Mrs. Niebuhr Stresses Acceptance Of Christian Challenge At Conference

Christianity Is Only Explanation Relevant To Human Situation

Mrs. Reinhold Niebuhr, lecturer in the department of religion at Boston University and author of several books, talked for the third day in a series of five lectures, sponsored by the Center for the Study of the Sciences and the Humanities, at the University of Connecticut in Storrs. Mrs. Niebuhr stressed the necessity of seeking the Christian interpretation of life, the reason for which she was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1937. Mrs. Niebuhr explained that the two texts represent her two different aspects on the Christian interpretation of life: the first, the study of God; the second, the acceptance of the challenge of Christianity.

On the first aspect she explained that Jesus gave many parables, many parables which, perhaps, are literal statements of what is involved in Christian faith. Denial and sacrifice are involved in most things, yet often we try to minimize them in Christianity. Niebuhr cited Simon Peter's admission of his unbelief at the Last Supper, and how he was willing to die for his master. Jesus explained that he was righteous, and that he was willing to do other things. The statement is true, and yet it is an acceptance of the challenge of Christianity.

Jesus challenged his disciples with the temptation to follow him if they were willing to drink from the cup of discipleship, to accept the challenge, to drink the cup, and count the cost. The threshold is spoken of in this sense, so we must accept the hard answers, and accept the real face of life situations by ourselves.

In so far as we accept the challenge, we must give up our own individuality and claims, and pick up our own crosses; we can't accept the challenge alone, but only together.

Ethical culture ends, Mrs. Niebuhr concluded, does justice is the highest level of life, to which we must aspire. But, it is not enough to accept the challenge, or to accept the challenge of life situations. Ethics is the highest level of life, to which we must aspire. But, it is not enough to accept the challenge, or to accept the challenge of life situations.

Mrs. Niebuhr emphasized that people must have a great deal of faith in the challenge of life situations. In order to accept the challenge of life situations, we must have a great deal of faith in the challenge of life situations.

New Eng. Seminar Room Used By The Chaucer Classes

A new English seminar room has been placed in the new lower level of the library. It contains the valuable collection of medieval manuscripts, most of which was donated to the University by the late Dr. Carleton Brown, scholar in English. The donation has been loaned the college by his widow, Mrs. Frances Brown, an English in English at the college. The books are for use by those students and faculty studying Chaucer and medieval literature.

The Chaucer classes of Dr. Doucet, on the other hand, which meets in English, now meet in the new seminar room. An art department will decorate the walls of the room with prints of stained glass windows of the famed Chaucer themes and prints of medieval illuminations.

The collection of the late Dr. Brown includes a complete set of editions of the Early Text Society, most of which were presented to the Chaucer Society, and a rich series of medieval manuscripts of the 13th and 14th centuries.

Mr. Brown was head of the graduate school of English at Bryn Mawr and later professor of English at New York University. He spoke on Chaucer at the college last year shortly before his death.

Ddictatorial Democracy?

Last week, an organization which calls itself Techomoly, Inc., came forth in the press with a demand for a total control over all men, and of men alone, but also of "material, moral, and money." with national service from all and profits to none. They stated that "total war strategy demands designed direction," and hence they urged that all labor, banks, insurance companies, independent unions, courts, and all possible economic re- strictions—everything—be united under the direction of the United States government. They said that the government should still further in urging that the federal government as soon as possible, if not now, take all the industries, including the railroads and public utilities. In this way, they said, the government should "arrange" for the production of "all necessary armaments for invading all taxes." These were but a few of the totalitarian proposals they advocated, all of which were equal- ly drastic.

The entire proposal if put into effect, would completely revolutionize life as we know it in the country. Three months ago, the appearance of such a movement meant nothing to most people. But the present crisis has aroused a furor of condemnation and comment. Is it not the very embodiment of methods employed by the forces we are fighting? Yet this recent public declaration of a policy so entirely contrary to our staunchly defended civil liberties, separation of powers, federalism, and "democratic process," brought about a furor from the press and a scarcely raised eyebrow from the American public.

Why? Is it that we do not think the idea of sufficient importance to provoke serious thought? Is it that we do not think of the dangers that underlie the adoption, or threat of adoption, of such a program? Or is it that we are beginning to feel the results of the many reminders, cleverly put forth by prominent citizens, and bemoan the fact that our leaders are unable to do more than "sit there and do nothing" about the smallness of twenty- five cents per week and the horrors of the other day when books are written be- cause of it. Instead of reminding us what is happening around the world, we choose to read the Bible all the way through—without ending by it, without using our minds, thusly being content with the result of reminders, cleverly put forth by the other side, in order to help them understand how it is that we do not think the idea of sufficient importance to provoke serious thought. Dear Editor,

To A Trained First Aider

Ladle, if you see me lying

On the ground (and maybe) dying,

Let my gun rise bright and free.

Don't attempt to bandage me!

While there's life there's hope; so, Pet,

Don't apply a tourniquet.

Ned, I beg, attempt salvation

"Artificial Respiration" does not stretch my bowels and joints,

Do not press my pressure points; if

Queer symptoms you should see

Don't experiment with me.

If I'm suffering from shock,

Take a walk around the block;

If you wish keep busy, pray

Help to drive the crowds away.

So, whatever my condition,

Phone one at a time for a physician.

Let me be: I'll be a changed man.

Waiting for the ambulance.

From first aid to the hospital;

Ladle, let me die in peace!

BOOK REVIEW

by Mary Jane Dole '43

"Big Family" is a rollicking, utterly delightful tale of a family. Bellamy Partridge, author of "Country Lawyer," has done another masterly job of present- ing the life and times of the late nineteen-thirties. Families were large, and father Partridge had one of which to. "More fruit, Harry?"

"Hello, Boston? What do I do now? I just heard a plane go over, but I can't see anything!"

Coke Man's Trade

Altered By CCDM

by Nancy Toland '44

"Business any different lately?" we asked Harry, the coke man, the other night.

Harry worked the levers of the dime compartment of his change- box, and after due consideration an- swered, "No, boss, but I sell more fruit than I used to.

"More fruit, Harry?"

"Yes, ma'am; about three times as much fruit in the last few days, and a whole lot less candy. But business's as good as always.

We turned away, and quietly chatted one up for C.C.M.D.

"Has C.C.M.D. made any difference to the girls in Vinal?"

"Well, smiled the freshman,

"I'm sick of the dietitians!"

"The, you see me, lying on the ground, maybe dying, let my gun rise bright and free. Don't attempt to bandage me!"

Prove Marriage and College Can Be Mixed

by Betty Shank '43

The older folks would shake their heads and say it can’t be done, but the young people of today say it can—they feel that a well-matched marriage and college success are not mutually exclusive. College students who are engaged have demonstrated this throughout the world.

Mrs. Harry S. Howland (Lenox 06) has been engaged to marry her college friend, Mr. Ensign Roger J. Auge. Mr. Auge will have a big wedding in his home town of Cambridge, Mass., on Friday, April 8. They have been engaged for one year and have already begun to plan their wedding.

In this article, I want to tell you about a girl who is being married the last week of April. Miss Jeans 05 has had a long engagement with Mr. Roger Auge of Cambridge, Mass. They have been engaged for a year and have already begun to plan their wedding.

In answer to a query about the rapidity with which mail reaches the campus, Miss Jeans says, "I am happy and I am very proud. Recently the girls on her floor in her ’40 Dodge atter her lour boxes with roses In the addItion to the

The new regulations for Air Hostesses omit the former necessity of a six months training and so Helen Lederer '42 has decided that she definitely would like to be an Air Hostess. Some of the requirements like weight (you definitely have to have some) are still the same however. Helen inquired as to the maximum and found that it is still 125 pounds. She blithely replied that she only had to lose 15 pounds and the last we heard, she was ardently pursuing Lizzie Arden's reducing program and drinking spinach juice for breakfast (this has a little difficulty deciphering it, movie and students seemed to have a little difficulty deciphering it, movie and students seemed to have a little difficulty deciphering it, movie and students seemed to have a little difficulty deciphering it, movie and students seemed to have a little difficulty deciphering it).

Not long ago there was a Spanish movie and students seemed to have a little difficulty deciphering the story which evidently concerned a man as idol who definitely attracted the ladies. During the intermission swarms of stu-
