Six Conn. Seniors Recently Elected To Phi Beta Kappa

Dean E. Alverson Burdick announced the election of six members to Phi Beta Kappa. They have been on the basis of three and a half years of work. The six girls are: Linda Cunningham, Carol Dana, Elizabeth Horlgan, Irene Lentz, Sandra Jellinghaus and Jane Adelson. The Winthrop Scholars, Linda Cunningham, and Joan Faraci Jones, were elected to Phi Beta Kappa last fall on the basis of three years of work.

The girls of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, Linda Cunningham, Jane Adelson and Sandra Jellinghaus are in Emily Abbe, the co-educational house. Linda Dana, Emily Abbe's president, said that Emily Abbe is a religious major. While at Connecticut, Linda Dunn was a member of the Women's and Intellectual Political Forum. Linda was an advisor to the freshman class in those years.

The basketball season is in its final stages. Now, how did you cast your votes? Did you vote for your favorite player? For someone who's never played for Connecticut? Or for someone who's been playing for years?

We can help you answer some of these questions by looking at the Connecticut basketball team's performance over the past season. On February 23, the team played against the University of Maine, and the final score was 79-66. The Connecticut team scored 36 points, while the Maine team scored 30.

On March 10, the team played against the University of New Hampshire, and the final score was 85-74. The Connecticut team scored 42 points, while the New Hampshire team scored 32.

On March 12, the team played against the University of Vermont, and the final score was 92-78. The Connecticut team scored 49 points, while the Vermont team scored 33.

These performances showcase the talent and skill of the Connecticut basketball team. The team is composed of both experienced and novice players who are working together to achieve success.

Connecticut College is one of the many colleges that participate in the Division III women's basketball tournament. The tournament is held every year, and Connecticut College has been a part of it for several years.

Connecticut College is located in the beautiful city of New London, Connecticut. The campus is nestled between the Connecticut River and Long Island Sound. The college offers a wide range of academic programs and has a strong focus on community service and environmental sustainability.

The basketball team's successes are a testament to the hard work and dedication of the players and coaching staff. Connecticut College is proud to have such a talented and successful basketball team, and we look forward to continuing to support them in their future endeavors.

The Science Club Open Meeting
Connecticut College's Science Club will have Dr. Ruth Kleinfeld as its guest speaker on March 12 at 4:20 in Hale Laboratory. Dr. Kleinfeld is presently working at the Yale Medical School on pox and measles viruses. She received her Ph.D. in cytochemistry (the chemistry of cells) from the University of Chicago. One of her major interests is the association of cell changes and certain pathological conditions (conditions having to do with the origin and nature of disease).

This meeting of the Science Club is open to all students. The lecture, according to Sandy Jeffingham, President, will not be too technical for the non-science major. Nominations for next year's officers will follow the lecture.
