 1882, the aims of the Association are twofold; first, to help broaden the educational and ethical life of women college graduates; and second, to promote educational progress in the community and throughout the country, particularly by establishing fellowships for study in specialized fields. All graduates of an approved list of colleges and universities are eligible for membership in the A.A.U.W. Connecticut was placed on the approved list in 1925. Women who have completed two full years of academic work in any approved college or university are offered associate membership in the organization.

Branch and General Membership

Those who desire to join the A.A.U.W. may do so either as general or members. Branches of the Association exist in all communities of reasonable size, and in many cities special junior groups have been organized for younger college graduates. In the last place, on the other hand, it makes possible for women who live at a distance from any branch of the Association to join the national organization. All Association privileges are accorded to general members except the right to attend branch meetings, and to vote in national elections.

A.A.U.W. branches foster study groups in languages, international problems, creative writing, child psychology, and labor relations, as well as in many other subjects of general interest. Drama groups have established little theatres, and groups pursuing social studies have made surveys and reports on the life of one's own community. Joint meetings are held in some communities with the League of Women Voters.

Social events are also an important and integral part of the A.A.U.W. program. General meetings include teas, dinners, and parties, where the young college graduate may meet and enjoy the companionship of women of similar interests.

Many Opportunities Provided

As part of the Association's program of "practical educational work," branches have organized open forums and study groups under the direction of educational opportunities for young people, guided high school graduates in the selection of colleges and universities. Books for school libraries. The Connecticut College library was, during the past year, the recipient of an extensive gift of books on women and about women, presented by the state federation of A.A.U.W. branches as a memorial to Mrs. Florence Robinson.

A.A.U.W. branch activities are not rigidly standardized. Groups throughout the nation seek in their own way to expand their membership among their own towns and cities. Fellowships are awarded annually to women in college or university, and the members are encouraged to enable them to pursue graduate work.
