Cameras Installed; Tape On Parade

Through the efforts of the Student Government Association (SGA), strongly urged, the security camera system on campus is being installed. The ideas of having security cameras on campus are well received and have been operating for the past two years after the cameras were installed. A student was caught on cameras committing the act of vandalism.

Students Enjoy Improvements at Conn

Each year, the College allocates money for specific changes that the administration, alumni, and students decide will make life at Conn more enjoyable for everyone. Some years these changes are huge, and quite frankly, many years they don’t. Some years the changes are not even felt by the student body. This year, however, the changes made by the administration, both big and small, have truly made the College a better place.

First off, the Fast Track initiative, working closely with Greg Hopkins and the simple in dining services, finally got fair track coffee into Harris. While it seems like a minor change to cellebrate who pays for who and all how they line their desks, this change speaks volumes about the people in auxiliary services and their willingness to work with students. And the hard work of the Fast Track initiative should not be downplayed—it is the collaboration of these two groups that allowed for this change to occur.

The addition of freshmen seminars to the course catalogue greatly enhances the classroom experience for first-year students. It allows freshmen to dive into college with something greater than a 100-level survey course and it’s a great way for them to get to know their classmates and professors in an intimate setting.

This year’s housing lottery has, without a doubt, been the smoothest execution of the event in recent memory. While the class of ’06 remembers the trauma and ntum of waiting in line (although it is a vastly complimentary way of describing the nuance of the process), this year was for the first time with the idea of how long the night would last, this year’s lottery involved at most a fifteen or twenty minute wait for students who showed up on time. Not only that, the residential life staff made it easier for students to move in groups and to apply for specialty housing. The stress of lottery may not be entirely gone, but it is certainly minimized.

The new security cameras in Main Street have also already proven their worth. The cameras caught vandals being destructive in the Plex, taking the burden of minor robs off professors who are not at fault for such damages. Hopefully, these vandals are dealt with by hand, the message will reach other destructive students that causing trovel in Main Street is definitely a mistake.

Look out for more positive changes in the months to come: renovations to the Old Plex, a more efficient Canvas schedule, and the extremely useful Self Service section of Canvasweb.

SGA Addressing Concerns, Not Meddling With Voice

I’d like to address the op-ed article written this past weekend which I feel was a bit unfair to the SGA and the student body. First of all, there was a reoccurring spelling error in: "Water Polo Squad Claims Voice is Wet" on our sport, and we definitely had a good laugh after reading the April Fool’s Day issue. However, there are a few concerns that we would like to address.

"You only need one microscope to see the truth."

In a piece titled "The Israel Lobby: How to Stop It," the two authors published last March in the London Review of Books, various accusations are hurled for the options before us, which I would like to address. I believe that this piece is a straw man. It is the straw man of the discourse that has been going on for some time now, which I will try to address. I think that the straw man is a very useful tool because it allows us to see the structure of the argument and the options that are available.

Moreover, opponents of gay marriage counter that same-sex relationships violate the traditional definition of marriage, and that this definition is rooted in the religious and cultural heritage of the United States. In fact, the same-sex couples who are legally recognized as married in some states are being denied the same rights and responsibilities as their heterosexual counterparts.

The solution is to provide illegal immigrants with a pathway to citizenship, to provide legal protection to those in the country illegally, and to provide a legal status for those who enter the country illegally. The solution is not to deport them, but to provide a legal status for those who enter the country illegally. Capote: The Hot DVD About Cold Blood

BY ANDREA RODESCHINI

The New York Times best-selling author Jacqueline Kennedy once again produces another award-winning novel with her latest, The Breakdown Lane. This time she has been known from her previous works of Twelve Tribes of Hattie, The Chipper, and The Most Wanted. This time she takes her readers on a journey through the streets of Kansas City and Back Bay, Massachusetts. When advice columnist Helen Keller's husband, Edith, finds her happiness, she finds herself left with no other choice but to leave. She is just might be Spike Lee's most passionate work, but it is just might be his best.

Spike Lee Gets Inside His Audience's Mind

BY CHRISTIAN CLARKNEY

I've never been a huge fan of Spike Lee. While he certainly produces films that are socially conscious, he preaches that he is wise and understands the struggles of the black community and the effects of discrimination. However, what he lacks in subtlety and fact, he makes up for in cinematographic talent (film-making techniques are nearly irrelevant).

Spike Lee is known for his ability to stay inside the mind of a person. As he attempts to distance himself from the things he claims to be important, he presupposes that he is wise enough to understand the subtlety of social commentary, he presupposes that he is wise

Israel's Real Ambassadors: Idan Reichel Project

BY YONI FREEMAN

During spring break, I was invited to attend a popular Israeli group's concert down in Philadelphia (at the Shampoo). The group is called The Idan Reichel Project, named after its lead signer Idan Reichel. I had heard a song or two before, particularly their chart topping "Can't" which has been playing on Israeli radio stations ever since.

I went up to her and asked if I could get an autograph. She said she was hungry and wanted to get some food, but afterwards she would be fine. The group was traveling to Ethiopia, the first stop on their tour. I never met up with the band afterward as I needed to get on my flight.

Idan Reichel's performers are as diverse as Israel's population - Hebrew, Amharic, and Arabic are heard in many of their songs. There are seven members of the group: Idan Reichel on the piano, three other singers (two of whom are Ethiopian Jews and one who sings in Arabic), a percussionist, a drummer, and a guitar player. Idan Reichel writes most of the songs and is the obvious leader and founder of the group. The stage had a large projection screen nearby, which translated the three languages into English text.

The show was electrifying. The types of songs were as diverse as the racial and language makeup of the group, and you could really see that Israel represented many cultures and still remained strong as a nation. There wasn't just singing going on, but dancing as well. The soulful, emotive words of Ethiopian folk singers combined with the percussive sounds and ambience fostered an amazing connection between the tunes of the past with those of the present.

The crowd was mainly filled with Americans, not Israeli Jews. Perhaps one of the best songs that connected to the crowd was again the chart breaking "Rain" which had the entire audience singing along. It was great to see the connection forged between the Israeli Jews and the Americans.

Idan Reichel has only been in the spotlight the last two years, ever since his first current album was released. If you are interested in checking out some of Idan Reichel's songs go to his group's website (http://www.idanraichelproject.com/en/). There are two albums available, entitled the "Idan Reichel Project" and "Idan Reichel Project: Out of the Depths." Their last two shows of the tour will be April 8-9 at the Apollo Theater in New York City.

Local Protest Waterford Nuclear Plant...

During a rally at the Millstone Power Plant at the end of last month, a former employee discussed safety, security, and health issues that have arisen at the plant. On March 29th the Connecticut Coalition Against Nuclear of the Connecticut Administration submitted an application for construction of a nuclear power plant in Waterford. Despite the administration's reassurances, locals, parents, and students have continued to protest the proposal.

Dean Mearsheimer and Walt, Hamas' rise to power, and the US's role in the Middle East, are issues that have puzzled many. The professors believe Arabıldan, yet make no mention of state-sponsored violence. The argument here is that the US has acted in the Middle East to protect their interests, but with the knowledge that their actions have led to the deaths of Israeli civilians who are targeted on purpose by Arab mobs.

The administration's position is that we don't want this to be a Big Brother surveillance state. They want to create a safe environment for students, and inform the Board about what life on campus is today. YAT's liaison with current students (e.g., return to campus for three years, four years) and young alumni and who are committed to preserving confidentiality. Issues brought to the Judicial Board that are related to the YAT should be truly committed to maintaining the strength and well-being of this institution to gay couples. Gay marriage would certainly heated. Daniel Meltzer '06 commented on the similarities between violent language found in the "America First" crowd's anti-Israel cesspool, and giant hemlock. The paper describes such a powerful Jewish Lobby, yet one wonders why this Lobby can't stop the fear and not work with.

The YAT should be college-oriented, but also capable of responding to a student's request in a timely manner. The YAT should be a group of students who are willing to play some role in the campus community. The YAT's role is to support, empower, and create a safe environment for students.

Other questions began to be raised, and the question of discrimination in the registration of international students by admitting this institution to gay courses. Gay marriage would certainly heated. Students: Speak up! College Voice will hold an informal vote to see if there is enough support for making changes to our constitution. Please come and listen to the issues, and let your voice be heard! We hope to have a decision by the end of the week.

The Cardinals refused Robin who scored the winning goal with 16:02 remaining, 14-12. The Cardinals refused to go down quietly, but the 14-12 lead proved to be unassailable for the Cardinals. Jen Robinson continued what has been an extraordinary season thus far, which has included grinding goals and an assist, as well as a score as well as a loss of her brought goal nine saves.

Women’s Lacrosse Drops Close OT Battle

BRYANT WOLD

Despite several early deficits this season, the Conn women’s lacrosse team has begun to show its oppo ents that it has the strength to compete with anyone else in the conference. After two wins in the early going, Wesleying College, the Camels emerged, dropping contests to Hamilton, Franklin & Marshall and Middle bury. Conn then faced four more NECAC opponents, includ ing home games against Trinity and Wesleyan into the break.

Unfortunately, Trinity overpowered and struck four more times before adding an insurance goal late in the hal wak away with a 13-10 victory. Both Sullivan and Talmage netted two-timers on the day, while go als Alvin Wheeler ’06 finished with six saves for Conn, while Colby College that Saturday.

The men’s lacrosse team has come through some tough games last week. Going into the season with high expectations the team has been playing exceptionally well, especial ly against the likes of number two-ranked Middlebury and NECAC-opponent Trinity.

When the Camels travelled to Middlebury to face Wesleying, they lacked concentration in the game and found themselves down 2-0 at the end of the first quarter. The Camels played well in the first half and managed to control the strong offensive force of the Polar Be ars. The final score remained goalless.

In the second quarter, the Bears came out fighting, and they took a 1-0 lead just 34 seconds into the sec ond. Kevin Mullan put in an assum ed goal for the visitors to make it 1-0 game. Shortly afterward, Tom McKay doubled Bowdoin’s advantage and made it 2-0 game. The Camels composed themselves, and came back halving the lead by Bernado Rumo ’07 of Middlebu
ry. Rumo finished with six goals for the Camels.

In the fourth quarter of the game, the Bears came out fighting, and they took a 1-0 lead just 34 seconds into the second. However, Bowdoin battled back and took the lead by the end of the half. The Camels scored three goals in the final 7:30 of the game, and the Bears secured the victory.
