Campus skating rink possibility for fall

An area ice skating rink may be built by next fall between the Physical Plant building and the South Campus tennis courts, President Charles E. Shain announced this week.

The possibility of a rink a year in the making, called for a facility to be constructed and operated by Dr. Ross Pierpont, a Baltimore real estate developer. Mr. Shain said the College would only lease the land and would put no money into the construction.

He said a “letter of intent”—a form of commitment to the undertaking—will be sent shortly to Mr. Pierpont at the direction of the Board of Trustees.

Payment to the College for the land, according to Shain, will probably come as two hours of ice time per day, which at $50 an hour is worth $25,000 a year. Although arrangements are only “provisional,” the President said that the College would likely take gradual control of the rink operation over a 20-year period.

He added that there was some chance that the College would receive a percentage of the gross receipts in the meantime.

Mr. Pierpont intends the rink to be a money-making operation. If successful, Mr. Shain said, it might net $300,000 a year. The developer is said to have interested the Coast Guard Academy, the submarine base, and the New London community in using the facility. It would be taxable property.

The rink would be large enough for two ice sheets plus spectator seats, at an estimated cost of $800,000 to $1 million.

Dr. Pierpont and William Nahus, mayor of New London, met with the Board of Trustees last week for serious discussions about the rink.

By Lynn Cole

Tei was asked after a Conn Student Senate was raped in her complex room, the door by which the rapist probably entered her dormitory is unlocked and unsealed. Two Pundit editors Monday between 12:30 a.m. and 1:30 a.m. also found that without keys they could easily enter 11 campus dormitories. In addition to the complex dorms, K.B., Smith, Hurttick, Freeman, and PA were not secured.

The front door of Park may not be locked because the locking mechanism is broken. According to one Park resident the fact that the door does not lock is widely known by residents of his dorm.

In the old dorms the straps that keep the door open were fastened in the unlocked position.

“The doors were checked at hourly intervals,” said Francis P. O’Grady, chief of security, and a special man was in the Complex all night.”

“Of course we found several (old) doors unlocked,” he continued.

Faulty door probably rapist’s entrance

Dorms are locked at about 7 p.m. and then reopened at 6 a.m. by the security guards. However, it is a simple matter to unlock the doors in every dorm once security has made their rounds.

In the old dorms a strap can be refastened; in the complex dorms a tab on the top of the door frame can be lifted preventing the door from closing completely.

During the half-hour investigation of the Complex, no security guard was spotted by the Pundit editors.

WeNI has received its F.M. license, Page 5.

...but SAT’s down

by Carol Gordon

While colleges across the country find it more difficult to fill their class rosters and many face the prospect of closing for lack of students, Conn. enjoys a 25 per cent increase over last year in the number of applicants.

However, Conn. does follow another national trend—the decline in Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores of incoming freshmen. It was in an interview with Jeannette B. Hersey, Director of Admissions here.

Over the past five years Conn’s SAT scores have continued to slip and must have dropped 20 points to the present 590 for both, “but achievement test scores are substantially higher,” stated Ms. Hersey. She attributes this drop not to a less intelligent student body, but to a possibly invalid method of testing. “The SAT does not test what is currently being taught in college; we are dealing with a TV generation, as contrasted with earlier generations for whom reading was a habit. (The drop in SAT scores) might reflect the impact of non-verbal communication,” she added.

Director Hersey agrees with the Educational Testing Service (ETS) which “prepares and scores” the SAT’s, that the exam is being taken by a broader range of students, yet less of the brighter students are taking the exam because of “disaffection” with college. Since most colleges including Conn do not consider the exam score as important as class standing, extra-curricular activities and recommendations, students take the SAT only once that year.

While admitting that the “high tuition discourages many from applying,” Ms. Hersey stated, “still many others are lured here by the warmth of the campus and the new academic program which is found to be flexible.”

“there is no doubt that the reputation is improving. Despite the fact that the school is co-ed, many women come here because they believe it is dedicated to a woman’s education.”

Surprisingly a higher percentage of non-white women who are accepted eventually come here. 35 per cent more men have applied this year than last, 20 per cent more women. The admissions office expects to process “well over two thousand applications,” and has held 1750 interviews since last July.

Student speeches

Candidates for the Student Government office of president, vice president, and chairperson of Judiciary Board will present their speeches on Tuesday, February 25, at 7:00 p.m. in Hale Hall, room 122.

Voting will take place in all dorms the next day, Wednesday, February 26.

Within: Student Government candidates give their platforms on pages 8 and 9.

WCNI has received its F.M. license, Page 5.

Student advice unsought in staff decisions

by Sue Maders

Student Advisory Committees’ rights to consideration of faculty employment decisions have been recently announced departmental decisions, a Pundit survey indicated this week.

Students’ rights to action and consideration on faculty employment decisions have been violated repeatedly in the ten recently announced college faculty changes. The Student Advisory Committees for every academic department were created to allow students to represent their opinions and to bring those opinions to the attention of the department chairperson.

In a survey of the ten departmental decisions affected by faculty changes, four of these committees were either not informed or not consulted about the specific, change being made by their departments. In five cases, student advisory committees had meetings, were consulted and were allowed to vote and/or take surveys of student departmental feelings (especially concerning termination issues). However, they (Continued On Page 10)

Breaking in is easy. Pundit editor Bernie Zelitch, assuming a shifty posture, entered Park without a key.

Blackstone

Blackstone, presently the only black dorm on campus, will be entered in the all-campus housing lottery this spring. Besides being a dorm, Blackstone also serves as a black cultural center. This may be moved off campus.

According to President Charles E. Shain, the New England branch of the Civil Rights Division of Health, Education, and Welfare in Boston suggested to the College that it should discontinue its all black dorm.

"The students saw the letter (from) the National Urban Coalition and were convinced of what we were convinced of long ago, that it (Blackstone) was out of date," Mr. Shain said.

Blackstone has been an all black dorm for four years. When asked if Blackstone will be co-ed next year, Mr. Shain said he was not sure.

Mr. Shain noted a financial problem the school has had in keeping it an all-black dorm. "The College was losing money on it. Not enough were living in the dorm," he said.

Mr. Shain added that a minority or cultural center may be set up at 158 Mohegan Ave. in New London. This building is presently faculty apartments. There is a possibility that four students might live upstairs at the cultural center.

When asked if there was much animosity about the decision, Audrey Sharpe, housekeeper of Blackstone, said, "There was no choice. It’s not as though President Shain said it. The word came from higher up." Ms. Sharpe added, "It’s not something you agree with but accept."
To the Editor:

Great reporting in the February 14 Pundit—accurate and clear. Many thanks.

Sincerely,
Mary N. Hall, M.D.,
Director, Student Health Service

The Cro Bar is not our first extremely lucrative week at the Cro Bar. It has become apparent to Attilio M. Regolo, Permittee, and the Council of Faculty and Students that in order to minimize any misunderstanding or hard feelings, the college community should be aware of the state laws and regulations under which the bar operates. It is imperative that we receive your assistance in the enforcement of these regulations. You are hereby reminded:

1. State fire laws make the capacity of the bar 80 people. You probably have experienced cars waiting line outside, please bear with us. The doormen keep a constant count. You help abet the wait by being considerate. If you’ve had four pitchers, let someone else have a chance at it.

2. The license issued is a special license requiring a Conn College imprint; it must be presented at the door.

3. No, repeat, no alcohol beverages are served in the Cro Bar—just beverages that are availed of in accordance with the bar’s policies.

The codes that the Committee have been enforcing are necessary to meet legal requirements without intruding on the privileges of our guests. You will note that we have left on the racks provided outside, or in the corridors in the bathroom, this sheet which provides more room for people in booths and will allow our waitresses to move quickly and efficiently through the bar. More importantly this policy will help us enforce the no liquor rule. If you wish to stand at the bar or wish to pick up your own beer rather than use the waitresses, please leave space to the left of the bar. The cash register so waitresses can give and receive orders. Patrons with a college I.D. are entitled to bring one guest. One guest provided must be with proof of age and he sign the guest register. You as his host are responsible for his actions. Food purchased in the snack shop may be brought in and consumed in the bar.

We realize the limitations of the area we have to work with. The Cro Bar serves no other students on this campus and is a saloon regulated by the state liquor commission. For this reason we have to be careful to prevent any problems. We must stress that failure to obey the rules of the bar will cost us the license. We cannot, have not and will not tolerate behavior that will jeopardize our operation. The Cro Bar is a privilege, enjoy it often, use it freely but regard it as such.

Doug Miley
Boy Taylor
For The Cro Committee

To the Editor:

In an article in the Pundit of Feb. 14, Mr. Shain is quoted as saying that the P.M.A. says it’s, “I am a man in a way. It is a kind of bar mitzvah.” Actually, the P.M.A. is not saying that thing. It may say one is a chosent or a maven in his area of specialty, but not a man. A P.M.A. may indicate one is technically skilled or knowledgeable. However, it is certainly no indicator of maturity. The P.M.A. is no kind of bar mitzvah either. It may be a kind of rite of passage, but it is no kind of a man’s man. It is no kind of Jewish ceremony — no matter how many Jews you may think are, Jewish. All of which goes to show, I guess, that Mr. Shain has not Yiddische kopt. But then I guess what else one could expect. I hope that we will continue our scheduling commencement and both registration dates this year on Shabbos.

Shalom,
Yakov ben Chiam
Ed. note: The writer of this letter wishes his true identity to be withheld.

Concern for rape and security needed

Pundit conducted its simple test of security this week to see how easy it is for unwanted people to enter the dormitories. One unwanted (and unappreciated) person really likes to rapists. He has really enjoyed his entrance, but he has many vagrant and sometime thieving colleagues who get less notice. A number of them may have in the early hours passed through the unlocked doors which Pundit found to be commonplace.

It is probably that the rapist entered the Complex through the permanently open door in Park. Although the faculty is usually out all those who should make it their business to worry have not noticed about the door. Weeks after Conn’s first dormitory rape, the broken door remains a testament to sloppy thinking about dormitory security.

The Park house fellow, Patricia Whittaker, says that until Pundit pointed it out to her last Monday, she was unaware of the faulty lock. And President Charles E. Shain has spoken to Pundit about the need for “proper use of keys” as if keys could have closed a broken door.

When asked Jan. 30 what, if any, precautions will be taken to prevent future campus rape, the President told Pundit, “Any answer I make will seem to many people ineffective.” There has never been a rape on campus, to my knowledge, before this one. But as you know, the privacy of many rooms has been invaded for the purposes of stealing. All we can do is to try to persuade people to protect themselves by the proper use of keys they are given and by asking them to accept responsibility for the safety of others by the kind of basic consideration that people living in a group must always have for one another.

It is worth discussing the rape and its inappropriate response, or more accurately, its lack of response. The FBI says that all rapes have increased in the last five years by 70 per cent. Although break downs are not available, rapes have increased because the rise—no less than the places like the University of Michigan’s Ann Arbor, but also at the places like Swarthmore (Pa.) College. According to a recent survey by Associated Press writer Terry Ryan, security officials give “lack of concern” as a main reason for the crime’s increased incidence on the campus. A telephone check by Pundit this week shows that some colleges are showing some concern about security.

At Oberlin (Ohio) College a fool-proof card-key system has been installed. The laminated plastic card has a pattern of magnetic fields which corresponds to a card-keyhole. Doors remain locked at all times and only holders of cards can enter.

At Smith (Massachusetts) school smaller and more “isolated” than Conn, an escort system was developed to stop a series of rapes on the grounds, in dormitory rooms and in bathrooms. A Volkswagen-type bus runs around the campus after dark making stops at each building and dormitory.

To prevent bathroom attacks, Wesleyan University in Middletown, Ct., has installed locks on women’s dormitory bathrooms. The Wesleyan security guards will pick up anybody anywhere, even in downtown Middletown.

Pundit wonders if the “Let’s not embarrass the girl” line of thinking is blurring the larger security problems which December rape suggests. In the meantime, student groups which should be concerned, like Student Government and the Women’s Group, have made no public statement about the rape. All campus doors are fixed, Mr. Shain seems pretty excited about the prospect of having the Sub Base and half of downtown New London sliding around campus on ice skates.

Two new Pundit editors named

Elizabeth G. Alspach was appointed Pundit sports editor last week. With this week’s newspaper resumes it sports coverage.

Sally Abrams was appointed copy editor.

Pundit is now accepting mail subscriptions for the remainder of the semester.

Pundit will publish about ten more issues this semester. The price for a subscription is $1.50, payable to Pundit. Box 1351, Connecticut College, New London, Ct. 06320.
Chinese lit has place
despite new vocationalism

Editor's note: this is the first article of a Pundit column which will be written by non-staff people on various topics at the editors' request.

by Allen Zimmerman

I happen to admire a literature that the College of Letters and Science has been studying since I have made my living for a while talking about it in a teaching way I suppose that the interests in these comments here might well be construed as vested, I begin on this principle, or rather, I do not desire to express any more in mind than anticipation of rebuttal.

We all of us in our own way, islands all in a common sea. At times we gauge the breadth and depth of the sea, at other times the distances between us. To converse on these times, try to keep concentrations from becoming mutually exclusive.

A school as socially homogeneous as Connecticut College sometimes we have to try very hard. There is a limited range of diversity of personal background, race, and culture represented by the people who work within which we try to eat and sleep. Four years of this can blunt those curiosities which identify us as human. It is good for students to be on the first place. Often it devolves upon the campus to supply introductions to diversity.

The curriculum includes courses whose teachers have undertaken as part of their responsibility to students the present facets of such human diversity. I am one of a number of people who are interested in teaching how Asian peoples have lived, what they have lived for, and what they are now and will be becoming.

My experience here has convinced me that this is both possible and necessary.

It is possible because we all of us teach and learn as people who are modern in the sense of being psychologically and culturally recent. We have in common bonds of, interdependence. We believe, or we are, or we are not become what we are, to whatever extent different. We are people's horizons are not limited by where they live and their decisions involve not only the known people or known situations. We believe, or we are, or we are not become what we are, to whatever extent different. We are people's horizons are not limited by where they live and their decisions involve not only the known people or known situations.

By Allen A. Zimmerman

"Toss between the exotic and unfamiliar is to exhibit no less a bias than to tendentiously glass over the differences in favor of the 'oneness of mankind.'

New tuition called low

Connu students were unable to enroll in the Eugene O'Neill Theater Institute because of a calendar difference in academic calendars. Registrar Robert L. Rhine said this week. O'Neill's semester started three weeks ahead of Connu's.

Teachers have until April 1 to contest lay-offs

The three teachers who have been recommended for 1975 termination by their departmental chairpersons are required by April 1 to contest that decision, President Charles E. Shain said this week.

The teachers are Robert A. Brookes, instructor in astronomy and physics; Lillian M. Greene, visiting assistant professor in French; and J. Mark Speyer, instructor in English. Pundit incorrectly reported that David Morillo, assistant professor of Hispanic Studies, may yet appeal his termination. His termination has already been approved by the Board of Trustees.

As described in the faculty handbook, teachers recommended for termination by their department have the right to present their case in writing to the President and his Advisory Committee. According to David G. Fenton, chairman of the Advisory Committee which is composed of faculty members, his group has the right to make recommendations to Mr. Shain on three proposed terminations.

Following recommendations from the Advisory Committee, teachers recommended by the faculty in the case of Mr. Shain meeting of the Board of Trustees. No staff proposals are complete until action is taken by the Board of Trustees.

Contacted this week, Mr. Shain said teachers preferred not to talk about their recommended terminations. Mr. Greene, however, said she would definitely not contest the recommendation.

Tidal marsh grant awarded

The National Audubon Society has made a research grant to botany teachers William A. Niering and R. W. DeWeese to help determine how man has changed Connecticut's tidal marshes since the past 10 years.

"We anticipate," Mr. Niering said, "that the data derived from this research will be valuable in formulating marsh management policy at the legislative level.

The project, to be done with the help of Connecticut College students, will focus on vegetation changes in the state's coastal salt marshes that have been caused by the restriction or modification of tidal flow of creeks, sloughs, and railroad causeways, mosquito ditching, and installation of tidal barriers."
Report tabled, salaries to be checked

George J. Willauer Jr., chairman of the Trustee-Faculty Liaison Committee, told the faculty this week that the Trustee's will take no action on the Superintendent Study Report "without clear sense of the faculty's feeling about it." He also said that his committee on Feb. 14 suggested the formation of a "committee of disinterested people from outside the college" to look into possible sex discrimination in faculty salaries.

Earlier in the semester, the faculty voted not to recommend the 191-page study to the New York chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union. The museums were always full when Miss Buttenwiser's statement that there was a lack of diversity in the art world. Ms. Buttenwiser was struck by the need for diversity in the arts and the arts center and wanted to buy a house. She said that she always gave it a very.

Rabbi Knobel sees Hasidim as model

By Bernie Zeltch

The Hasidim, the pious sect of Jews which believes that even trivial human actions are transports to God's holiness, have much to teach the modern American. Rabbi Peter S. Knobel told a Chaplain Congregation Sunday.

Tracing back stories of the 300-year-old rabbis, Rabbi Knobel depicted a faith in the everyday things. The part-time instructor in Jewish and leader of Temple Emanuel-in-Grotos said, "The modern era has trivialized everything. We expect only the extraordinary to have meaning." He said that this era thinks it is "the only way to obtain something by sending to an Indian guru."

Super-break cuts costs

Conn College reduced its consumption of electricity by 73 percent and its use of gas by 13 percent during the seven-month period from July 1, 1973 to Jan. 31. In an energy report made to the college's Treasurer by Business Manager E. Leroy Knight said that the campus heating plant burned 176,000 gallons of No. 6 heating oil during those seven months than were consumed during the same period one year ago. The use of electrical energy was trimmed by 472,000 kilowatt hours below the total registered for the same period last year, he also announced.

The chief financial officer further reported that the decline was due to the extension of the Christmas academic vacation by 21 days according to the plan proposed for the year savings.

While usage has been decreasing, costs have been increasing, so that the net dollar impact of all this is that we spent $5,000 more on energy during the first seven months of the (fiscal) year than was budgeted," the college treasurer told the faculty.

Students to read

Four students selected by the Connecticut Poetry Circuit Committee will give a reading of their works on the New York American Foundation at 7:45 p.m. on Dec. 31.

The four Connecticut poets are: Elizabeth Goodfellow, Trinity College; Peter Kerr-Jarrett, Yale; Jerry McGuire, Middletown Community College; David Weinstock, Wesleyan.

All are English majors. Two have published professionally, and all hope to go into fields of professional writing.

Each of the committee selects four student poets from colleges in Connecticut. Any writers may apply in the fall.

In the meantime, Mr. Willauer said that the committee was working to an Indian guru. He said that the committee was "very conscious about discrimination" and "recognize that there is much discrimination in continuing the current faculty salary policies."

There were difficulties, he said, in assessing where the College stands in relation to the federal guidelines for fair labor standards. "The committee was unable to tell from available information whether there was discrimination on the basis of sex at the beginning of an appointment, which could be continued at the present time."

Has June 30 deadline for rest

Liber fund $200,000 richer

A $200,000 check from the Charles A. Dana Foundation Inc. received by the College in December has brought the library fund within $350,000 of its June 30 goal. The College has until June 30 to raise $35 million — about one half the total construction costs — if it is to receive a matching $4 million from the Dana Foundation for a "library grant."

This June deadline has been extended from the original Dec. 31 deadline because of the lack of more money was expected shortly. Director of Development John H. Detmers said there were "a large number of requests for help." The latest large gift from the Greenwich foundation establishes a $100,000 fund to support the heating and storage space, double the provided in the present Palmer Library, erected a half century ago.

The new library, directly north of the present library, will provide a four-story structure for 501 students with shelf space for more than a half-million books and 271,000 pamphlets and documents.

NEW CONNECTICUT COLLEGE LIBRARY

Cost Estimate

by Turner Construction Co., N.Y.C.

as of December 30, 1973

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Construction cost</td>
<td>$9,500,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Site work</td>
<td>100,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Utilities</td>
<td>72,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Contingencies</td>
<td>179,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Furnishings</td>
<td>215,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Architects &amp; Engineering fees</td>
<td>75,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miscellaneous expenditures</td>
<td>5,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total, Library Project</td>
<td>$11,500,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Renovation of Palmer for academic purposes

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Demolition</td>
<td>$179,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Engineering fees</td>
<td>75,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miscellaneous expenditures</td>
<td>5,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total, non-Library expenses</td>
<td>$201,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Buttenwiser: China the greatest

by Holly Wainer

Helen E. Buttenwiser, a trustee of the College and head of the New York chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, told the faculty: "China is the greatest place in the world." Ms. Buttenwiser spoke on her recent trip to China last Thursday afternoon in Dana Hall.

She found that people are happy, friendly working in one of her few political comments about the country's people and government. She said, "they feel unprepared and if they feel this way that something system we use is o.k."

Ms. Buttenwiser witnessed an all-pervasive sense of "happiness" in all that she saw. Every factory, school, and commune is run by an elected committee called the "Red Guards." The purpose of work is "to serve the people." Ms. Buttenwiser stated that one criticizes Mao Tse Tung, that they "admire him and are "pleased with his role in making their lives better."

Throughout China, people were allowed to come and go as they pleased. Ms. Buttenwiser said that she made daily trips planned for them by the Chinese. They visited regional and local hospitals related to paramedics - "barefoot doctors" and watched an acupuncture operation. They visited factories, small guilds and many schools where they were entertained with songs and skits.

The museums were always full of families. Ms. Buttenwiser noted, and the Chinese opera. Ms. Buttenwiser was never an empty seat. She recalled going to a hockey match while in limited quality. The Chinese people of Red China is still basically This gave her a very /
Manager answers bookstore gripes
by Walter Palmer

Because of inflationary tendencies and seemingly unfair policies, the campus bookstore has recently come under severe criticism. Many people believe that the bookstore is not working in the student body's best interest, due to inequitable practices and exorbitant pricing. However, Bookshop Manager Dorothy S. Riley demonstrated that the policies of the bookstore are justifiable and that the bookstore is not responsible for increasing and highly variable prices.

In an extensive interview, Ms. Riley stated that the bookstore sells all the lists at the last price stated by the publishers on the invoice. She claimed that the bookstore receives the books, but merely passes on price increases by the publishers.

When questioned about the practice of placing stickers over the original prices, Ms. Riley explained that these stickers are put on by the publishers to denote price increases after the book was printed. This sticker represents the new list price, as quoted on the invoice.

The second area of concern expressed was the return policy that the bookshop will not grant returns without a course drop-slip. Basically, this is because the publishers will only accept returns on twenty percent of a total order. This stipulation is based on the present policy, the bookstore has approximately twenty percent return rate. The winter/spring term, 1973, reflects this. Out of total sales of 30,000 books, approximately 4,000 were returned or 26.6 percent.

The basic problem involves the fact that there is impossible for the bookstore to keep a large number of books in stock to meet a large demand. The bookstore would be unable to give for general returns, because even if books for an over-ordered course were returned, they would merely contribute to unwanted inventory, since the re-orders had already been placed.

One alternative discussed by Ms. Riley was to implement a two week return period, where there would be no re-ordering would be delayed for two weeks during which anyone may return books. In this situation, books for an over-ordered course would be returned, they would merely contribute to unwanted inventory, thereby negating the need to re-order. However, the problem arises that there is the likelihood that a sufficient number will be returned to cover an over-enrolled course, in which case delaying returns for two weeks might greatly inconvenience a student.

Although last year the bookstore ran 40,000 in the red, it is intended to make a small profit. The bookstore receives a twenty percent discount on most hardback textbooks, which Ms. Riley claims are unprofitable, because the store needs a 25 percent discount on books to break even. However, the discount on trade, or paperback books runs from twenty to forty percent. The financial breakdown is as follows:

- 16 percent for utilities, heat, light, etc.
- 4 percent for postage costs.
- 3 percent for vandalism ($10,000 per year is lost due to vandalism).

Other suggestions offered by Ms. Riley involved the state sales tax and faculty responsibility. Connecticut is one of the only New England states that requires a six percent sales tax on textbooks. Ms. Riley feels that pressure should be brought on the legislature to have this repealed. Secondly, Ms. Riley urged the faculty "not to list books as required unless they plan to make full use of them." Finally, Mrs. Riley commented on the vandalism issue, saying that the majority of those caught stealing could well afford to pay for it. Vandalism in the bookstore only contributes to already high prices, and those who do steal should consider that they are not only breaking the law, but also hurting the entire community.

WCNI gains FM license
by Sally Abraham

After a lengthy but triumphant legal battle, the Conn College radio station, WCNI, has been granted an FM license by the Federal Communications Commission. Mark Samuelson Lasner, president of the radio station, explained the difficulties of getting the license to Pundit.

"In late 1972 we applied for an FM license and received approval for a different FM education stations from the license of WTEQ, Channel 6, in Providence," Mr. Lasner said. "The license was initially opposed because of possible interference from Conn College's FM educational band to Channel 6.

"It was a technical argument," he commented. The problems ended in November 1973 when the state's lawyers convinced the commission to grant the station this license.

"Conn made the greatest effort to oppose Channel 6. Thus we helped other stations. We were the ones who spent more money for legal fees," Mr. Lasner added.

In November the station was sent a construction permit which will enable the station to be transmitted. The transmitter is on the premises, and within a month or so, people will put a broadcast line between Cro and Bill Hall.

After testing the new equipment, the station will send the appropriate forms to Washington so that it can receive an FM non-commercial license.

Mr. Lasner explained that the station is waiting for its technical director, William Gregory, to get his second class license. He also said they are in the process of working on programming of the station.

The hours of the radio station will remain the same, from 7 a.m. to 1 a.m. The broadcasting will be 950 on AM and 91.5 on FM.

Mr. Lasner told Pundit that having a FM license will increase the listening audience from 2,000 people (the number of students who listen to campus to possibly 50,000 listeners. He also mentioned that there will be more contact with the community. Possible future affairs programs are being considered. Another advantage of the FM license is that it produces better sound quality.

"The main thrust will be DJ's doing their own programs," Mr. Lasner stated. "The range of music over the past year has expanded. Now there is more jazz, blues, country, and classical besides rock.

The station is trying to increase its record collection especially in jazz and classical. They are ordering a two for one special. That entitles a person to select two records of his/her choice from the station's extra collection for every one s/he donates.

"We have some of the oddest records in the world," Mark stated. "And," he added, "all contributions in records to the station are tax deductible."

Mr. Lasner also added that the radio station's budget for this year is $1,925. The station has advanced enormously since the 1960's when a carrier-current AM system was used. "They are museum pieces," Mr. Lasner said.

The radio station is now in the middle of building a production studio for taping programs in their office room in Cro. According to Mr. Lasner, Conn is among the first college stations to experiment with computer readable record catalogues.

There will be a general meeting today of the Conn College Broadcasting Co. It will be held at 7 p.m. in front of the radio station, and is open to anyone interested in any aspect of the station.

Nine faculty members get promotions

Nine teachers have been promoted following action of the Board of Trustees at their recent meeting.

According to a memorandum issued to faculty and administrators the following teachers have been raised one academic rank:

Edward J. Brodkin to associate professor of history; Sara Lee Burlingame to assistant professor of history; Charles J. Chu to professor of Chinese; George C. Daughan to associate professor of government; Elinor M. Desplatski to associate professor of history; Robley J. Evans to associate professor of English; Bartley L. Hendrick to assistant professor of art; Allyn E. Johnson to professor of English; and R. Francis Johnson to professor of religion.

The moves up in rank and salary take effect this September.

J.A. high priests ward off religious aggressors
by Carin Gordon

The lines of battle formed. First came the aggressors, a seemingly troublesome group from the environs of Emily Abbey or Larabee (the scouts could not be certain). They stood side-by-side, their hands cradling the newly-made snowballs to give them an ice-like smoothness. Their intent was clear—to provoke a fight with the religious faction of J.A.

The high priests of J.A. were putting the finishing touches on their idol, Buddha. With a fevency known only to the spiritual J.A. fanatics they molded their eight foot Buddha out of the snow sent from the heavens above for just that purpose. With Bowie Knives and Civil War rockets they sculpted their creation; they would sacrifice all for it.

The Emily Abbey-Larabee line taunted the J.A. 1es to meet them on the field of battle—Harkness Green. But J.A. refused to move, refused to leave their Buddha at all costs. They had successrully fought off an earlier attack which threatened to demolish the Buddha where they stood and were prepared to fight again.

The taunts from the aggressors proved too much and the J.A. 1es finally gave in to a fight on compromised terms. Forming a phalanx, J.A. moved away from their Buddha, closer to the green. Who fired the first shot will be debated by historians for decades to come. But the battle was quickly fought and won. Emily Abbey-Larabee moved on defeated, while the priests of J.A. iced down their Buddha.
Poet Hayden speaks of life and art

by Robert Hoffman

In an interview Saturday, Robert Hayden, Cornell College's "Poet in Residence," explored his role as a black artist and discussed the arts in America and the position of blacks in American society.

Mr. Hayden takes the place of William Meredith, who is on leave this semester and teaching at Carnegie Mellon University. Mr. Hayden is a professor of English at the University of Michigan and received his B.A. from Wayne State University and his M.A. from the University of Michigan.

Being my first interview with a person of national prominence, one who has been recognized with the Russell Loxces Award from the American Institute of Arts and the Hopwood Award from the University of Michigan, I was quite nervous as I entered the erroneously labeled "Western" room of Morrison Hall. That is, presently, and hopefully, temporarily (according to the author of the collections, Heartbark and the Dust), the Lion and the Archer, Figure of Time and Words in the Morning Time), his residence.

The congenial spirit of Robert Hayden, however, somehow seemed to give the sterile white cinder blocked walls and ice cold tile floors an amiable splendor immediately exercised my inhibitions. Somehow I felt it my duty as a member of the campus community to apologize for this unesthetic living conditions however, Mr. Hayden assured me that he knew what to expect before his arrival for, when he gave a poetry reading at Conn. two years ago, he was given quarters in the "Western Suite." Though he finds London "a most dreadful place," Mr. Hayden is quite impressed with the Connecticut College Campus which he first visited twenty-seven years ago when he attended the annual Hopwood Dance Festival in order to see Martha Graham. "I'm her devotee," he says.

Our colloquy rapidly directed itself towards a discussion of the Arts in America and their relationship with the Negro. Mr. Hayden feels "that we are at a transitional period in the arts—artistic and social—when a new vision of man and mankind. We have arrived at a point in time where we have to get a new conception of what we are. —this is a very creative time and out of it will come something wonderful. Unlike many of his contemporaries, Mr. Hayden has not entirely rejected the ideas and orders of the past, instead he believes that the older forms will be modified to fit, the needs of the future are not in the past.

There has been much disagreement amongst black artists on the subject as to whether they should be spokesmen primarily for black Americans or spokesmen for the human race. When this question was addressed to Mr. Hayden he adamantly responded, "People are people. It is a mistake to think of Negro-Americans as a separate part of the American culture. We are a part of the American people."

In this philosophy reinforced by his membership in the Baha'i faith which leads up to one of the more dramatic moments of the affair when he stated "I just want to be seen as a poet. I don't want to be sought. I don't want to be spoken. I don't want to be black." Though he desires to be "treated on equal terms" Mr. Hayden is well aware of the problems of the black artist even. "One of the problems of a black artist is that his work is always deal as a sociological experience and not artistic, this, it is hard for him to grow since both the ideas and the spokesmen." Similarly, at another point during our conversation he added he did not want to be a spokesman for any race. "I'm an equal," he says.

In sociological terms Mr. Hayden feels that the existence of blacks in America should not be separate from that of the whites, instead, the two should be assimilated. He believes, "that segregation is evil and that self-segregation on the part of blacks gives aid and comfort to white bigots. Mr. Hayden is in favor of inter-racial marriage for, you can't bring yourself to marry someone of another race then you don't design as an equal." According to Mr. Hayden, there is no real basic difference between blacks and whites. "We are unknown," he says. He is "very impressed with the nationalists and is a prophet to be resolved."

I was on the payroll of the Federal Writers Project when he need guide books for various states. It was during his work with the F.W.P. that he acquired a fascination for the slavery movement in Michigan. This interest in slavery can be seen in his most noted work the poem "Frederick Douglass and the Middle Passage." His love for history is seen in his reference to this state if states, "I've written a good deal of historical poetry—I am a historian."" After graduation in 1927, Robert Hayden returned to the University of Michigan to teach, Institute of Fine Arts, where he received his M.A.

The year is 1906, ten years before the Civil War. Mr. Hayden is twenty years old, teaching English at the University of Michigan. In an interview on Saturday, Mr. Hayden stated, "I never was able to see him walk into a classroom and teach a class, for, of course, we have broken down and weep for joy." Fortunately, though for Conn students we have Robert Hayden for a semester, he is something for us to be joyous about.

Alvin Alley's group lacks polish

by Judy Boland and Lindsay Miller

The name of "Alvin Alley," especially when mentioned in a school band, conjures up the thought of jazz, and the Alvin Alley Dance Company's previous appearances at Cornell College (in 1969 and 1972) display the desire for this perfection.

These reviewers attended only the performance of their last weekend, since it had been publicized as the most inventive and brilliant collection of sequences. The performance was enjoyable; yet there were several glaring errors which reduced the show to something less-than-stupendous.

Generally speaking, dancers poked at the polished. Many choruses danced only with music in the air, and while many choruses displayed the grace of other black dancers, many dancers were choreographically off out of focus. What first sequence, featured the chorus at its best, was followed by a number of turns which was neither equal to the social consciousness which was the aim of the Negroes. Unfortunately, though the choruses represented the black artists, the choreography was not competent enough to carry the tunes on stage, it was an interesting show, but I do not think that it was anywhere near the level of the work done by the Alvin Alley Dance Company.
Some furry animals sleep out the winter day, February 2, is said in folklore to presage an early or late Spring. Supposedly, on Groundhog Day, if the rodent comes out of his burrow and sees his own shadow, we are all in for a long winter.

In fact, the woodchuck may come out of hibernation in February if the weather is mild. He is quick to return, however, at the first sign of cold weather, until late March or early April.

The raccoon, an irregular hibernator, and the jumping mouse live during their dormancy on a layer of accumulated fat beneath their skin.

The raccoon makes dens in tree hollows and hibernates when temperatures go below about 30 degrees F. The mouse enters his grass-lined nest several inches to two feet below the ground in late September and does not emerge until the winter cold passes. Unless the winter gets mild, the chipmunk, also sometimes in subterranean holes, Chipmunks are fond of building these shelters to one side of a tree branch. Instead of a system of connecting chambers, the chipmunk keeps a pantry of nuts, seeds and grain.

The red squirrel does not hibernate but retreats to nests in tree hollows or among tree branches or among tree branches in the severest weather. In these sanctuaries, he remains active in the snow and eats leaves from trees and nuts in preparation for the winter.

Dean Johnson, honored by B.U., named distinguished alumnus

Alice E. Johnson, associate dean and associate professor of English has been awarded the highest honor from the College of Liberal Arts (CLA) of Boston University. The News Office announced Friday, Dean Johnson has been included in the first group of 100 graduates named to the Collegium of Distinguished Alumni.

The Collegium has been created to commemorate CLA's centennial anniversary this year and to be a tribute to one hundred of its alumni who have achieved distinction in their chosen fields.

Friday

SATURDAY

FRIDAY

SATURDAY

SUNDAY

FRIDAY

SATURDAY

SUNDAY

with piano

by Lincoln Baxter

If you enjoy the dazzling experience of watching a pianist who can make even the most obscure music as exciting as the whirring blades of an electric fan, then Garrick Ohlsson was the man to see. The concert was a remembrance of a performance that left Palmer auditorium during the Tuesday, February 12 Concert Series performance.

In an almost entirely Romantic program, Garrick Ohlsson demonstrated a piano technique which may have been a little too fine, for it seemed to raise some old questions regarding virtuosity for its own sake.

The entire first half of the program of the Chopin International Piano Competition winner was devoted to none other than the music of Chopin. In all, one scherzo, one nocturne, two polonaises, two mazurkas, and a Spanish fantasia with a grand polonaise were played. Of these, only the "Nocturne in D-flat major," Opus 27, No. 2 was truly memorable.

While other pieces of this half of the program have been more glittery, it was in the Nocturne that Ohlsson really showed his sensitivity, control, and feeling. In this piece Ohlsson's playing seemed so superlative that one could almost hear him squeezing a vibrato out of the keyboard.

"Preludes" by Scriabine was a refreshing change following the intermission. It was in Mussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" that Ohlsson's hands actually disappeared as they flew over the keys. It seems, however, to be a large extent, that this and most of the other works on the program were there because they offered a medium for technical display.

The two works which seemed the least ostentatious, and the most effective in presenting the_nocturne of Chopin, and the "Four Preludes" by Scriabine. While I was disappointed with the program's historical scope and overly spectacular content, I was impressed with Ohlsson's mastery of precisely rhythmic articulation, subtle changes in tempo, and dynamic execution.

But what are we supposed to appreciate in a concert, the performer's ego, or good music well played?
Presidential candidates

Craig Chapman, '76

The life of a student is no longer one of acceptance passively, but questioning and innovation. Political nonchalance as it concerns the students or the government it supports is no longer tolerable. In the past year student government has assumed this passive role, with the result that the students have shrugged off the activism that so enlivened contemporary student government and political action. The lack of activity in student government over the past year has resulted in the failure of the government to deal with problems it has control of, i.e., the present student government has failed to deal with the causes of problems. Students should be appalled by the recent notice that college fees will total 6000 bills next year. Though everyone realizes the rise in the cost of living is a consideration, such a sudden rise in the cost of learning is outrageous and unwarranted. Student government should be more protective of student pocketbooks. The time has come for students to look into where our money is going; what it is supporting. This leads to the already recognized problem of funding student organizations. A hard look at where our social money is going is in order. Too many of the present organizations have failed to relate to the entire college; and the student government's own social board has yet to provide an adequate amount of recreation, entertainment, and, in general, means for students to release the tensions that this bastion of academia provokes.

This last point leads to yet another problem that has arisen over the past year: an increase in vandalism. If there were more diversions for students they would be able to play their frustrations in organized activity and not tear apart common property. In all these problems, the answer must be sought at the root of the problem, else they will only remain to grow. This requires a student government that actively seeks out the problems and not one that sits complacently and lets them happen. This is the type of action I am willing to give student government.

Before concluding, there are other problems that should be mentioned: the advisory system, the students right to the best possible education, and the role of the Judiciary Board. On all these points there is considerable room for improvement and possible renovation.

There is one final problem that will confront the next student government, one that is the very foundation of the government's existence: the insurance of the student's proper position in Conn College. The students on this campus should realize that they are the reason this institution exists. When student government no longer plays an active role in the college hierarchy, when it ceases to recognize and act on student needs and desires, when it becomes the conforming, passive organ that threatens our student government, we, the students, will no longer have a hand in determining our own educational future.

Just as there is the problem of funding on the one hand, the other end of the problem is the lawlessness that prevails on the other hand. The principle of cooperation between the Judiciary Board and the student government is no longer present. For years, the student government has been a bastion of student lawlessness and the Judiciary Board has been the only entity that has been able to keep the administration from infringing on student rights.

Richard Lichtenstein

Richard Lichtenstein, '75

The coming academic semesters will prove to be crucial ones for the future of Connecticut College. Our new College President will find him or herself facing many pressing problems which will require prompt and suitable solutions. If Conn is to continue to fulfill its major goal of providing a meaningful liberal arts education. The budget, the calendar, staffing, to name a few, will demand his or her immediate attention.

We are the largest and potentially the strongest body in this community and can and must seek all opportunities which will place us in an even greater position to influence necessary change. We the students must insure easy access to the new College President. This must be regarded as our major priority.

Similarly greater communication is needed among all interests of the campus if we are to pull ourselves together for our mutual benefit. The increasing amount of vandalism at Conn cannot be dismissed lightly. But neither can the fact that these incidents are not being discussed as a community problem. With such regressive policies as only permitting professors to dine with students on specifically designated evenings, more and more avenues of communication are being cut off. It is apparent that this particular Residence policy must immediately be rescinded. We can afford to lose such isolation from one another.

After serving on the Summer Study Commission I still have a number of unanswered questions. When will tuition reach the point where we will force our own students to find cheaper state institutions or else begin to accept students with lesser academic achievement and greater financial resources? How do we achieve that so-called "normal balance" between cost and appearance that we have all heard about? Can we afford to be upright about exterior appearance when we are decaying from within? Overall, the campus and a severe shortage of professors in some departments must be foremost in our minds and in the budgetary planning.

Academically we have made several positive steps forward over the past few semesters. Such progress must continue in student interest and demand. Perhaps this will require more input by the student body in new forums (i.e. faculty meetings) where such reforms are discussed. We must press for increased educational benefits and flexibility.

The establishment of still better rapport with the New London community ranks high on my list of priorities. Many of the issues being discussed in the City of New London effect our daily lives. Some four-hundred of us are presently voters in the city and we have chosen to spend at least the next few years of our lives residing in New London or tutoring, intern or working in the city. An expanded program of interaction between Connecticut College and the city must be pursued.

It appears as though we as a community are entering a period in which vital decisions concerning our continuing existence are about to be made. I seek to put my experience, enthusiasm and energy to work in meeting our problems head on in an effort to continue our community's progress forward.

Donald Kane, '75

In a time when the pace of social change was just beginning to forge ahead of human institutions, August Mark Twain observed that 'we would learn what the human race really is, at bottom, we need only observe it at work.' Voter mandates at Connecticut College mean a great deal when a college with a student body that does not vote or bother abstentions. It means that students perceive campus government as having very little to do with the life of a Conn College student.

And this is probably true. Any member of campus society can happily, successfully, and justifiably ignore campus government for four years. For most of us, the Student Government Association has only slightly more import than rodeos, roller-coasters, and Captain Kangaroo. No wonder elections aren't taken seriously.

I run to chair the Judiciary Board because it is the institutional component of student government that safeguards the rights of each student. But the J.B. has thus far been a failure. Devout of public confidence and operating in secret, J.B. is viewed with suspicion and deserved derision. The question is not whether the Board members are to blame, but whether the system of justice is itself adequate; it is not.

Justice cannot be dispensed by a board of students reluctantly elected by class minorities. I tie my campaign to the proposition that social justice can be dispensed only by the student society at large.

So instead of social infractions being decided by a Board of elected elites, I propose a jury lottery system to settle such cases. I would reserve the Judiciary Board as a social appellate body with a broad primary review of academic infractions. Alleged crimes against the student society must be heard and decided, publically, by the entire student society. And perhaps conflicts between professors and students are better the business of a Board meeting with only those concerned.

"Words without actions are the assassins of idealism," said one of our most unpopular Presidents. I pledge my candidacy to the ideal that justice for all is possible, given only an interested citizenry and a workable system.

On election day I hope the treasurer of Connecticut College provides itself — and Mark Twain — an example of prescient, enlightened political action.
Vice presidential candidates

‘students should exercise... say in formulating Conn priorities’

Richard Allen, ’76

I am submitting my name for nomination for this office in the hope that I will be able to help make student government at Connecticut College more progressive. In the past I have noticed that student government has been divorced from student needs and concerns.

Recently, we have all been confronted with an increase in tuition and the plight of many departments here at Conn is somewhat uncertain. There is a great deal of spending waste in the present operating procedures and I feel that we the students should exercise our say in formulating Connecticut College priorities. It is my hope that the new student government will successfully maintain priorities which are in accord with student desires. As Vice President I hope to be able to translate student concerns into concrete proposals.

If I am elected, my main intent is to transform student government into a viable means for communication between the students and their government. Too often we find a feeling of government being too far removed from us. I hope there will be a greater feeling of participation here at Conn. Of course I cannot promise that if I am elected student government will blossom and become a two-way vehicle for intense articulation, but I do promise you that I will seek to find student strong points and I will keep an open mind.

Jason Frank, ’76

The approaching academic year at Connecticut College will be an extremely decisive one, as the main issues of both higher level communication between the various members of our student body, perhaps there is a state of ineffectuality, not really preserving academic integrity and social responsibility, then it is time that we change. We must never sacrifice our power, but rather, we must reconsider and reform. If, in order for the Board to realize its potential, it becomes necessary to sit and personally consult every student on this campus, I will see that it is done. And if it is necessary to codify the President and the College Council to solicit their support, then I will do that. If it means changing the Board procedures, formal public announcement of all infractions and penalties imposed on our fellow students, then I will do that also. And, if necessary, I will not allow the Board to jeopardize its own future by sitting in the Board room once each week reviewing cases and imposing penalties with little, or any, insight into the real problem.

I ask for your support with all of my heart. If, however, in your minds you cannot support me for the Chairman of the Judiciary Board, then I implore you to at least carefully consider my words. We, as a community should not and must not settle for less than the best. None of us ever should. If you question the actions of the Judiciary Board, or of any boards on this campus for that matter, for your sake and for the sake of this school, do not sit silently and watch. Be heard, question, and do not settle for imperfection when you know that a little extra work can bring about perfection. It is your duty, it is up to you to mold it. Think about what you have heard, and vote carefully and conscientiously.

Carol Spencer, ’76

I am a member of the Student Assembly, which has clearly shown that these precedents are important and should be continued. The following are some of my main concerns and considerations of the Board for the coming year

1. If I should gain the Chairmanship of the Finance Committee, I would like to express my thoughts concerning the Student Organization Budget (SOB). This fund, consisting of about $35,000, must service over fifty clubs. The difficulty of dividing this money fairly and satisfying everyone is virtually impossible. For this reason, as member of the Finance Committee, I am proposing that one member of the College Development Committee (a senior) should also sit with the Chairperson of the Student Org. Finance Committee. Perhaps then, the College’s underwritings can have our problems will increase. I also feel that this will aid in a more careful and conscientious use of the SOB.

2. The key here is not so much student government structure, but instead that of the student governance. I feel that this is vital to establish independent financing of Student Government and for the essential student services is performed and oversees (i.e. Purdue and Social Board). Student activities must become more numerous and diversified if student needs are to be met and the vandalism, a blatant manifestation of boredom, to cease. These goals represent a solid foundation for constructive change at Connecticut College and I pledge my best efforts to their realization.

Leslie Margolin, ’76

Connecticut College is standing on the threshold of a new beginning. The 1974-75 academic year will mark the year of transition from the administration of President Sloan to that of his successor. This transition will confront us with several important challenges. We must meet these challenges with decisions and positive actions.

When the incoming administration looks to us for advice on policy matters, we must know precisely where we have been, where we are, and where we are going. In essence, the first time in many years that this college community has the chance to help lay a foundation, to start at the groundwork, to actually re-shape our future at Connecticut College, and in the long run, the future of the College itself.

It is my firm belief that in order to adequately deal with this new situation we must unite under the reins of enthusiastic, aggressive, thoughtful leaders. It is with this mind that I come before you to solicit your support in my bid for the office of Judiciary Board Chairman. If elected, I will not rush into any new approaches to old problems. Rather, I will offer some possible solutions and meet with a cross-section of groups on campus to determine the feasibility of the proposed measures, always leaving myself open for new solutions. Some of the most important considerations of the Board for the coming year should be the effectiveness of a codified punitive and disciplinary system, more stringent punitive actions, formal public announcement of all infractions and penalties imposed (eliminating, of course names etc.), stricter social and academic guidelines, and broader, more productive channels of communication with the student body so as to assure that they know what the Judiciary Board is, what it is doing and, in short, what it is overall role in Connecticut’s student government structure.

We must sort out our goals and stand firmly by our convictions not as 2,000 individuals but as a united whole - a college community. If we are seeking to preserve our present system, then we must stand together to preserve it. However, we are seeking to preserve our present system, then we must stand together to preserve it. The key here is not so much whether our system is good or bad, or right or wrong, but rather, the fact that we recognize it together and seek action together.

Having been a member of the Board this past year, I know what it is and I know what it can be. It is true that we are slipping into a state of ineffectuality, not really preserving academic integrity and social responsibility, then it is time that we change. We must never sacrifice our power, but rather, we must reconsider and reform. If, in order for the Board to realize its potential, it becomes necessary to sit and personally consult every student on this campus, I will see that it is done. And if it is necessary to codify the President and the College Council to solicit their support, then I will do that. If it means changing the Board procedures, formal public announcement of all infractions and penalties imposed on our fellow students, then I will do that also. And, if necessary, I will not allow the Board to jeopardize its own future by sitting in the Board room once each week reviewing cases and imposing penalties with little, or any, insight into the real problem.

I ask for your support with all of my heart. If, however, in your minds you cannot support me for the Chairman of the Judiciary Board, then I implore you to at least carefully consider my words. We, as a community should not and must not settle for less than the best. None of us ever should. If you question the actions of the Judiciary Board, or of any boards on this campus for that matter, for your sake and for the sake of this school, do not sit silently and watch. Be heard, question, and do not settle for imperfection when you know that a little extra work can bring about perfection. It is your duty, it is up to you to mold it. Think about what you have heard, and vote carefully and conscientiously.

Donald Kane

‘more stringent punitive actions’

Carollyn Spencer, ‘76

extremely important that students be encouraged to solicit funds from the alumni and trustees and thus increase their awareness of the College’s financial situation and needs. I would also like SS stress the significance of certain student-faculty committees (e.g. Advisory, Academic, Administrative, College Development). These committees serve as the vehicle by which we can effectively institute many reforms and policies. I thus recommend more participation and stronger communication between these groups and the students. Perhaps their minutes should be included in the Campus Communicator, and one representative of each of these committees should become a voting member of the Student Assembly. If there were a higher level of communication between the various members of our student body, perhaps there...
Student advice unsought...

(Continued From Page One)

reported that they felt their committee's recommendations were completely disregarded.

Apprently, student committee members felt that their committees' recommendations were not given due consideration.

The Student Advisory Committee later presented its recommendations to the faculty, and the faculty agreed to implement them.

Commissions were rarely informed of changes being made in their departments. James Crabtree was recently promoted to the position of full time assistant professor of Theatrical Studies. Paula Savio, chairperson-Theatre Studies, S.A.C., said, "He has shown us what we have been missing, and it's about time that we recognized his achievements." crabtree accepted the promotion with grace.

A career in law without law school.

What can you do with only a bachelor's degree? Now there is a way to bridge the gap between an undergraduate education and a challenging, responsible career. The Law School Admission Program is designed for individuals who are not Law School graduates.

The program offers a unique opportunity to work in a legal setting while earning a bachelor's degree. You can choose from a variety of courses, including contracts, torts, and property law.

Since 1970, the Institute for Paralegal Training has placed more than 500 graduates in law firms.

If you are a student of high academic standing and are interested in a career as a Lawyer's Assistant, we'd like to meet you.

Contact your placement office for an interview with our representative.

We will visit your campus on TUESDAY, MARCH 19

K.B. takes Morrison nice guys

By Peter Johnson

The 1974-75 B-ball season started with a bang last Monday as K.B. took on the nice guy, without whom key to living is sociability. It looked like a run away as K.B. rolled a 22-12 halftime lead. Peter Brennan and John Morrison gave a head period surge that put Morrison back into the game. Despite the shock, these two, K.B. went on to get a 46-31 decision. Jim Perskie with 13 points, and Jim Feinberg with six helped the cause. While Mr. Gerolimo, with 13 points, led the losers.

The evening's second game also proved crucial for a few of our fans. The four getting into the post-season playoffs. Any thoughts Park might have had about upsetting Wright ended as Greg Yahia, hitting on 8 of his first 9 shots, put Wright out in front for good. Mr. Yahia added 18 points in the 62-44 victory.

The faculty played one of their finest games last night, ended Burdick in the week's final game. Playing without substitutes, the faculty managed to be Burdick 32-52 at the end of regulation time. Then trouble struck the faculty as Ned Preble was whistled for a foul early in the overtime period. Playing 5 on 4, Burdick easily outscored the faculty to win 63-59. Ned Preble and James Lowe led the faculty, while the whole Burdick team got into the scoring act.

Gymnastics lose to Yale

A Poker Tournament starting at 8:30 p.m., Monday February 5, in the Bar at Cour will open the series of tournaments sponsored by the Cro Committee and the Cro Committee's office.

The deadline for registration is 1 p.m., Feb. 25. The tournament is open to faculty, staff and students; all interestedbersons should sign up at the Cro main desk. Call Bart Gart for further information.

Feminist deliver sermon here

Poker tournament announced

by Frans Axelrad

Markel from "Unreal" Abbey going a runaway as K.B. rolled of Monday as K.B. living is sociability. It looked like a run away as K.B. rolled a 22-12 halftime lead. Peter Brennan and John Morrison gave a head period surge that put Morrison back into the game. Despite the shock, these two, K.B. went on to get a 46-31 decision. Jim Perskie with 13 points, and Jim Feinberg with six helped the cause. While Mr. Gerolimo, with 13 points, led the losers.

The evening's second game also proved crucial for a few of our fans. The four getting into the post-season playoffs. Any thoughts Park might have had about upsetting Wright ended as Greg Yahia, hitting on 8 of his first 9 shots, put Wright out in front for good. Mr. Yahia added 18 points in the 62-44 victory.

The faculty played one of their finest games last night, ended Burdick in the week's final game. Playing without substitutes, the faculty managed to be Burdick 32-52 at the end of regulation time. Then trouble struck the faculty as Ned Preble was whistled for a foul early in the overtime period. Playing 5 on 4, Burdick easily outscored the faculty to win 63-59. Ned Preble and James Lowe led the faculty, while the whole Burdick team got into the scoring act.

Gymnastics lose to Yale

A Poker Tournament starting at 8:30 p.m., Monday February 5, in the Bar at Cour will open the series of tournaments sponsored by the Cro Committee and the Cro Committee's office.

The deadline for registration is 1 p.m., Feb. 25. The tournament is open to faculty, staff and students; all interestedbersons should sign up at the Cro main desk. Call Bart Gart for further information.

Feminist deliver sermon here

by Frans Axelrad

Markel from "Unreal" Abbey going a runaway as K.B. rolled of Monday as K.B. living is sociability. It looked like a run away as K.B. rolled a 22-12 halftime lead. Peter Brennan and John Morrison gave a head period surge that put Morrison back into the game. Despite the shock, these two, K.B. went on to get a 46-31 decision. Jim Perskie with 13 points, and Jim Feinberg with six helped the cause. While Mr. Gerolimo, with 13 points, led the losers.

The evening's second game also proved crucial for a few of our fans. The four getting into the post-season playoffs. Any thoughts Park might have had about upsetting Wright ended as Greg Yahia, hitting on 8 of his first 9 shots, put Wright out in front for good. Mr. Yahia added 18 points in the 62-44 victory.

The faculty played one of their finest games last night, ended Burdick in the week's final game. Playing without substitutes, the faculty managed to be Burdick 32-52 at the end of regulation time. Then trouble struck the faculty as Ned Preble was whistled for a foul early in the overtime period. Playing 5 on 4, Burdick easily outscored the faculty to win 63-59. Ned Preble and James Lowe led the faculty, while the whole Burdick team got into the scoring act.

Gymnastics lose to Yale

by Frans Axelrad

Markel from "Unreal" Abbey going a runaway as K.B. rolled of Monday as K.B. living is sociability. It looked like a run away as K.B. rolled a 22-12 halftime lead. Peter Brennan and John Morrison gave a head period surge that put Morrison back into the game. Despite the shock, these two, K.B. went on to get a 46-31 decision. Jim Perskie with 13 points, and Jim Feinberg with six helped the cause. While Mr. Gerolimo, with 13 points, led the losers.

The evening's second game also proved crucial for a few of our fans. The four getting into the post-season playoffs. Any thoughts Park might have had about upsetting Wright ended as Greg Yahia, hitting on 8 of his first 9 shots, put Wright out in front for good. Mr. Yahia added 18 points in the 62-44 victory.

The faculty played one of their finest games last night, ended Burdick in the week's final game. Playing without substitutes, the faculty managed to be Burdick 32-52 at the end of regulation time. Then trouble struck the faculty as Ned Preble was whistled for a foul early in the overtime period. Playing 5 on 4, Burdick easily outscored the faculty to win 63-59. Ned Preble and James Lowe led the faculty, while the whole Burdick team got into the scoring act.

Gymnastics lose to Yale

by Frans Axelrad

Markel from "Unreal" Abbey going a runaway as K.B. rolled of Monday as K.B. living is sociability. It looked like a run away as K.B. rolled a 22-12 halftime lead. Peter Brennan and John Morrison gave a head period surge that put Morrison back into the game. Despite the shock, these two, K.B. went on to get a 46-31 decision. Jim Perskie with 13 points, and Jim Feinberg with six helped the cause. While Mr. Gerolimo, with 13 points, led the losers.

The evening's second game also proved crucial for a few of our fans. The four getting into the post-season playoffs. Any thoughts Park might have had about upsetting Wright ended as Greg Yahia, hitting on 8 of his first 9 shots, put Wright out in front for good. Mr. Yahia added 18 points in the 62-44 victory.

The faculty played one of their finest games last night, ended Burdick in the week's final game. Playing without substitutes, the faculty managed to be Burdick 32-52 at the end of regulation time. Then trouble struck the faculty as Ned Preble was whistled for a foul early in the overtime period. Playing 5 on 4, Burdick easily outscored the faculty to win 63-59. Ned Preble and James Lowe led the faculty, while the whole Burdick team got into the scoring act.

Gymnastics lose to Yale

by Frans Axelrad

Markel from "Unreal" Abbey going a runaway as K.B. rolled of Monday as K.B. living is sociability. It looked like a run away as K.B. rolled a 22-12 halftime lead. Peter Brennan and John Morrison gave a head period surge that put Morrison back into the game. Despite the shock, these two, K.B. went on to get a 46-31 decision. Jim Perskie with 13 points, and Jim Feinberg with six helped the cause. While Mr. Gerolimo, with 13 points, led the losers.

The evening's second game also proved crucial for a few of our fans. The four getting into the post-season playoffs. Any thoughts Park might have had about upsetting Wright ended as Greg Yahia, hitting on 8 of his first 9 shots, put Wright out in front for good. Mr. Yahia added 18 points in the 62-44 victory.

The faculty played one of their finest games last night, ended Burdick in the week's final game. Playing without substitutes, the faculty managed to be Burdick 32-52 at the end of regulation time. Then trouble struck the faculty as Ned Preble was whistled for a foul early in the overtime period. Playing 5 on 4, Burdick easily outscored the faculty to win 63-59. Ned Preble and James Lowe led the faculty, while the whole Burdick team got into the scoring act.
Les Revilock takes layup in recent basketball action.

by Stuart Meyers

It could have been a joke, a little light hearted bantering, but Coach Lesig was not smiling. It may help to realize what a spendthrift his brother-in-law actually is. All the coach said was "You're on." The bet and wager was duly noted, the stakes were set, the teams were at hand. Mr. Lessig's perhaps slightly vicious brother-in-law had offered..."for...for every point over 100, I pay; for every point under you pay." Who could really tell? The Conn Camels hadn't been showcased before the home audience, since sometime before The Reformation. Cro was greeted to the gills with frenzied folk and rockin' sounds and more than ready for some run-ning, shooting, and some general mayhem. Coach took the bet-one odd.

There were no highlights or confetti or pom-poms but the Camels were decked-out and cackling and cracking with confidence. They were shorter, somewhat less bulky, at every point than were the men from Manhattanville but you had to believe the Conn kids could run and outpunt the Cro Bar maybe even outdist the opponents.

The tip-off brought some wide open passing, fast to the outside, quick and nervy, a wheelin', dealin', and smokin' Copeland. Kevin, back after a short hiatus, dominated the last half with bounds, deals, passes, inspiration, and shooting to the point that Conn led by 19 points, the Camels' persistence, determined hustle, and heads up play constantly beat Manhattanville to the offensive zone. Bingo Burnett was the right upcutter to Kevin's left hook as he hit those jump shots from downtown, headed up the set offense, and converted too many of Kevin's passes for Manhattanville's peace of mind.

The score at half, 57-38. Bingo hopped in 16 and Kevin cajolled 13 points. Most agreed at this point, that Conn wouldn't score highly with Amy Vanderbilt as the perfect courteous host but the loyal masses don't like close games...Lesig's brother-in-law was surging over even slightly he (he) had seen loosening his tie and unbuttoning his shirt in hopes, perhaps, of trading it in for cash - he knew the Cro Bar was open) but the band played on.

A few moments after intermission, Two-Points Thomas decided to make his presence known in quite an awesome fashion. He was all over the place, diving, passing, charming, ball-hawking, keeping Mo Menturn on Conn's side. The game was safe in hand when Coach Lessig started subbing at 9 minutes of the 3rd quarter with the score 45-44. The Camels kept plugging away, however, while Manhattanville sagged and tried getting fancy. They should have been in the ABA since they kept bombing from 35-36 feet but then again, if Manhattanville had seen that red, white and blue ball they might have tried balancing it on their noses since they couldn't win in this other game.

Now it was just a question of reaching the century mark, think historians will argue for quite some time as to whether the Conn kids know what a Conn economic plight. It seemed to this reporter that Conn was at 98 points in the longest time and I'm sure the brother-in-law felt the same way, (he was dressed in a barrel at this point), but the argument to win or at least with a point spread.

The Camels flashed a 90-81 win. Bingo won the church basar with 29 points, a stellar performance, and Kevin Copeland canned 21. Yes, but the final tally was 88 not 100...on the Conn side was the streak of not better Conn basketball! 13 points. Perhaps the Conn could have used their favorites came through with a truly impressive performance to beat their rivals by the same mark of 33, 41-28.

At the half Conn led only 56, but some aggressive defense and rebounding turned the game around. Manhattanville is a double team with the Conn star, Les Revilock, but the strategy didn't pay off. Even though limiting Manhattanville to its normally hot-shooting, half-controlling leader of the Conn line, it in turn led the other Conn girls to further dominate the game, proving that it was truly a team effort that enabled this Conn victory.

Becky Fraily, Patti Flynn, Anita DeFrantz, and Karen Rey were there for a lesson or two in fundamental defense and rebounding, while providing the backbone of the Conn Camels.

On the offensive side other faces and moves were seen. Sue showed her shooting ability, as did Becky Fraily, both doing a fine job of getting the inside points.

Perhaps the quickest flashiest player on the Conn side was the streak shooter and defensive whiz Janet Page. Coach Lessig made a display of dazzling moves in scoring many of her points while at the other end, making some hard blocks of the opponent's shots.

Coach Conklin also kept the girls in the game in fine shape by using her talented reserves. Barb Calahan, who was recovering from a broken finger, and the rest of the gang, Susie, Marty, Maggie, Kimberly, and Jane, all did an excellent job in playing the game and thus could be played with.

All with the excitement, and beauty of our girl's team, you can't afford to miss the better side of basketball!

Women hoopsters highly touted

The first win came in a game against Trinity College and was evidence of the teams real talent because it was on the first night back and therefore the girls had no practice since before their long layoff to sharpen up for the game. Excellent defensive play was shown by both top rebounder of the game, and by Barb Calahan and Jane Cashin, whose scrabbling resulted in quite a few turnovers. High scorer for the game was captain Less Revilock with 18 points.

The next victim of the girls and their able coach, Miss Conklin, was Yale, won by a score 23-22. This was a close and exciting game throughout, as the girls kept even, struggled from behind, and then wrapped it up with a perfect last period.

Three of these victories have come after a point spread. The Camels outscoped the opponents by the same margin of 13, 41-28. A good sign for the Conn side was the streak shooter and defensive whiz Janet Page. Coach Lessig made a display of dazzling moves in scoring many of her points while at the other end, making some hard blocks of the opponent's shots.

Perhaps the quickest flashiest player on the Conn side was the streak shooter and defensive whiz Janet Page. Coach Lessig made a display of dazzling moves in scoring many of her points while at the other end, making some hard blocks of the opponent's shots.

Coach Conklin also kept the girls in the game in fine shape by using her talented reserves. Barb Calahan, who was recovering from a broken finger, and the rest of the gang, Susie, Marty, Maggie, Kimberly, and Jane, all did an excellent job in playing the game and thus could be played with.

All with the excitement, and beauty of our girl's team, you can't afford to miss the better side of basketball!

Galloping camels take M'hatangile

The Connecticut College crew team took to the water this past Monday armed with snow shovels and sweat shirts. Last year the team was quite successful as the women's program fared second in the nation, behind Radcliffe while the men's freshman light-weight crew finished second nationally in the small college division behind the Coast Guard Academy.

This year's team appears more promising in all areas, according to Coach C. Barton Cross. With five returning veterans from last year's freshman light-weight boat and considerable strength in the freshmen ranks, this should be the year for the men's program to complete its development and start paying off in wins. The freshmen light-weights of last year, however, will be facing far tougher opponents falling. They are now competing as varsity lightweight.

This year's schedule for the men will certainly match their new strength according to Coach Cross.

Baseball meeting

A meeting will be held for all those wishing to play baseball this Spring. The meeting will be Wednesday, Feb. 77, 7-9 p.m. in the living room of Harkness. Anyone unable to attend, but still interested in playing should contact Ned Preble in the Administration Office.

Menges leads swimmers in NE meet

Catherine A. Menges, captain of the Conn College Women's Swim Team, led the team in scoring with her second place finish in the 50 yd. breast stroke event in the Women's New England Swimming and Diving Championships. The races were held this past weekend at the University of Maine in Orono.

Out of a field of 31 colleges, Conn College placed 11th. Points were awarded through both the relays and the individuals events. Ms. Menges also placed fourth in other events. Among the other competitors from Connecticut College were Catherine M. Platen, Lynn Cockey, Betsey B. Krug, Carolyn S. Spinnor and Kathryn A. Dickson.

Galloping 'camels take M'hatangile

Races are planned with Williams, Wesleyan, Holy Cross, Amherst and WPI, although a complete schedule is not yet available — the women's program sees a lot of veterans not rowing, and another. A small freshmen turn-out has all but eliminated the possibility of this year's women's eights and Galloping 'camels boxing crews in the heavy-weight and fours divisions of the Eastern Regional Championships this year.

Galloping 'camels take M'hatangile

The competition is fierce for seats in tee boats and the only way they will be available is to sign up now. A small freshmen turn-out has all but eliminated the possibility of this year's women's eights and Galloping 'camels boxing crews in the heavy-weight and fours divisions of the Eastern Regional Championships this year.

Galloping 'camels take M'hatangile

The competition is fierce for seats in tee boats and the only way they will be available is to sign up now. A small freshmen turn-out has all but eliminated the possibility of this year's women's eights and Galloping 'camels boxing crews in the heavy-weight and fours divisions of the Eastern Regional Championships this year.

Depth shown in semester's crew

The Connecticut College crew team took to the water this past Monday armed with snow shovels and sweat shirts. Last year the team was quite successful as the men's program fared second in the nation, behind Radcliffe while the men's freshman light-weight crew finished second nationally in the small college division behind the Coast Guard Academy.

This year's team appears more promising in all areas, according to Coach C. Barton Cross. With five returning veterans from last year's freshman light-weight boat and considerable strength in the freshmen ranks, this should be the year for the men's program to complete its development and start paying off in wins. The freshmen light-weights of last year, however, will be facing far tougher opponents falling. They are now competing as varsity lightweight.

This year's schedule for the men will certainly match their new strength according to Coach Cross.