Dr. B. I. Murstein To Pursue Studies
With $51,000 Grant

Professor Dr. B. I. Murstein, associate professor of psychology at Connecticut College, has been awarded a $51,000 grant by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to pursue studies concerned with the question of "Why do people marry whom they do?" For centuries this question has intrigued poets and philoso-

Fri. Alan Williams, Dr. Philip Schieffelin-Schlegel, and Michel Legrand, will present a panel discussion on broad scope of annual conference.

Freedom Singers, 5 SNCC Workers
To Sing March 22

The Freedom Singers, a group of five young men who sing the songs of the Southern Negro protest movement, will appear at Connecticut College on Sunday afternoon, March 14, at 3:00 p.m. The group will perform on the main stage in the Student Union. The concert is sponsored by the Department of Music and the Student Association.

The group consists of five young men, who sing the songs of the Southern Negro protest movement. Their repertoire includes both traditional and folk songs, as well as original compositions that reflect the struggle for civil rights and social justice. The group's performances are known for their powerful vocals and powerful messages.

The Freedom Singers have appeared on national television programs, including "The Today Show," "The Tonight Show," and "The Merv Griffin Show." They have also performed in schools, churches, and community centers throughout the country.

Their performance at Connecticut College is part of a series of concerts and events that celebrate the contributions of African Americans to American culture.

Panel discussion to broaden scope of annual conference.

Wallace F. Murphy, administrator of the Commission on Mississippi Indians, has been invited to attend and speak.

Sir Alan Williams, York since October 1956, has been a professor of law at Yale University since 1957. He received his formal education in law from 1946 to 1951 in the United States. Williams has been a Professor of Law at Yale University since 1957.

The panel discussion will include presentations by Dr. Murstein, Dr. Philip Schieffelin-Schlegel, and Michel Legrand, who will discuss the scope of the annual conference.

The Freedom Singers will perform a variety of songs, including traditional African American spirituals, freedom songs, and contemporary protest songs. Their performances are known for their powerful vocals and their ability to connect with audiences.

Tickets for the Freedom Singers' concert at Connecticut College are $3.00 and can be purchased at the Connecticut College Box Office.
In a presidential preference poll conducted by the Yale Republic, Nixon was currently leading Goldwater, Rockefeller, and Kennedy, with varying percentages. The poll suggests that Goldwater has the potential to make a big splash at the big state banquet at the end of the month, as the results are usually announced on a bulletin board. Nixon will serve instead, and it is shown in the bulletin board.

The National Institute of Health is developing plans for what it described as the most important tool in its arsenal, a computer that will be used to compute the death rate. The study is to be conducted by epidemiologists, and the results will be presented in January. The Institute is a public health agency responsible for the surveillance of communicable diseases.

Letters to the Editor

Editorial

Ho Quê, Where Conn?

To the Editor:

Seeking provocative, indignant and worthwhile discussion, the editors find that this week's ConnCen is not up to par. The page is filled with rehashed old topics and comments, and there is little interest in the different issues.

The student community and the administration are focused on the ConnCen as a platform for their interests. The ConnCen reflects the priorities of the students and the administration, and it is important to address the lack of interest in the ConnCen.

The establishment of the ConnCen in 1916 has been a significant milestone in the history of the college. The ConnCen is the voice of the student body, and it is important to make sure that it represents the interests and priorities of the students.

The ConnCen is not only a platform for the students but also an important tool for the administration to communicate with the students. The ConnCen should be used as a platform for constructive dialogue and discussion.

The ConnCen is a valuable resource for students and the administration, and it is important to make sure that it is used to its full potential.

To the Editor:

President Johnson seems to be depicting himself as the one to watch. He is staking his career on what he sees as the major issues to watch. This week he held a press conference to discuss the potential impact of the war in Vietnam. He also made a speech to the nation, where he announced that he would increase the draft to 500,000 men.

To the Editor:

My reaction to Mr. Biber's letter last week's ConnCen was interesting. I appreciate his criticism and respect Mr. Biber for his input. He is right that the students should be involved in the political process. However, I believe that the students are already involved in the political process through their membership in political clubs and their participation in political activities. The students are already making a difference.

The students are the future of the country, and it is important to make sure that they are involved in the political process. The students should be encouraged to participate in the political process and to make their voices heard.

To the Editor:

To the students at the College, you are the future of the country. You should be proud of your role in the political process. You should be involved in the political process and make your voices heard. The students are the future of the country, and it is important to make sure that they are involved in the political process. The students should be encouraged to participate in the political process and to make their voices heard.

United Protestant Group Joins New London Campus Ministry

For the past four months, the United Protestant Group has been attempting to offer specific interdenominational common services in the Chapel, in place of the interdenominational services which have always been held before. The reason for this denominational trend is the fact that so many students have objected to having their common services "watered down" until they were really nothing.

This month, however, an interdenominational communion will be offered. It will not be a service involving combining practices from the various Protestant churches. In fact, it will be an "open communion," as the traditional means. This service is quite unlike any ever held before in our Chapel. It will be offered at 7:00 p.m. Tuesday, March 24. It was chosen for this month because it is felt that such a service, which is unfamiliar to any of our traditions, best conveys the Christian understanding of fellowship, and anomalous appropriateness at the Lenten season.

Group Juba Ministry

The United Protestant Group has recently chosen to join forces with a newly-created New London Campus Ministry. This Campus Ministry has actually been in existence all year, under the auspices of the Methodist Church. Just last week, however, Mr. Murstein and Mr. Delberg agreed to join the Methodist Church. The new group hopes to form an interdenominational one which could serve all the students on the New London campus. Now that such a ministry is in existence, the United Protestant Group can formally join with the Campus Ministry.

This affiliation is in reality, a new formalism. The main objective is the enlargement of number and kinds of programs.

Murdison proposes to construct a new, valid test and then use it in his work.

Basically, his theory has two aspects. He feels that an understanding of the expectations people have can be determined by asking them, questions relating to the marriage situation specifically. He also feels that one can measure reasons for the final choice to discover what role the person wants to play and what role he wants his fiancee to play. This will be compared with the corresponding views of the fiance.

Dr. Murdison's scheme is to arrive at some conclusions that will provide more valid answers to those resulting from previous studies in this field. He will also simplify the interaction of physical, sociological, psychological and economic factors in choosing a mate. For example, such factors as whether a girl feels compelled to marry before she is 23, due to an unhappy home life, is an important variable.

It is expected that information resulting from the findings will later help marriage counselors and clergy in conducting pre-marriage guidance clinics.

Dr. Murdison will begin his studies this summer. He plans to carry on his work during the course of the study and later to base a dissertation on the results of the study. He hopes to follow the first five years of marriage patterns.

Former Spelman Teacher Zinn Writes on Rights for Nation

The first in a three-week series taken from an article in the Nation entitled "The Battle-Scarred Younger Generation," is this article by a former professor at Spelman College.

Having spent a little time in Georgia, Miss. I felt a certain air of unreason about the March on Washington. That was somewhere the other speaker on the platform, John Lewis, chairman of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, lashed out in an article in the Nation in praise of the March, but while the Kennedy Administration, which had been successful up to that point in directing the indignation of 200,000 people at everyone but itself, was about to face a depth of lowest feeling and the direction of his attack may have baffled Northern liberals, mollified recently by the Administration's new Civil Rights bill, by its bold words and by the President's encouraging speech in his organization are on the front line or on the march, while the President and the Administration are back in Washington, their voices are sorely needed as a comfort to the pickets and the hamlets of the Black Belt.

Greenwood, Miss., just before the March, revealed in its own quiet way how the Deep South remains essentially untouched by racial change and by its cultural capital. Surrounded by cotton, peanut and pecan groves, the Delta from a vantage point in Little Rock, one is in the headquarters for the Voter Education Project, in which the major civil rights organizations and the legal defense force is supplied mainly by the Church Women's Union of the Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (where I was called Stokely). It is the seat of Le-County, where 50 per cent of the Negroes and 60 per cent of the population and half of those Negroes have an income less than $27 a week. About 40 per cent of Negro votes are lost, and the county is the cradle of viciousness and subterfuge. I'm asking you-all to move on. We are to the scene of Negro history, and the March is a part of the national process. The first reactions at the edge of these pockets, it is understood, are to the sight of Negroes and subterfuge.
