Openning the ceremonies with a call for the rejection of "the arrogance of power, ideas and indifference," College Chaplain David Robb, in his invocation, cited the often-neglected "muility of compassion. "We must strive for wisdom not only of the mind but of the soul, wisdom not only of intelligence but of compassion," he intoned.

Remarking that the atmosphere created by the installation of a new president was "refreshing," President of Student Government Richard Lichtenstein pledged the support of not only himself and the student government association but of his peers as well. "I offer to you, Mr. Ames, the support of the entire student body in the weeks and months ahead," Lichtenstein said. In tandem, Dean of Faculty Wayne Swanson promised faculty support, remarking at the outset of his short address that the faculty "...is eager to respond to Mr. Ames' leadership." addition, he added that "diversity is the lifeblood of any institution" and that Ames would make a "concerted effort" to keep channels open to all the varied constituencies of the college.

Swanson was followed in quick succession by Elizabeth Danis, a past director of the Alumni Association, and William Nahas, Mayor of New London. Both stressed the "Integrity of Connecticut College; Nahas especially pointing out that "Conn College has been a good citizen of New London."

Immediately following the series of short addresses, Sidney Gelber, Academic Vice President and Professor of Philosophy at SUNY-Stony Brook, delivered the inaugural address. He characterized the leadership qualities of the new President as "decisive and exemplary." Gelber went on to stress the importance of the creative arts, the universal nature of the application in contemporary life, and the dangers inherent in an "excessive departmentalization." Gelber asked whether society could tolerate exclusivity; "should we regard education in the arts as a private preserve of the privileged few?"

He further cautioned that "the future of art will not depend on a plethora of artists, but on a culture and citizenry that recognizes the value of art."

Wayne Swanson and Oakes Ames relax after ceremony.

Swanson pledges responsiveness

by Looney and Christophers

Declaring himself "open and amenable to all suggestions from faculty and students alike," Wayne Swanson, newly appointed Dean of Faculty, does not intend to "negotiate himself" in his office. He fully expects the coming academic year to be a "challenging and pivotal one" for the college.

In a Pundit interview, Swanson predicted that a new President would induce a spirit of cohesiveness among the various campus constituencies. "A new administration will inevitably bring a fresh approach to problems, and I look for some changes in President Ames' approaches to them," Swanson remarked. When asked what his major concerns in the coming months, Swanson replied that he intended to maintain a "dynamic curriculum," keep course offerings up to date, and supervise the observance of departmental budgets. Swanson pledged that he and President Ames would do everything possible to prevent faculty staff cuts, explaining that "we can't eat away the basis of our academic program. "The President and I, however, are aware of last year's summer report, which indicated that Conn's faculty is highly tenured. Both of us are concerned about this question, as tenure does not promote flexibility as a rule," Swanson cautioned. That neither he nor Mr. Ames planned on tampering with the tenure system, he would not impose on the faculty. At the present time, 63.5 percent of the faculty is tenured. "There are other ways besides staff cuts to promote flexibility." Swanson observed. "Nevertheless, the Board of Trustees is most concerned about the question, and the faculty must come to grips with it," he said.

In tandem with the views expressed by President Ames, Swanson said he would work hard to increase faculty salaries. "In competitive terms, faculty pay is a bit below average." With regard to his own position as Dean, Swanson does not intend it to be a permanent one. "The Dean of Faculty must remain attuned to the academic sphere. If effectiveness will be hampered considerably, Turnover is good, and I intend to remain only as long as President Ames finds me useful," he concluded.

Gelber concluded by stressing the integral role liberal arts colleges play in the growth and viability of a community and their continued health and viability in a thoroughly pragmatic manner.

In his inaugural address, Mr. Ames' tone was moderate, imbued with "cautious and purposeful optimism." "We live in an age of specialization," he began. "Yet specialization gives little guidance in helping us reach value judgments. We need that spirit in this day and age," the new President remarked. Ames also alluded to "a spirit of practicality, of doing." He cited his experience for students as areas of special interest to him. Mr. Ames also for this year, a balanced budget is "anticipated," but the unpredictable nature of inflation may make any prediction "rather tentative."

The construction of a new ice rink, which provoked at least some comment last semester, is "a dormant issue for the time being," "If Ross Pierpont, Marzilli and developer and financial backer of the rink, said the next move was ours, and we have no plans at the moment to pursue," said Ames.

When asked whether he had heard reports that Pierpont had been indicted by a grand jury, Ames said "I've heard very little about it, I don't know for sure that it's true, and thus I can't really comment on it." Ames also said he was very much in favor of a rink, even though the proposed location is an "unfortunate one." Ames suggested a location somewhat to the east of the campus, at a lower elevation.

When questioned as to the direction his administration will take, Ames replied that an administration of "high visibility" is his most important goal, as well as that of the highest priority. When asked whether he anticipated any new economy measures this fall, Mr. Harris was the only measure planned "at this time." "We've cut down on costs as effectively as we can without sacrificing essentials," he maintained. "The fact that last year's budget finished slightly in the black is testimony to the ultimate practicality of cost consciousness on all levels," Ames continued. For this year, a balanced budget is "anticipated," but the unpredictable nature of inflation may make any prediction "rather tentative."

Stand on it!

Welcome back to dear old Conn. College; apathy and boredom capital of the effete East. Have you noticed — we have a new President, a new faculty Dean, a new student Government, even a new Editor of Pundit (not that the last is anything unusual, of course). We have a slew of new students, and presumably a restored group of returnees, fresh from three months away from wintertime New London.

Now is no time to unravel. 'Stand on it' is an automobile racing term for mashing one's foot and accelerator pedal to the floor to make one's car perform to its maximum. To 'stand on it' is to live life at the limit, to go 'hell-bent for leather,' "to go 'balls-out,' " "One of the most unfair and unpleasant of Life's Cruel Truths is that energy expended creates energy available." The more one exercises an ability, whether it be athletic, musical, artistic, or intellectual, the greater will be your capacity and proficiency in the future.

The administration of Conn. is not in loco parentis. The school cannot tell you what to do. You are free women and men able to do what you will. Four years, one year, one semester is too much time to waste bitching, complaining about how other folks act. It is too much time to waste getting stoned and listening to Led Zeppelin, Grand Funk, Weather Report, Miles Davis, Scott Joplin and J.S. Bach. If you want things done right around campus, make sure they are:

Do it yourself.

"The moral of this story is short and simple:
If you are going to stand on it at all, stand on it now. 'cause you're getting slower all the time."

Harris Harassment

The name "Harris Refectory" is gradually coming to assume more and more negative connotations. The new policy of Friday dinner in Harris, although economically sound, seems to be causing considerable inconvenience. Freshmen and upperclassmen alike could be heard grumbling menacingly while standing in Friday night's dinner line, the length of which forced many students to eat dinner off-campus. Additionally, studying in Harris is now prohibited, thus forcing North Campus students into an already-overcrowded library. The reason for this new ruling stems from a fear that someone will attempt to tamper with the new conveyor belt, commonly known as Bathsheba. Surely there are more convenient solutions to these problems.

PUNDIT suggests opening up the Freeman and Jan Addams dining rooms on the weekend to alleviate the crowding; after all, Harris was originally designed to accommodate only the Complex. Secondly, why couldn't Bathsheba be locked up at night? Certainly a small amount of additional security is more rational answer to the problem than the obliteration of an excellent study room. PUNDIT hopes that the administration will not overlook these fair requests.

We live in an age of facts, an era of an anonymous enterprise and equally great personal mobility. In all organizations, from the smallest to the largest, the small, the bean counters have taken over. Decisions are based on facts and figures, not on the art of the alchemist and the poet. The number of the best pattern is chosen for any project among a group of competing projects. No individuals have decision-making power any longer. With accountability for one’s actions to the government, the stockholders, the Sierra Club or Ralph Nader taking on greater and greater importance, no one wants to be responsible for making a decision. Decisions are made by committees, by mathematical formula, by statistics.

Everyman loses over society.
The prevailing wisdom for years was that America was a melting pot, where a melding of cultures took place. That it is fashionable. Now one must be ethnic; one must not follow the traditional W. E. B. Du Bois. Everyone following their own ethnic bent is not really the way the world works. For each group in society there is a behavior archetype. One must follow, or lose, this accommodation, losing one’s own group, becoming an outcast. One cannot hold “proper” political views, if “Ethics” (liberal) here at Com. is strange, weird, reactionary, no one will be trusted, and probably not worth knowing.

Government protects us from ourselves. Our “representatives” represent the government to us, and not their constituents to the government.Occasionally laws prevent individuals from leaving the Indian reservations and the church, and the organizations. These beautiful homes cannot be used for “public” purposes. And there have so much work done to them.

New faculty begin service

Stretching through the valleys of California, there are thousands of agricultural workers fighting for the right that the American industrial laborer obtained forty years ago. The farmworkers of America are engaged in a struggle for, among other things, the right to unionize their choice, medical benefits, sick pay, union elections, hiring halls, and fair wages. The great majority of them have chosen the United Farmworkers of America (UFW) as their agent in this struggle. The UFW, led by Cesar Chavez, has been working for many years to attain the basic necessities of human dignity for the farmworkers. These laborers, who are mostly Chicano, are confronted with a language barrier, radical prejudice, and a feudalistic approach to agriculture on the part of the growers. The UFW has tried to better the position of the worker through contract negotiations. They find rubies and other gems of style from my travels and experiences as a professional student.

New faculty begin service

-by Lynda Batter 76

Connecticut College began its 60th milestones early in May with the convening of classes and the addition of 23 new faculty members. Among the new college teachers are 10 men and women who hold full-time teaching appointments. They will combine instructional duties on campus with professional community activities.

Those assuming full-time teaching loads are Associate Professor Charles B. Lovelace, director of athletics and chairman of the physical education department, who comes from Boston University where he was assistant athletic director; Dr. Richard Conover of Chinese, from University of Washington; Patricia A. Fitzimmons, assistant professor of psychology, from New Haven Women’s Abortion Referral Service; and William G. Frasure, associate professor of government, former legislative counsel to the legislatures of Palos and Valparaiso.

Also, Lynda D.W. Bogle of Quaker Hill, instructor in English, Edward DeSoto of New York City, lecturer in dance; Robert J. Cottrell of Yale, visiting instructor in history; Carl F. Hills of Yale, visiting instructor in Russian; Ronald Rattey of Brown University, instructor in economics; and Nancy S. Roberts of Gales Ferry, instructor in Hispanic studies.

associate professor of psychology; Dr. Savay Katrak, State University of New York at Oneonta, visiting associate professor of history; and Nancy L. Brewer of Trinity College, assistant professor of zoology.

Also, Joys Granbery Hoyt of Waterford, assistant professor of dance; Dr. Nita Toledano of University of Massachusetts, visiting assistant professor of history; and Dr. Margaret Coller of University of Connecticut, visiting lecturer in art history.

Also, Dr. Benjamin Greene, assistant professor of economics, from University of Maryland; Robert L. Hampton, assistant professor of sociology, from University of Michigan; Mark Fante, assistant professor of anthropology, from Brandeis University; Dr. Edward F. Lenk, visiting assistant professor of Italian, from the Trinity College program at Rome; Dr. Charles Holm, visiting professor of classics, from Brown University; and William F. Farnsworth, assistant professor of economics, from Slippery Rock State College.

The new part-time faculty members include Dr. Sara S. Sparrow of Yale, visiting professor of economics; and Dr. Edward H. Flescher of Connecticut Valley Hospital, visiting professor of medicine.

This survey is an effort to acquaint students, faculty and staff of Connecticut College with the various establishments located primarily in the New London area which are geared to the consumption of alcoholic beverages. Establishments which are known primarily as restaurants such as Chuck's, Ye Olde Tavern, etc. have not been included because the report felt that these were not within the scope of the survey.

The city of New London contains between 35 and 40 bars and taverns. These are located in various parts of the city with a major concentration in the Bank Street area. Clientele in these bars include all legal age groups. Some places encourage buying rounds for all the bar patrons and others discourage more than an order of water (heavy on the ice). Many bars in New London are regular meeting places for old friends, visits, etc. are designed for the making of new friendships.

Entertainment in the nightlife of New London is limited in many instances to jukeboxes, but several places offer live bands of varying quality every night or on weekends.

Throughout the survey, I had no difficulty in any place which I visited. Most places were frequented more than once, others seemed to require only one visit. The survey was conducted at night during the prime drinking hours of 5 p.m. and 1 a.m. Most bars were visited alone, however, in return visits many places were surveyed with a friend. Neither patrons nor owners were aware that a survey of this nature was being taken and this information was only volunteered if an interest was indicated.

Finally, a few ground rules and suggestions are made to make your explorations of the amazing world of New London nightlife a more enjoyable experience:

1.) Bars and taverns are open until 1 a.m. Sunday through Thursday and until 2 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.
2.) Don't bring an exorbitant amount of cash with you.
3.) If you're not particularly adventurous, go with a few friends on the first nights out.
4.) Dress inappropriately and act with civility just to avoid any potential trouble.
5.) Bring some type of identification.Conn L.D. is fine in most places.
6.) Lock your car.
7.) If you see trouble brewing, leave quickly.
8.) If you get into a bind, plead ignorance or stupidity, whichever is most compatible with your antagonist(s).

This report is divided into two sections. The first is a table which gives a basic rundown on the bars and taverns, including type of beer on draft, the availability of mixed drinks, amusements available, suggested dress, the general age of the clientele and a rating scheme. The rating is simply:

R - Recommended
RR - Recommended with reservations (see the short paragraph in the second section for qualifications on the particular bar)
NR - Not recommended (see the paragraph for reasons)
NC - No particular rating

The second part of the survey is a brief description of most of the establishments surveyed. This section is undoubtedly the most subjective aspect of the survey but should prove to be helpful in choosing a bar to visit tonight.

I hope that this survey encourages you to learn more about New London and its nightlife. Good Drinking.

Capsules

Pearl's - Offering live entertainment and a cover charge, especially on weekends. A newly decorated place with a clientele age group of 20 to 35. Prices are average. Pearl's is a good place to rally when the band is good. No jeans allowed. Highly recommended.

Dutch's Tavern - The sentimental favorite of many Conn College people, surviving beer only. This is a nice relaxing place where you can sit for hours alone or with a group of friends. Reportedly, a former haunt of Eugene O'Neill, the Dutch ranks high on the list of recommended places in New London. For a special treat, order a pitcher of Sarazen and add a small bottle of Guiness.

Bit of San Francisco - Walking into the "Bit" may at first be an unsettling experience, however, try to dodge the billiard players and make it to the back room where things are a bit calmer (usually). This is a good place to go with a few friends from the dorm.

Port of Entry Cafe - The "Rowdiness" of the "Port" MAY have been exaggerated in recent years. This bar has large following of students from Mitchell College and area Community Colleges. O.K. for singles or groups. Don't overdo it.

Half-Keg Tavern - A converted Quonset Hut, this is a good place to go to get away from it all. Offering nothing special except a television, try it on some off night in the dorm. The Half-Keg is small and difficult to find. Start looking for it just past (going West) the Pizzarama.

Bach-Dor — Listed as a discotheque, the Bach-Dor evokes varied responses from those who go there. Though there is no cover charge, prices are high. Featuring a dance area, occasional go-go dancers and a light show in time to the music, the sounds here are very similar to ABC AM radio. Go here after visiting some of the other bars so that you might be in a more compatible mood for the experience.

Lamperelli's Seven Brothers — No matter what story is told about this place someone in your dorm will have a better one. Go with a large group of friends, enjoy (?) the band and leave early. Reported, if you haven't seen Lamperelli's, you haven't seen New London.

Delphi — This is about the only bar in New London which caters to a college age clientele. Four KLH speakers usually fill the place with good tunes all evening. A friendly bar, especially after a few visits. Become an official member when you buy a 'PHIN' T-shirt some night.

Birdseye Restaurant — Basically a short-order restaurant, the Birdseye offers the cheapest draft and mixed drinks in town. (In-dividual happy hours excepted). A very quiet atmosphere prevails except when the Boston Red Sox are featured on television.

Picke's — A favorite standby bar for a quick beer and a change of pace. The regular clientele at this bar are friendly and you should have no qualms about entering the establishment alone or with friends.

Brass Rail — Small, dusty bar with a pool table. No draft and little excitement; not really recommended for the pre variance under 70 group.

El 'n' Gee Club — Not far from the Dutch; no draft but nice place. Padded bar and friendly waitresses. Formerly, a strip joint but those years have passed. Management considering reopening that aspect if considerable interest is shown.

Foley's — One of the only 'ethnic bars in New London (Irish Flags in the window, etc.) Out of the way-bar which could be a good place to become a regular.

Cler's Half Shell — Girl's looks like a converted soda fountain. On the corner of Bank and Howard (Colombo Square), offering a few pinball machines and little else.

Hughes — Very well, Hughes reminds you of Friendly's. There is something nearly obscene about drinking a beer in such a well-lit place. Not a bad restaurant on the side.

Hygiene — Open 24 hours a day as a restaurant, not a terrific bar. A hangout for all sorts of shady characters after 1 a.m.

Mahrey's — Cover charge, good dancing music with a large area following. Go in a group early some weekend night; often very crowded.

Marie's — A family type of bar, where you could bring your mother. Very quiet and friendly. Recommended for a quiet drink.

Peyo's — Located in the large square of Bank Street. Peyo's is lighted by the beer and liquor promotion signs collected since the bar opened. Type of place that you can tell your grand children about when recounting instances of personal bravery.

Raiden's Roost — Though not located in the best area, the Raiden is always crowded. Go here for a change.

Rudy's — Near the train stations; very dark bar area; two pool tables; may be a USCGA hangout (?)?

Sub — Walking into the Sub is like entering another world. Decorated in early American school system blackboards, with a circular bar, pool table and friendly waitresses, the Sub should be included on any early evening tour.

Tayo's — One associate suggested that any tour should begin at Tiny's since other places would look better from then on. Double bar (only one in use).

Late Flash

Dial Tone — Though the Dial Tone is the most distant establishment in the survey, get some of your friends together and go out there some night just for the experience. (No Jeans allowed). Each table has a phone as well as every stool at the bar. Surrounded over the phones are red lights indicating the number to use to contact that phone. A live band and a cover charge on weekends are featured. Go in a group, being alone can be a down here. If you are a group of girls you may be 'accosted' by an equal number of guys sitting at another table. Designed primarily as a pick-up joint, if one of your party is not in the mood don't leave her alone at the table. Finally, do not act too rowdy in the parking lot, Waterford police frown upon drunkeness and are not known to be understanding.

'Jaws' a big yawn

BY LAUREN KINGSMLEY

For someone who, generally speaking, is about as concerned as a shark about its environment, I was surprised on Monday afternoon when I awoke myself from my accidental-on-purpose nap to watch my favorite shark movie, "Jaws." I guess I expected something more superhuman in the shark's presence upon every page of the script. As it turned out, the shark was rather ridiculously incongruous, as though he lacked a necessary sensation of his own. Personally, I think the shark has done well to study Hardy's heath. Finally, the ending is allegorically sentimental and utterly predictable.

What, then, makes Jaws popular enough to become a legend? Well, the reason is that it is the Shark name, or the admirable realism of a shark's style, or most probably, the bizarre nature of the book's central, menacing factor. Jaws should possess quite fairly good entertainment, if one can stomach the constant flow of victims.

Somehow, the title of the new Emerson album "We derp mitz" is a million dollars for a business. If the three million dollars is a purpose of this column to try to advise those fortunate enough to have a paltry amount of music investment in making a wise choice in their purchases.

Well, since I've been about eight, when I bought my first Beatles record, I've had a real proclivity to recording music, music, music. I've sorted through my collection. So have tried to make it a habit to be exposed to most of the recent releases in the recording and jazz fields, either by scrapping up some money for the album or by listening to the radio. I play most of the instruments used in the recording field today and I've had several courses in music theory. Now that may account for my technical knowledge, but it can't possibly give me any taste. While I happen to think my taste is pretty good, I would disagree if you like the Dead). That's fine. As I said before, it just offers more. It's your decision to accept or reject that recommendation.

Here is your first chance to defend时髦和 one of the few finest musicians, one individually and collectively, in the rock field have come out with another live album. The record easily takes my award for the longest title of an album: "Welcome back my friends, to the show which never ends, Ladies and Gentlemen, Emerson, Lake, and Palmer." (Mantiffere MC 5-200) The album basically a very different from the earlier albums, "Tarkus" and "Brain Salad Surgery" but contains an intelligent playing I've ever heard either in the rock world or classically. Sides three and four are the highlights of this album which is more worth buying if you don't have either of the aforementioned albums. For some reason, if you do have them, buy it if you can afford it just because Emerson is so outstanding.

In addition to its interior redesigning, the Infirmary has undergone a change in terms of staff as well. Mr. Bert Gunn, the new psychiatric social worker, comes here with an impressive background. He is currently a fellow at the UC School of Social Work with an MSW and belongs to the Academy of Certified Social Workers. He was working previously with children, families, adolescents, and parents at the United Workers of Norwich Counseling Services. In an interview with Mr. Gunn, he said that “all problems are normal.” Especially with college students, the most common problems arise from leaving home. Specifically, students start discovering things about themselves that they never knew existed. According to Mr. Gunn, students come to college from a secure group of high school friends. Once they are here, it is difficult to find out which image they wish to put forth. In essence, it is his job to help them discover which image is the correct one.

Mr. Gunn is trying to institute some new types of counseling this year. One of these is the idea of group sessions. Mr. Gunn believes groups have more power, more support, and that students can not only sympathize but learn with each other. In the past, Mr. Gunn has found that through group sessions, people learn to talk about themselves and ultimately trust others more.

The social work services at the infirmary see approximately 100-150 students per month. It is for this reason that appointments must be made in advance through the secretary. Six sessions is the maximum number of free visits annually. The social workers, Mr. Gunn and Mrs. Broad, are available on an emergency basis as well. All files are kept strictly confidential and separate from medical records.

All women on campus should be happy to discover a new gynecologist at the Infirmary this year, Dr. Gordon Murphy. He received an AB from New York University and his M.D. from Cornell Medical College. He has had his private practice in Montclair, New Jersey and was chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Mountain Side Hospital in Montclair from 1960 to 1970. After going into semi-retirement in Florida, Dr. Murphy decided he would rather be in a more "youthful" atmosphere and ultimately became a staff member of the Infirmary.

Dr. Murphy will be available by appointment for all general gynecological problems. However, the Contraceptive Clinic is on Wednesday afternoons from 1:30 p.m. Appointments must be made in advance and in person.

Dirty Birds aren't always the other person. Chances are, unless you're really very careful, you probably contribute to America's pollution in at least a small way yourself.

But you can do something about it. Woodsy Owl has a list of ways to stop pollution and help keep America a great place to live. It's in poster form, easy for kids to understand, plus it's free.

Give a Hoot! Don't Pollute!

All of the PIRGs rely primarily on student funding for their survival. Generally speaking, a PIRG chapter is organized on a campus through a massive petition drive wherein all students are asked to add $2 to their fee bill each semester. If 50 percent plus one of the students on a given campus demand such an increase, all students are billed $2 per semester with the understanding that those opposing PIRG be granted a refund sometime during the school term. The funds are collected by the university and turned over to the PIRG, which in turn hires a full-time staff of consumer advocates. Student representatives from each member campus are elected to the State Board of Directors which hires and fires the staff, controls the budget, and ultimately decides which projects shall be designed and implemented.

Since last January, ConnPIRG has been totally involved with consumer related problems. The group has lobbied at the state legislature for a returnable bottle bill, an election reform package, and a revision of regulations governing the procedures in small claims courts. Last spring students worked with the_connecticut banks and their checking account policies and also conducted a study of fat content in hamburger.

At the local campus level, ConnPIRG has investigated the Southern New England Telephone Company for its alleged discriminatory installation rates and investigated the Fidelity Union Life Insurance Company for its alleged unethical sales practices on college campuses. The group has published a handbook on landlord-tenant rights, buyer's guide to life insurance, and is preparing to set up a combination of consumer complaint centers, small claims court advisory services on member campuses.

Steve Wisensale, Director of Connecticut PIRG, is especially pleased with the work completed over this past summer. "We had four full-time student interns working with us who did a magnificent job." Wisensale explained that the students researched such areas as day care programs, sexism in elementary school textbooks, health care delivery, and economic development. "I think the PIRG movement serves a dual function," stated Wisensale. "It gives the student an opportunity to get involved in a valuable learning experience while simultaneously helping the general community."

As a result of the summer research projects, ConnPIRG is planning to publish a handbook on how to establish a day care center, a guide to combating sexism in school textbooks, and a package of recommendations and reforms which are designed to improve nursing home care in Connecticut. Wisensale also stated that the organization will go forward with its plans to compile a doctors directory for the greater Hartford area.

Currently maintaining chapters on the campuses of the University of Connecticut, Central Connecticut State College, St. Joseph, Trinity and Connecticut College, ConnPIRG plans to carry out a major organizational drive at the University of Hartford this fall and numerous other campuses later in the school year. Wisensale stated that if there are any college students interested in organizing a PIRG chapter on their campus they should call the PIRG office at 229-4260 as soon as possible. ConnPIRG maintains its offices at 57 Farmington Avenue in Hartford. Its mailing address is P.O. Box 1571, Hartford, Ct.

Flag Football begins season

By Dave Marves

The 1974 flag football league plans to hold its season-opener on Monday night, Sept. 10, at 7 p.m. This season should prove to be more exciting than last year's, since no dormitory is in the football powerhouse that Harbines was in 1973. A new set of rules is also in the planning stages, and it is hoped that these new rules will cut down on the number of injuries and increase the excitement of the game. The expansion of the league, due to the addition of new teams from Windham, Plant, Bradford, and Blackstone will increase the number of games each dorm will play and therefore the length of the season.

My pre-season choices are topped by Freeman and the Quad team. Freeman is a new team with Smith, who formerly played with Blackstone will combine to field a team. A strong Freeman team is expected, with remnants of last year's Harbines and some teams under the guidance of Mark DeGage. The Quad team has the promise of a number of good players with Mark Warren and Donald Forney as receivers and Donald Kane in the backfield. All that is needed is a coach to do is find a quarterback. Larrybee, as usual, should field a good team, although it won't be as powerful as the 1973 team. T.B. Wright and Windham are the long shots this year, with Dick Kada, Bobby Williams, and Jim Pierson leading the three-in-a-row players, respectively, in those dorms.

The schedule and rules for the league will be announced next week, so start warming up those arms. That means you, Lantz!

Palmer on Survival

By Pas Allapeugis

Statistics obtained from the Admissions Office concerning the freshman class indicate that approximately 81 per cent of the class attended public high schools and that 36 per cent graduated from independent schools. This figures represent a total of 231 secondary schools.

Over 2,210 applications were received this year, a record high for the college. The number of women that applied was 1,166 but 222 were actually enrolled from that group. Similarly, only 111 men were enrolled out of an application group of 554. Thus, the Class of 1978 is now comprised of 443 students (this results in a percentage ratio of 59.1 per cent women to 40.9 per cent men).

In terms of geographical distribution, 28 states are being represented as well as Washington, D.C., Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and 7 foreign countries. Fifty per cent of the students from the United States are from the New England area. Thirty per cent call home the Middle Atlantic region and eight per cent inhabit each the South and the West. In addition, two per cent represent the West and two per cent are those students from outside the United States.

Silverstein On Bridge

by David Silverstein

The diagrammed deal was from the 1974 national tournament in the finals of the 1974 World Championship. Camillo Fabia-Ticcic (West) lead the 16-heart against the South's contract of 6NT. When South won the Q-heart and led a club to the A-club, West followed suit with the J-heart. Simple enough so far! No West had just made a mistake that cost his team over a thousand points. The declarer proceeded to play three high spades and three high hearts followed by a club to West's K-club. Left with only diamonds to lead, West had to establish South's Q-diamond as the twelfth and contract fulfilling trick. To defeat the slam, West had to play his K-club under the 2NT. Then, when the defense won a club trick, it would be East's 3-club. East, but not West, could safely lead a diamond.

Fabia-Ticci was a nine-time world-champion. His error was of an extremely complex nature. We plebeians make simpler mistakes, which are nonetheless costly in terms of points, money, articles of clothing, or whatever stakes we play for. Future articles will discuss the simpler mistakes.

Crew hits water from new boathouse

The Men's Heavyweight eight getting it on Boswells Byline..

With the completion of the new boathouse on this side of the river, this year's crew program looks forward to more rowing time and less travelling time. Constructed just north of the Thames Shipyard on the banks of the Thames, the boathouse will eliminate the half-hour trips to and from the Gales Ferry boathouse, used for the past two years.

Last Spring the Conn. crews finished-up their seasons at their respective Eastern Regattas. The women reached the finals at the Eastern Association of Women's Rowing Colleges Regatta on Lake Beseeck in Middlefield, Conn. The men’s heavyweight four finished seventh at the Dad Vail Regatta in Philadelphia, and the lightweight boats reached the petit finale. All the boats had winning records last year.

During the summer some Conn. oarsmen and women participated in international regattas. Jack Clarkson rowed in the junior lightweight eight of the Charles River Rowing Club which won the gold medal in the North American Championships. Kathy Menges and Jane Cashin beat tough competition to row in the U.S. women's eight which went to the World Championships in Lucerne, Switzerland.

With the graduation of many experienced oarsmen, this will be a rebuilding year for their boat. The lightweight men lost two powerful oars, but with a lot of returning talent they should continue their excellent record. The men's heavyweights face their perennial shortage of manpower and so still have work to do to realize their potential.

Though the first organizational meeting is past, Coach Gulong will be more than happy to talk to anyone interested in either rowing or coxing.
