Purchase of $1000 Bond Set by Sykes Committee as Coal

During the first week of the semester, the senior class will hold a bond drive in order to raise money for the Sykes fund which will be used for the building of a student union house. General dormitory halls, as well as recreation rooms are planned for the house.

Stamps and Money

The purchase of a $1000 war bond is the goal of the drive to which students can contribute either directly or indirectly. A minimum donation of $1.00 from each student will vary according to the number of the bond which the seniors hope to raise.

In each dorm of the senior class will give tickets to each holder of a $100 bond. Tickets will have a chance to win one of the five $50 prizes which will be paid off at the senior class meeting. At that time, a total of $25,000 will be paid out in $500 bonds.
A Gripe About Griping

There are some of us who are disheartened by the lack of cooperation with the administration in the matter of griping about the campus situation. Some students are advocating the campaign to give up griping and start another movement. It is true that some gripes are legitimate, but it is more detrimental to the campus to have a constant stream of complaints than to have a realistic plan of action. The only way to make the campus run smoothly is to have a well-organized plan of attack, and that is not possible if every student is griping about something.

The thought of one gripe will soon lead to another unless that complaint is registered with the administration. The motivating force here is often the determination of the individual to do something about the bad situation. It is true that some gripes are legitimate, but the campus is too big and too complex to expect every student to be unhappy with something. The only way to make the campus run smoothly is to have a realistic plan of action, and that is not possible if every student is griping about something. The only way to make the campus run smoothly is to have a realistic plan of action, and that is not possible if every student is griping about something.

The support of the administration is necessary for the establishment of an international campus. The campus is too big and too complex to expect every student to be unhappy with something. News and Opening Chapel Subject of Talk by President

President Dorothy Schaffer delivered her first chapel talk on Tuesday, January 24, and discussion of the college service for the new year of mid-year graduation and praise of the humanities. Miss Schaffer explained that "Many students would like to have a real opening for the second semester, instead of rushing into a routine manner, and we have arranged a speaker who will undoubtedly give the new semester a stimulating start." Recommendations Speaker

Of the speaker at the special chapel service at 1 p.m. on February 12, the president said that, "When I last heard the man who will talk to you that afternoon be delivered one of the finest addresses which I have ever heard, and I asked him to come many months ago to see if he would be willing to talk to you." Miss Schaffer, as leader of her own college service and to thus advance understanding of the humanities, announced that "It is a treat hearing the good music, a fine ad-

Student Life

As the college enters its second year with more confidence and more freedom, the students are considering the future, and are more active in the Student Government. The crew selection has been started and the basketball tournament is in full swing. Many students are working on their term papers, and some are preparing for their final examinations. The college newspaper, the Connecticut College News, has been published regularly and has featured various articles on student life. The Connecticut College News is a comprehensive exhibit of various student achievements, and is included woodcuts by Thomas Poole. The newspaper is adjudged outstanding in the Lyman Allyn museum.

MIDWINTER

At midwinter is part of college tradition. Four students are selected for membership in the floor committee. It’s up to them to keep the party moving and to help people have a good time. You won’t be able to miss them for they’ll be dressed pretty much alike and will be in prominence.
There are the college plans for Midwinter week. Shade the dust ort

Place of Religion
In Soviet Russia
Discussed Sunday
At vigper services last Sunday evening Reverend William How-ond and Miss Margaret Church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, spoke on the Reemergence of Religion in Soviet Russia.

Jesus said that God promised security to religious institutions in so far as these institutions fulfilled their roles, and Rev. Molish, and that is the reason for the failure of traditional Russian religion and for the birth of the newer concept of religion in Russia.

The reason, according to Rev. Molish, that religious institutions in Russia were attacked was that they were not satisfactorily fulfilling their role. The Orthodox Church in Russia was a strong tradition, owning a tremendous amount of property and virtually controlling the daily lives of the Russian people, stated Rev. Mel-ish. He pointed out that those who belonged to the Orthodox Church had special privileges and advantages and that the church was in effect a department of the state and God was being used by a class of exploiters.
