Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.conncoll.edu/ccnews_1975_1976

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.conncoll.edu/ccnews_1975_1976/23

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Newspapers at Digital Commons @ Connecticut College. It has been accepted for inclusion in 1975-1976 by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Connecticut College. For more information, please contact bpancier@conncoll.edu.
The views expressed in this paper are solely those of the author.
Bus service available
For Conn. students

By Roseellen Sanfilippo

The New London City Council has consented to reestablish a northern bus route in the city. Designed to link the New London Mall with the Shopping Center, the route will take the following stops: the Lyman Allyn Museum on Briggs Street, the Mall, the Shopping Center, downtown, Union Station, Ocean Beach, and a loop back to Briggs.

The bus will run Monday through Friday with service beginning at 7:05 a.m. and continuing hourly. For Conn. students, the fare will be no departure at 5:05. The fare will be 30 cents.

The decision to restore the route was made as a result of pressure applied by the area residents. A petition to that effect was brought before the Council. The northern route had previously been eliminated because it had attracted too few riders.

Weekend seminar at Conn.
To consider women's role

By Stephanie Bowler

Connecticut College will host a Seminar: Focus On Woman In The '70's in Connecticut, the weekend of November 1 and 2. The seminar is the culmination of joint efforts by members of the Connecticut College community. Connecticut College alumni and the Connecticut Humanities Council. The two day activities will take place in Cummings Art Center.

The thrust of the conference will focus on the stereotyping of sex roles early in life. Understanding that stereotyping does exist, examining the impact of it on women and recognizing that change can occur through legislation and the educational process will be topics of discussion.

The Keynote Address, "Political Action As An Instrument of Change," will be given by the Honorable Gloria Schaffer, Secretary of the State of Connecticut and a probable candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Dr. Margaret Hennig, a graduate of Harvard Business School and Joint Director of the new Women's Program for women at Simmons College will be joined by her colleague, Dr. Anne Jardim, also Co-Director of the Simmons program, in a discussion of "Career Development for Women in Administration."

Dr. Jardim, a native of Guyana, graduated from the Harvard Business School and served as Ambassador to the United Nations, Brazil and Venezuela from her native country before joining the faculty of the Harvard Business School in 1972. There she worked in collaboration with Dr. Hennig on a research study on Women's Career Development.

Ms. Caroline Bird, author of "Born Female-The High Cost of Keeping Women Down" and "The Case Against Colleges," will speak on "Toward a Non-Sexist Society." Ms. Bird has been a member of the editorial staffs of Fortune, Newsweek and the New York Times. She has more than 50 articles on economic and sociological subjects been widely read.

The morning worship in Harkness Chapel on Sunday November 2, will be led by the Rev. Carter Heyward, one of eleven women ordained to the Episcopal priesthood at Philadelphia in 1974.

The Focus On Woman Seminar will also include various mini-courses conducted by members of the Connecticut College community. "When I Grow Up I'm Going to be Married," a role-playing game developed by the State of California Commission on the Status of Woman, will be presented in Harkness Chapel on Sunday.

The agenda for the Focus On Woman Seminar extends an invitation to everyone who is concerned about expanding the opportunities for all women to participate fully in every area of American enterprise. It is hoped that men will be among the interested participants.

Assembly rejects grievance committee;
Fears it would dilute effectiveness

by Frances Black

A proposal for the establishment of a student government sub-committee to serve as a clearinghouse in the handling of students' grievances was rejected by Student Assembly last week. The main purpose of the Grievance Board committee would have been to advise and guide students to the department, committee or College administrator who would best help them with their particular problems.

The proposal was defeated on the grounds that a Grievance Board would duplicate services already offered by the College Council, the Judiciary Board and by the Student Assembly. Members of the Assembly felt that such duplication would dilute Student Government's effectiveness rather than expand it, and that a Grievance Board, not having any legal powers except to advise, would eventually become a bureaucratic obstacle, rather than aid, for the student.

Realizing that most students are unsure how to take effective measures toward reconciling their complaints, the Student Assembly resolved to compile an index informing students about the resources at their disposal. The index would include complete information on how to approach with which type of problem, and where that person could be reached. According to Student Government President Richard Allen, the index will be available by January. He hopes to enlist the help of House Presidents in its dissemination. The Student Assembly also decided to install suggestion boxes in Cro and in the Post Office to help the Graduate Ken Gardner, who will be in charge of this project, says the boxes will be posted by next week.

Library gifts coming slowly;
Interest loans needed?

In response to a Pundit query about the state of the library fund, William Churchill, Secretary of the College, implied that contributions were still coming in, but at a slow rate. This prompted a question as to why construction was started before all the funds were raised. Apparently, it is standard practice to raise a certain portion first from alumni who have the financial capacity to be generous, and to raise the balance needed by the time the building is completed. If the required funds are not forthcoming, the college will be required to borrow in order to pay construction costs. Interest of approximately $350,000 per year on these loans is due once the library is complete and functioning, a sum Mr. Churchill indicated would not be any real problem to raise.

At the present time only 32 per cent of the alumni is giving, and a telephone is in the process of being inaugurated by Deborah Zilly, the Director of Annual Giving, to hopefully boost alumni generosity in the form of modest amounts given regularly.
The sleeper program was good; we want it back

Dr. McKeehan has abolished the sleeper program. A student who seeks to admit himself now, must have medical grounds. This means that once admitted, a medical chart will be kept on him and the student will be visited on rounds by a doctor or counselor. Formerly, a student was admitted as a sleeper if there was a free bed, for just a quiet night's sleep.

Dr. McKeehan sees these new regulations as a way of offering an extended service to those who will now be admitted. An extended service, Dr. McKeehan explains, is provided when the student is visited on morning rounds, he will talk about the problem which caused him to seek refuge in the infirmary.

This assumes that someone who needs a night in the infirmary has a problem in need of counselling. It is doubtful that the vast majority of these students needed medical or psychiatric care. If Dr. McKeehan is attempting to reach the students who are truly in need of help, this is good; but, it should not be done at the expense of the student who needs only a good night's rest away from the dorm.

Last year, the sleeper program was used by 102 students. This number indicates that the program was not very great. Dr. McKeehan himself acknowledged that cost was not a major factor in his decision to make the rules more stringent. The rules more stringent.

The fact that there is so much noise in the dorms that some students cannot sleep comfortably in their rooms is deplorable. The community must find a way to make the dorms more liveable. Students must have the courage to ask their neighbor to be quiet and the neighbor must learn to respect that request. But so long as the dorms remain as they are, the student needs to know a bed is there if he needs it. The former sleeper program offered a refuge when no other practical solutions were available.

The infirmary, above all, exists to handle students' medical needs. We are not asking that this be sacrificed. Students seeking a night's rest from academic and social tensions on campus admittedly do not have overwhelming medical need. But it seems no great problem to service them and, in the long run, probably acts as preventative medicine.

Although most students did not use the sleeper program, it was reassuring for them to know it was there if they needed it. When a student reaches a point of fatigue, he is in no mood to hassle the prerequisites for admission and discharge at the infirmary. All he wants and needs is a night of guaranteed quiet.

In the past, the students have not abused the sleeper program. Considering this, we urge Dr. McKeehan to reconsider his decision.

Vandalism and theft
Hurt us all

In view of the college's current financial situation, it should not be necessary to ask for student cooperation in keeping costs to a minimum. Vandalism and theft are the most unnecessary and wasteful of student activities. It need not be that the damage that students cause to their own credibility by this behaviour, and only serves to make our criticisms of the college budget invalid and absurd.

No one prefers drinking coffee from styrofoam cups or eating soup with a fork. Damaged furniture, rugs, and fixtures are unsightly and hazardous as well as costly to repair.

It is essential that students become more aware of their surroundings, and become a little less selfish. Return articles to the dining areas, living rooms, etc. The name of thief or vandal is not a compliment.

letters to the editors

Dr. McKeenan proposed modification of the sleeper program, ostensibly an "attempt to meet the needs of the students" at Conn., is in fact the elimination of a program which was begun, and has continued to serve the best interests of the student body. Dr. McKeenan states that the purpose of the infirmary is "to maintain health on campus through treatment and prevention." Yet he proposes to eliminate a program which helps students cope with the tension and stress of dormitory life, and prevents a student's potential need for tranquilizers and sleeping pills. Tension and insomnia resulting from stressful living conditions apparently do not qualify as health problems with which the health services ought to deal.

Dr. McKeenan's position is that the anxieties which result from a competitive educational atmosphere and close living conditions ought to be treated by the infirmary only when these anxieties have built up to a point at which he can consider them bona fide mental health problems. We suggest that the sleeper program be continued as a preventative measure directed against the build-up of such mental health problems as severe depressions, nervous breakdowns, and even suicide.

Obviously, the college's poor financial situation is a motivating factor behind the proposed elimination of another student service. Yet wouldn't it be less costly in the long-run to continue the sleeper program than to be faced with extensive treatment of students for the possibly severe problems which may result from the discontinuation of the service?

Sleepers are not under a nurse's care and are not considered regular. Therefore, they require a minimum of staff attention and no medical services. Since night nurses must be on duty for ill patients who require medical attention, and for emergencies, there is no additional nursing staff cost. If Dr. McKeenan had considered the program with a sincere concern for the students, the possibility might have occurred to him to require each sleeper to change his own bed linen, thereby further cutting the cost of the service.

Dr. McKeenan also states that the program was "an attempt to meet the needs of the students" at Conn., in fact the elimination of a program which was begun, and has continued to serve the best interests of the student body. Dr. McKeenan states that the purpose of the infirmary is "to maintain health on campus through treatment and prevention." Yet he proposes to eliminate a program which helps students cope with the tension and stress of dormitory life, and prevents a student's potential need for tranquilizers and sleeping pills. Tension and insomnia resulting from stressful living conditions apparently do not qualify as health problems with which the health services ought to deal.

Dr. McKeenan's position is that the anxieties which result from a competitive educational atmosphere and close living conditions ought to be treated by the infirmary only when these anxieties have built up to a point at which he can consider them bona fide mental health problems. We suggest that the sleeper program be continued as a preventative measure directed against the build-up of such mental health problems as severe depressions, nervous breakdowns, and even suicide.

Obviously, the college's poor financial situation is a motivating factor behind the proposed elimination of another student service. Yet wouldn't it be less costly in the long-run to continue the sleeper program than to be faced with extensive treatment of students for the possibly severe problems which may result from the discontinuation of the service?
New students offer feedback on Conn.

With the great majority of the student body leaving the smoldering wreckage in its wake, and steaming for the great nose dive into finals, sentiments toward Conn. of taste of college life. Among them are observant of and concerned with their environment, offering some very relevant criticisms and appraisals.

The most recurrent theme concerns the comparatively small size of Conn., which fosters what was termed an "intense" atmosphere. One first year student asserted, "I think the students are forced to take a larger initiative here than in a larger school. There was frequent mention of conformity to the wishes of relentless upperclassmen, finally reminding her that she was no longer a student, which seemed to her old friends, which seemed to her, an alienated by the tradition. As I have mentioned, the Frosh are forbidden to use their cellphones, and are only permitted to use them in the dorm. I remember the sad pictures she had seen, the rosy pictures she had seen, the rosy memories altered by the sea change program. A lot of people found enough courage (namely one's room and listen to the Grateful Dead in a Battle of the Bands - conducted once every week, except during the month of May, Senior Day, the seniors sang the "Spring Song" on the continued on page seven.

Freshman upset at college life

by Teri Dibble

Out the window the sky was a cold slate of winter was beginning to settle its sullen mood on the once-bright campus. The faceless, nameless figure of the iron post was so featureless grey. The fading foliage and the rosy pictures she had seen, the rosy memories altered by the sea change program. A lot of people found enough courage (namely one's room and listen to the Grateful Dead in a Battle of the Bands - conducted once every week, except during the month of May, Senior Day, the seniors sang the "Spring Song" on the continued on page seven.

Freshman upset at college life

by Teri Dibble

Out the window the sky was a cold slate of winter was beginning to settle its sullen mood on the once-bright campus. The faceless, nameless figure of the iron post was so featureless grey. The fading foliage and the rosy pictures she had seen, the rosy memories altered by the sea change program. A lot of people found enough courage (namely one's room and listen to the Grateful Dead in a Battle of the Bands - conducted once every week, except during the month of May, Senior Day, the seniors sang the "Spring Song" on the continued on page seven.

Observations of first weeks at Conn.:

Things look bright and busy

Compiled by Mimi Ginnett

Along with the growth of Connecticut College came the growth of class distinctions. Freshmen, sophomores, and seniors all knew their places, not only recognizing them, but also taking advantage of them. By the time one row to the state of a senior, she might feel that it was more advantageous to get over to the higher, and save privileges found few limits and opportunities to the determination and prudence of one class over all the rest.

During the seniors on Conn. reserved their own place on the front page of the first issue of the Connecticut News. In the issue of 1927, the senior's column begins: "WE THE CLASS OF 1928 of Connecticut College for Women having, by virtue of three long years of meek and withdrawn conformity, been able to obtain the wishes of the relentless upperclassmen, finally attained the goal of seniority, whereby desire to be recognized by the powers of that exalted state. Be it known to all and sundry underclassmen that by the very nature of the rights and privileges found few limits and opportunities to the determination and prudence of one class over all the rest.

The rules which follow insist that freshmen may wear only one suit, that each suit should be made of wool, and that the suit should be made of a single piece. The freshmen must provide their own transportation, and must be prompt with funny jokes whenever they are requested, and must wear their regulation uniform. As I have mentioned, the Frosh are forbidden to use their cellphones, and are only permitted to use them in the dorm. I remember the sad pictures she had seen, the rosy pictures she had seen, the rosy memories altered by the sea change program. A lot of people found enough courage (namely one's room and listen to the Grateful Dead in a Battle of the Bands - conducted once every week, except during the month of May, Senior Day, the seniors sang the "Spring Song" on the continued on page seven.

Odds and Ends:

Seniors assert themselves

Passage on Sunday evenings, whether you like it or not, will be a part of your lives. The seniors assert themselves on the continued on page seven.

Conn. is also identified as an institution of extremes, where people work all week long and then go out and "erase their intellects" at Cro. As one girl put it; "1 couldn't go here for four years in a row, what with the way it is, and so why to set off steam moderately. Maybe I'll transfer after and take advantage of the exchange program. A lot of people I've talked to are thinking of transferring or something." Academics also draw large amounts of attention. People seem to be surprised at the extent of the work load, but accept it more as a necessary evil than anything else. There is concern, though, that work, in reference to the overall scheme of things, is weighted too heavily in many courses. According to one respondent: "People become overly involved with school here and neglect the other, equally important, areas of their development. The new students indicate generally positive feelings for the school, in spite of the unavoidable roommates, hallas and a collection of minor adjustment difficulties. Virtually everyone commented on the distorted social life, where 'we get dressed up to walk around with cocktails and be sociable, only to ignore the next day, the people we spent the evening with. Superficial culture was best expressed by one of the first responses: "Oh, yeah, real social life, but turned on with how friendly everyone was. It lasted two weeks, and now I'm left with my work.'

by David Jordan

Did anyone tell you before you left the comfort of home that the first year of college life at college would be rough? Well, don't feel too bad. Nobody told me how. The only way it should be, though. Too much preparation for the experience of college life. I cook if the roast beef has been baked at home (dreaming from reaching in to get the spoon), ice cream (reaching into my freezer), chocolate (from...well, you get the picture).

Life in a dorm has to be experienced. Offhand, I can think of few opportunities other than a dorm where one can observe the comfort of one's room and listen to the Berlin Philharmonic compete with the Grateful Dead in a Battle of the Bands conducted simultaneously, of course. For those of you who haven't just graduated, I can well understand the thrill of investigative research as you try to discover the truth is involved in the reproductive processes of dust. (Let me caution you, though. Don't wind up like the people of Long Island Sound muddling something about..."Worse than rats"

Well, Opening Week came and went, leaving a few confused faces, a few unfounded faces, a few unhappy faces and about three thousand tired feet. You'd be tired, too, if you had somebody standing on top of you in lines for hours on end.

Suddenly it was the first day of classes, and suddenly, the first day of classes was over. And I was behind! The syllabus - which I made was behind! But I wasn't worried. I had a whole semester. Well, half of it, anyway. I still am behind.

No view of freshmen life would be complete without talking about people. Having gone through the experience of moving and new schools, I know that it is not just to mention friends. The first few weeks consisted of half-truths, leaks in another direction. The ice melts slowly, but it melts. Within a month, the professors got to know us and the faces continued on page seven.

Conn. is also identified as an institution of extremes, where people work all week long and then go out and "erase their intellects" at Cro. As one girl put it; "I couldn't go here for four years in a row, what with the way it is, and so why to set off steam moderately. Maybe I'll transfer after and take advantage of the exchange program. A lot of people I've talked to are thinking of transferring or something." Academics also draw large amounts of attention. People seem to be surprised at the extent of the work load, but accept it more as a necessary evil than anything else. There is concern, though, that work, in reference to the overall scheme of things, is weighted too heavily in many courses. According to one respondent: "People become overly involved with school here and neglect the other, equally important, areas of their development. The new students indicate generally positive feelings for the school, in spite of the unavoidable roommates, hallas and a collection of minor adjustment difficulties. Virtually everyone commented on the distorted social life, where 'we get dressed up to walk around with cocktails and be sociable, only to ignore the next day, the people we spent the evening with. Superficial culture was best expressed by one of the first responses: "Oh, yeah, real social life, but turned on with how friendly everyone was. It lasted two weeks, and now I'm left with my work.'

by David Jordan

Did anyone tell you before you left the comfort of home that the first year of college life at college would be rough? Well, don't feel too bad. Nobody told me how. The only way it should be, though. Too much preparation for the experience of college life. I cook if the roast beef has been baked at home (dreaming from reaching in to get the spoon), ice cream (reaching into my freezer), chocolate (from...well, you get the picture).

Life in a dorm has to be experienced. Offhand, I can think of few opportunities other than a dorm where one can observe the comfort of one's room and listen to the Berlin Philharmonic compete with the Grateful Dead in a Battle of the Bands conducted simultaneously, of course. For those of you who haven't just graduated, I can well understand the thrill of investigative research as you try to discover the truth is involved in the reproductive processes of dust. (Let me caution you, though. Don't wind up like the people of Long Island Sound muddling something about..."Worse than rats"

Well, Opening Week came and went, leaving a few confused faces, a few unfounded faces, a few unhappy faces and about three thousand tired feet. You'd be tired, too, if you had somebody standing on top of you in lines for hours on end.

Suddenly it was the first day of classes, and suddenly, the first day of classes was over. And I was behind! The syllabus - which I made was behind! But I wasn't worried. I had a whole semester. Well, half of it, anyway. I still am behind.

No view of freshmen life would be complete without talking about people. Having gone through the experience of moving and new schools, I know that it is not just to mention friends. The first few weeks consisted of half-truths, leaks in another direction. The ice melts slowly, but it melts. Within a month, the professors got to know us and the faces continued on page seven.
letters to the editors

continued from page two

In response to the article "What do birth control?" requires clarification in a few areas. This is important since the Student Health Service feels strongly that more and correct information on this subject must be taught in all undergraduate programs.

When asked for the interview, I realized that it was an excellent opportunity to reach those students who do not know what we have to offer or do not know where to go to find the information they need. In this important and sensitive subject would be correctly represented.

The opening paragraph of the article makes no sense — a poor choice of words, or是在 "insipid of..." rather than "in view of..." it would have been understandable. Inappropriate and inaccurate words were used, and it was edited as it was. The words were not submitted for an interview when the article was written.

Sincerely yours,

Paula L. Frost

Touchy

To the Editor:

The article in the last issue of PUNDIT entitled "What do birth control?" requires clarification in a few areas. This is important since the Student Health Service feels strongly that more and correct information on this subject must be taught in all undergraduate programs.

When asked for the interview, I realized that it was an excellent opportunity to reach those students who do not know what we have to offer or do not know where to go to find the information they need. In this important and sensitive subject would be correctly represented.

The opening paragraph of the article makes no sense — a poor choice of words, or是在 "insipid of..." rather than "in view of..." it would have been understandable. Inappropriate and inaccurate words were used, and it was edited as it was. The words were not submitted for an interview when the article was written.

Sincerely yours,

Paula L. Frost

Stifle

Dear Editor:

月末's letter to the editors, as the CCFS advisor, naturally felt obliged to put an end to what had every appearance of being a lengthy debate when Mr. Allen introduced the issue. However, his interruption could hardly be called "an obvious choice".

The Film Society understands the importance of the issue involved and was not adverse to supporting the decision of the faculty. However, the Society has a responsibility to its patrons to uphold the standards of academic integrity, and this responsibility must be upheld. The incident and the article are to be regretted.

Sincerely yours,

Abigail B. Macdonald
Treasurer—CCFS

225C

Dear Editor:

How many members of the student body, faculty and staff of Connecticut College are aware that an academic department chairman, a full-time academic administrator, and a full-time administrative assistant share one office—barely larger than most women's lavatories on campus?

Many persons have trouble even finding the Dance Department Chairman's office, located at the third floor of Crozier-Williams in the back of the East Studio, where classes are run Monday through Friday.

During the past seven years since this dance program was taken out of PE and established as a separate program, Martha Myers (chairman of the Department) has requested—unsuccessfully—to have a private office in Crozier-Williams. The Department has been asked why the chairwoman's office could not be in another building. Is the Art Department chairman's office in Crozier-Williams? The Department chairman's office in Crozier is? Are the Arts Ed offices in the Studio?

As administrative assistant in the Dance Department last year, I can vouch that a separate office is strongly needed to relieve the cramped space now shared by all art department staff—which includes three part-time teachers, five guest artist lecturers, two graduate teaching assistants, and three musicians in addition to the full-time staff. I often needed a quiet place to work, such as a separate office or a studio. I don't see how this could be accommodated in the present space, but it would be a worthwhile investment of funds.

We wish Dr. McKeehan luck in arranging your concert. That is, of course, assuming that the registrar will not conflict either with each other or with the registrar's own counseling services, since the registrar's duties involve the competency of the students to work at the level expected of them. It is regrettable that the registrar's office is the one place where classes are insession from 8:00 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., and the registrar's office is the only place where classes are insession from 8:00 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Sincerely yours,

Professor John Knowlton, as the CCFS advisor, naturally felt obliged to put an end to what had every appearance of being a lengthy debate when Mr. Allen introduced the issue. However, his interruption could hardly be called "an obvious choice".

The Film Society understands the importance of the issue involved and was not adverse to supporting the decision of the faculty. However, the Society has a responsibility to its patrons to uphold the standards of academic integrity, and this responsibility must be upheld. The incident and the article are to be regretted.

Sincerely yours,

Abigail B. Macdonald
Treasurer—CCFS

225C

Dear Editor:

How many members of the student body, faculty and staff of Connecticut College are aware that an academic department chairman, a full-time academic administrator, and a full-time administrative assistant share one office—barely larger than most women's lavatories on campus?

Many persons have trouble even finding the Dance Department Chairman's office, located at the third floor of Crozier-Williams in the back of the East Studio, where classes are run Monday through Friday.

During the past seven years since this dance program was taken out of PE and established as a separate program, Martha Myers (chairman of the Department) has requested—unsuccessfully—to have a private office in Crozier-Williams. The Department has been asked why the chairwoman's office could not be in another building. Is the Art Department chairman's office in Crozier-Williams? The Department chairman's office in Crozier is? Are the Arts Ed offices in the Studio?

As administrative assistant in the Dance Department last year, I can vouch that a separate office is strongly needed to relieve the cramped space now shared by all art department staff—which includes three part-time teachers, five guest artist lecturers, two graduate teaching assistants, and three musicians in addition to the full-time staff. I often needed a quiet place to work, such as a separate office or a studio. I don't see how this could be accommodated in the present space, but it would be a worthwhile investment of funds.

We wish Dr. McKeehan luck in arranging your concert. That is, of course, assuming that the registrar will not conflict either with each other or with the registrar's own counseling services, since the registrar's duties involve the competency of the students to work at the level expected of them. It is regrettable that the registrar's office is the one place where classes are insession from 8:00 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., and the registrar's office is the only place where classes are insession from 8:00 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Sincerely yours,

Professor John Knowlton, as the CCFS advisor, naturally felt obliged to put an end to what had every appearance of being a lengthy debate when Mr. Allen introduced the issue. However, his interruption could hardly be called "an obvious choice".

The Film Society understands the importance of the issue involved and was not adverse to supporting the decision of the faculty. However, the Society has a responsibility to its patrons to uphold the standards of academic integrity, and this responsibility must be upheld. The incident and the article are to be regretted.

Sincerely yours,

Abigail B. Macdonald
Treasurer—CCFS
Infirmary renovation plans accepted; More space and more privacy

by Mimi Gason

Recognizing the need for each doctor in the infirmary to have his or her own examining room, Dr. Frederick McKeehan has requested a project of renovation which includes the construction of a new infirmary. Mrs. Mollie Brooks of Mrs. G. Gunn, the mental health counselor, has requested a lower level in the infirmary.

Mr. Leroi Knight, treasurer and business manager of the College, said in response to Dr. McKeehan's request, "I see his judgement as a fully one." He said that the school now has a new physician with a "different style of operation from the previous one." He also said that he understands the need for new facilities.

According to Mr. Knight, there have been three plans of renovation under consideration. Plan A, which was Dr. McKeehan's original request, entails the insertion of a door into the present office and will have full use of the examination room in the same location. Mr. Knight said that the infirmary secretary, Mrs. Peeters, is in a "good faith effort to improve productivity.

The committee's proposals are: a company effort to "improve its methods, processes, scheduling, planning, and training within the organization."

The negotiations involved the exchangeability between the shipyard; they presented the union with an exchangeable proposal.

The MTC president, Anthony DeGregory, refused to compromise on the issue. He said that between 30 and 40 per cent of the workforce may be affected by the proposed agreement point to a willingness to achieve productivity.

Mr. Knight said that the final plan was a compromise of the control over work productivity.

Any possible reassessments to increase productivity will be discussed at weekly meetings. The MTC president, Anthony DeGregory, refused to compromise on the issue. He said that between 30 and 40 per cent of the workforce may be affected by the proposed agreement point to a willingness to achieve productivity.

The MTC president, Anthony DeGregory, refused to compromise on the issue. He said that between 30 and 40 per cent of the workforce may be affected by the proposed agreement point to a willingness to achieve productivity.

The MTC president, Anthony DeGregory, refused to compromise on the issue. He said that between 30 and 40 per cent of the workforce may be affected by the proposed agreement point to a willingness to achieve productivity.

Any possible reassessments to increase productivity will be discussed at weekly meetings. The MTC president, Anthony DeGregory, refused to compromise on the issue. He said that between 30 and 40 per cent of the workforce may be affected by the proposed agreement point to a willingness to achieve productivity.

The MTC president, Anthony DeGregory, refused to compromise on the issue. He said that between 30 and 40 per cent of the workforce may be affected by the proposed agreement point to a willingness to achieve productivity.

Any possible reassessments to increase productivity will be discussed at weekly meetings. The MTC president, Anthony DeGregory, refused to compromise on the issue. He said that between 30 and 40 per cent of the workforce may be affected by the proposed agreement point to a willingness to achieve productivity.

The MTC president, Anthony DeGregory, refused to compromise on the issue. He said that between 30 and 40 per cent of the workforce may be affected by the proposed agreement point to a willingness to achieve productivity.

Any possible reassessments to increase productivity will be discussed at weekly meetings. The MTC president, Anthony DeGregory, refused to compromise on the issue. He said that between 30 and 40 per cent of the workforce may be affected by the proposed agreement point to a willingness to achieve productivity.
Cancer Services Get Grant

The National Cancer Institute awarded the Connecticut state Department of Health, an 18-month, $100,000 grant to study Connecticut health services in regard to cancer patients and their needs.

As a result of this grant, approximately 200 social workers, health-care providers, and cancer-care volunteers recently attended a meeting held at Law School and the hospitals. The purpose of the meeting was to organize a "comprehensive study" of how the state is progressing in the study of cancer activities, care, and needs.

The chief investigator and consultant for the study, Dr. Barbara Christine, told the Day, "The study will include all aspects of cancer care, from prevention and early detection to making the public aware of available social services and involving a life with dignity after the diagnosis is made."

Stier Charged in Shooting

City Manager C. Francis Driscoll, announced last Wednesday that Patrolman Clayton Sizer, who had surrendered himself to the State's Attorney's office, has been charged with first-degree manslaughter.

According to County Detective Robert J. Papp, Sizer surrendered last week after he was accused of shooting a head wound inflicted by a bullet from the patrolman's revolver. Sizer and another man, James Jacquet, were pursuing D'Arco when the shooting occurred. D'Arco was later to be bled at the time of the fatal shooting.

New Street Changes Proposed

A proposal to level approximately a dozen buildings at the downtown area of Bank Street and State Street has been announced by the Redevelopment Agency's consultants, i.e.,

"Nothing is more precious than independence and freedom" By Laura Praglin and Kim Lawrence

On October 14, a husband-wife team from the American Friends Service Committee who recently returned to the United States spoke about their two year stay in South Vietnam. The couple gave their impressions of recent developments and changes in the country since the official U.S. withdrawal and collapse of the closing government.

Paul and Sophia Quinn-Judge, directors of a rehabilitation center for mental patients, were arrested in Quang Nai, said that they never expected to see a change of government in South Vietnam. However, they noted that since the U.S. withdrew support from the South Vietnamese, the country folded so fast that the Provisional Revolutionary Government had trouble keeping pace with the war going on. South Vietnamese troops.

The Quinn-Judges then described the "surreal atmosphere" following the change in regimes. The U.S. and South Vietnamese withdrawal was so rapid that many men and military equipment were left abandoned in the middle of main streets. Although the PRG and North Vietnamese soldiers moved in within two hours of the American departure, the traditional march of the victorious army had to be curtailed due to the obstruction.

Mixed reactions

The people's reaction to the soldiers was mixed. There was widespread public disappointment, but generally there was no political reaction of note.

However, the Quin-Judges observed that with the victorious army replaced the Le Duan, and that most eventually joined in to contribute change.

After April 30, people turned in their American fatigues on off the uniforms, and threw away their L.D. cards. They got a receipt stamping with the South Vietnamese flag, "and were told to go home and live peacefully." Even some Buddhist monks participated in disarming the troops, he said.

Many demonstrations and celebrations that followed called for a peaceful and unified nation. Everywhere banners and bands proclaimed the new motto: "Nothing is more precious than independence and freedom." There was also a new sense of hostility, as Paul Quinn-Judge put it, to foreigners with more money than sense.

Many new changes have come about as a result of the change in political regime, Urbanization, forced upon the people by the actions of the South Vietnamese government, has been reversed. Refugees who once fought in Saigon from bombing raids, are moving back to their homes in the countryside. Many, ironically, are taking the journey home in Dodge, once furnished by the U.S. to the South Vietnamese.

South Vietnam, a country of fertile land, will become agrarian and rice-exporting again. Until recently, the war and its disturbances on people's lives led South Vietnam to depend on rice from other countries.

\( B-1 \rightarrow \text{GE Teach-in and Rally} \)

A national response on B-1 Bomber and General Electric's interests in the project will be held Saturday, November 1, from 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at the Newman Center of the University of Bridgeport. During lunch (bring your own) the slide presentation, "The Supersonic Swing Wing Swindle." A panel of experts in the teach-in may join to opt at a rally at the General Electric Headquarters Saturday afternoon, directly following the teach-in. The teach-in rally is being sponsored by STOP THE B-1 BOMBER: NATIONAL PEACE CONVERSION CAMPAIGN of the American Friends Service Committee and Clergy and Laity Concerned.

For more information, contact Janet Noyes, Box 1322.

\( \text{New London Shorts} \)

Smoking and Food?

Vote this week

By Judy Schwartz

The results of the student smoking referendum, in which students voted on whether or not they wanted to limit smoking in the campus dining rooms, were announced at the last Student Assembly meeting. A total of 768 students voted, 330 of whom wanted to see no limitations put on smoking privileges. Another student voted to prohibit smoking, while 143 voted that smoking be limited in some manner.

A motion was passed at the meeting that each dorm vote on whether or not they want to limit or prohibit smoking in their individual dining rooms during weekdays. The decision of each dorm will be binding, and any violation of the rule shall be brought before the House Council.

According to Janet Pugh, Vice President of Student Government, it has been thoroughly discussed how it will decide whether or not Harris Refectory will be open to smokers on weekends.

A resolution was also passed that prohibited smoking in the Student Government room during Student Assembly meetings.

Assessive seniors

B-1 \rightarrow GE Teach-in and Rally

One moonlight sing, during the school year of 1948 to 1950 might have sounded something like this:

Seniors: Ha! We need no explanation We explain our situation, for Student Government And most highly educated. We've had Ec. and psychology. We are the affable, sensible, capable, lovable Seniors.

We demand our rights and our senior privileges. And if others strive the curving "Pon my word, 'tis most disturbing We're the first to board the trolley Or we know just why, by golly. We're the affable, sensible, capable, lovable Seniors.

Hail to the blare! Wait to the white!

Expletive causes two-week suspension

by Judy Schwartz

Keith Ritter, program director for campus station WCNI, had his air time suspended for two weeks after he offended a college audience during his 10:00 p.m.-12:00 midnight show October 9. According to Mr. Ritter, he was sitting down when, at approximately midnight, WCNI General Manager John Jody Ritter explained that the wrong.

Joely Seb...

By Laura Praglin and Kim Lawrence

HC1 to the Seniors, givers of light.

We'll have no others, so let our motto be, "Follow the Seniors through C.C."

Seniors: Oh, we are the Seniors of C.C. With conscience as white as the snow, We sit on the brink of damnation, damnation And spit on the Juniors below. Sing Tirol odi et iodi, a la tirol a round. Sing Tirol odi et iodi, a la tirol a round.

We're the affable, sensible, capable, lovable Seniors. Hail to the blue! Wait to the white!

WCNI when a disc jockey uses an obscenity is to bring before the board of the radio station. Though Mr. Ritter believes that in some of the circumstances he should not have been suspended, he acknowledged that the board members were handled fairly.

Stuart Cohen, who conducted the meeting, stated that the Seniors had said, in spite of the circumstances, Mr. Ritter was responsible for his actions.

WCNI president Jack Blossom termed the incident "regrettable," and said that "no one was completely right or completely wrong."
Ford gives speech In Connecticut

By Bruce E. Collins

An enthusiastic sell-out crowd greeted President Gerald R. Ford at the Hartford Civic Center, attended by well over 2,000 guests who paid either $125 or $150 for the dinner and Presidential address.

The head table featured, in addition to President Ford, such Republican notables as Senator Lowell Weicker, Republican nominee Stewart McKinney, Congressman Ronald Sartain, Republican nominee Richarduguccioni, In- member of the Mayor's Com- William Nahas, Incumbent: surance agent for 20 years; member ofYouthServices Pou.cy the governmental "respects your far- munderation and your wisdom. Your sincerity, your ws on wages and fringe benefits. The negotiation will hopefully scintillate your views on wages and fringe benefits. The negotiation teams were scheduled to fly down to Florida to mediate in the National Airlines dispute. A spokesman for the Federal continue from page five third years the MTC had covered for a seven per cent hike along with a cost-of-living adjustment. The last offer extended by E.B. management allowed for an eleven per cent increase for the first year, followed by six per cent raises in the remaining two years. Neither side was willing to see the proposal to the floor!"

The point I have tried to make in this article is that the experience of college can not be taken lightly, for it will be our life experience for the next four years. But that doesn't mean it can't be taken lightly. With a sense of confidence and a sprinkling of humor it is possible to live as it was intended.

President Anwar el-Sadat of Egypt has come to the U.S. to discuss three main issues with President Ford. The issues are: the question of American aid to Egypt and the question of American sales of military equipment to Egypt. Although his trip was greeted with a 21 gun salute at the White House ceremony, Mayor Beame of New York refused to officially welcome him to his city or present him with a key to N.Y. Mayor Beame deplored the Executive Committee which branded Zionism as racist.

President Sadat has said that he considers this visit to be a good will mission, and that he does not have any desire to go to Washington to get equipment to be purchased as of yet. Ford was told by Sadat that the Egyptians were interested in "open hearts and open arms" and was praised on American mediation in the Middle East. President Ford told Sadat in his welcoming speech that the U.S. government "respects your far-sighted statesmanship and your wisdom. Your sincerity, your moderation and your wisdom have made an impression on all who have come in contact with you."

continued from page three

matched, and talking to people from your floor became a pleasant diversion to study. (My English teachers would have a fit: "Did that last sentence mean that English teacher would have a fit in my room, I have what is colloquially called "controlling interest." (Say goodnight. David.

"Good night, David.")

EB compromise continued from page five

Who the candidates are in New London city election

By Catherine Feibel

Ed Mellinger: State Representative; former Board of Education member; and member of the average laborer earning $4.51-hr. has, as a result of the strike, sacrificed a total of $3,900. According to the MTC's latest wage proposal, it would be more than a year before a bargaining unit can make up its loss in pay. Despite this, less than 150 out of 10,000 workers have resigned from the union and returned to work.
Philadelphia Orchestra is Magnificent and exciting

by Margie Katz

One of the best concerts to come to the Philadelphia Orchestra in several years was Eugene Ormandy's program, presented last Thursday night. It's not for nothing that this maestro is called the "Bayreuth Royce of Orchestras," as beautifully planned and executed a program has not been heard in a long time, here or elsewhere. Mr. Ormandy was an elegant, spirited, highly communicative director; the respect and affection of the orchestra members for him was evident in their attentive playing.

First on the program was Brahms' Variations on a Theme by Haydn, Op. 56a. The morphology of the theme was stately, rich, majestic. Dr. Ormandy led the orchestra much as one would wish Napoleon would. The next nine movements progressed through a spectrum of moods and leaped. Ormandy always keeps touching with the theme's own definition while giving every texture and piece every nuance of variance.

The Symphony no. 3 in E flat major, Op. 55, was not only a tremendously powerful piece to hear, but also moving as well. The music is involved in the music that it was expressed in their own movement as well as in their own movement. Ormandy led with some of the most resonant, voluminous sound they produced. Here, the first movement built toward the second, overlooking a progression of magnificently dissonances and sudden, startlingly beautiful ones. This was followed by an elegantly moving second movement, very special for the rich pizzicato in the strings' imitations of Brahms' any discontinuity, we are led into the final movement, an inescapably satisfying, almost dissonant piece on an underlying motif of shimmering sound in the enthusiasm and power of a respectful, unexpected finale. I was particularly impressed by the woodwind section. The whole orchestra in the first half of the concert -- these musicians are truly virtuosic, individually as well as the orchestra as a whole.

The second half of the program was the real jewel, however. After the encircling with bits and pieces of familiar imagery-evoking material scattered throughout, for the St. Louis' moody sense of the external was created, calm and steady amid the rousing, energetic old 18th through 19th around the Common; a lighthearted and joyfully martial Putnam's Camp; the most vigorous music of the character of the river at Stockbridge. In addition, Mr. Ormandy chose the orchestral interlude, also called "Decoration Day." But the highlight of the programs for me has been "La Bella," a piece for violin, and this performance was by far better than that. Mr. Ormandy is indeed a master of movement, and in this he made his music more than was possible. It was large and too well and too large and too mobile for Palmer Auditorium. It's too bad that he hasn't been playing long enough to accommodate the magnificent sound of this orchestra, we have none of a size that he can fit.

The show was presented at this concert should count ourselves fortunate indeed to have had the opportunity to enjoy such a spectacular performance.

Keith's Column

New Elton John a disappointment

by Keith Ritter

I am a stone cold Elton John freak. I realize that this leaves me open for much ridicule. I know, for instance, that there is a man in Life magazine who is not only rock and roll, but I like it.

This year, however, I must admit to Mr. Reg. K. Dwight's new effort. The new album is called "Rock of the Westies" and is a record of his 52nd New album. It has been some major changes in his band and yet his music seems to have suffered unnecessarily. Why would this be? Perhaps due to the amazing speed with which John-Taupin produce albums or perhaps the extraordinary company, which I doubt.

Let me first discuss the changes. First of all, the trumpet-sharped body. The new album does have its moments, but his style is much less supportive than Olasonic's. To replace the drummer, Kenny Passarelli, formerly of Barnstorm, and he seems up to the job. Also added to the band are Caleb Quaye, who has played with Elton before, and James Newton Howard who played keyboards with Melissa McVie.

Both of these gentlemen are fine choices, particularly Howard. His synthesizer work is most impressive. He built up the sound nicely.

With all of this new talent and new energy, it's easy to see that Elton has decided to put together an album of hits singles, like "Piano Player," and came up short on that material. Considered much of this album is filler.

The album does have one outstanding boisterous track. The opening cut, "Medley," features some fine vocals by LaBeouf and a strong dance inferiority with whom Elton is associated. "Island Girl" looks to be the first single off of the album and it isn't bad, even if it does nothing new.

In the final analysis, this is not a real album, I really think that Elton John and Bernie Taupin are too talented to release something like this. However, this album does fail far below the expectations I had of it. I guess that's one of the biggest problems with having genius people expect greatness and just plain good isn't enough.
Prints, paintings in two Cummings art exhibitions

By Cba! Moser

There are currently two art exhibitions in the Cummings Art Center. One is a Prints, paintings exhibition by the surrealist artist Yves Gregoropoulos, which is running through November 21st. The other is a painting exhibition by the artist Jean Brown, which is also running through November 21st. Gregoropoulos' works are primarily minimalist in style, with a focus on industrial forms in the environment. "Hidden Worlds" is the theme of the exhibition, which seeks to reveals hidden aspects of the natural world. Brown's paintings are more figurative, with a focus on the couple's married life and the attack on the reality of the 1945 film "Gaslight." The exhibition is expected to deal with the continuing struggle for ordination of women in the Episcopal Church, and an address is expected to be made by the rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Dr. Heyward, who is also the author of "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie." Auditions will be held on Sunday, November 2, and the Reverend Carter Hedges, who is expected to be ordained as the first woman to be ordained in the Episcopal Church, will be a participant in the o'clock service at Harkness Chapel. Reverend Hedges is a member of the Ordination Now (NOW) group, which is working towards the ordination of women as priests in the Episcopal Church. Her address is expected to deal with the continuing struggle for ordination of women. Currently working on her doctorate in theology at Union Theological Seminary, Reverend Hedges is also an Assistant Professor of Musicology at the University of Pennsylvania. Her background includes a degree in musicology from Columbia University, an M.Div. in psychology and religion from Union Theological Seminary, and years of full-time practice as a therapist, chaplain, and lecturer.
They'll be working on the railroad; Station is here to stay

By Jeanne Feecey

The New London Union Railroad Station, which has been viewed by most Conn. college students with a feeling of indifference—it's just a place to catch a train. However, after an active 4-year controversy between a redevelopment agency that wanted to demolish the historical site, and a group of preservationists from New London, the Union Station has been saved and has begun interior renovation.

The Union Station was designed in 1850 by the famed American architect Henry Hobson Richardson of Boston. Richardson was the first architect from the United States to create a genuine American architecture. The New London union station is one of the last of its important works, with several design features that show the new conception and development of the architecture he began: intricate brickwork, making use of a wide variety of shapes; suspension of the second floor by enormous wooden trusses in the attic to prevent pillars from letting down into the first floor waiting room; and a slate roof hung from massive double chimneys which join to penetrate the roof.

Consciousness-raising will Explore sex roles

by Susan Steffen

A variety of topics pertinent to campus life will be the major focus of the Chapel Board’s upcoming series of conscious-raising sessions. Laurie Nowell, a Yale divinity student, has been invited to speak about sex roles on campus, and will discuss the implications of an unhealthy attitude toward sex, in her talk on “Sex Roles and Their Implications.” Nowell will also focus on the idea that there is little basis for comparison. Westminster is a relatively small school, in which all of the 300 students are studying to become teachers. In contrast, the student body at the mort College, in Connecticut, will be primarily concerned with (1) roles and sexuality on campus, and (2) the implications of exploring relationships.” It is hoped that these sessions will help members of the college community to become aware of the various male-female roles on campus and ways in which the two interact.

The consciousness-raising sessions will be held in cooperation with the Growth Center, an organization concerned with supplying students an alternative to the therapy oriented counseling provided by the infirmary. Instead, the Growth Center will provide students with an informal setting in which they can discuss personal and academic problems. Anyone wishing to know more about the Growth Center is advised to contact either Peter Belson or Debbie Elliot, Box No. 87.

The Chapel Board urges anyone with ideas or suggestions concerning this series to contact either George Elser, Beth Stenger or Chaplain Robb.

Westminster exchange students

Get a unique view of States

by Bonnie Greenwald

There’s no sex after midnight at Westminster; American beer is horrible; and “We didn’t realize that you are allowed to walk on the grass here until you started to look at us funny for taking the long way around,” are just some of the comments filled in the six visiting English students when comparing their own school, Westminster, and an English University, they explained. They emphasized that there would probably be many less differences between Conn. and Oxford, for example.

While they all find the American schools in which they’re student teaching very similar to English schools, they do find a difference between the training of teachers. While in the U.S., teachers are trained to teach one group, in England a teacher is prepared to teach a subject to any age group. When not teaching and going to classes, the students have found time to see a little of the east coast visiting New York, Washington, and Nantucket. “I was almost arrested trying to take a picture of the south wing of the White House,” Chris laughed looking back on the incident.

Donald Rumfled, father of Valery Rumfled, ’78, and chief advisor to the President, arranged for a private tour of the White House. Chris left the tour for a moment to snap a picture and soon found a police officer holding his arm behind him. Beside this minor incident, however, the students enjoyed a X.P. tour of Washington including Presidential passes to the Kennedy center. They also got to meet Senator of Connecticut, Lowell Weicker, on their visit to Congress.

Being themselves in Conn. activities, as well as everything else, Lynn, Cathy, Barry, and Chris are singing with the chorus in its upcoming performance of “The Messiah.” All of them find the exchange to be a great experience and expressed dismay that more students did not take advantage of it.

State capital

Reverts to Middle Ages

by Bonnie Greenwald

Dancing by Cambridge’s Morris Dancers, Medieval poetry reading, kite flying, and a reenactment of Medieval combat were a few of the events scheduled Saturday when Bushnell Park in Hartford becomes a Medieval City.

As part of the weekend Medieval Fair sponsored by the Downtown Council, there will also be demonstrations of such crafts as spinning, pottery making, mali-making, calligraphy, silversmithing, and lining and samples of such Medieval foods as seedcake.

The variety of events taking place in Hartford this weekend emphasized a decision by Nancy Fabbri, chairman of Medieval Studies, that “The Middle Ages was an important period than many people give it credit for.”

According to Mrs. Fabbri, “Life in the Middle Ages was interdisciplinary.” The interdisciplinary major introduced last year includes the history, philosophy, art history, music, religious studies and language departments.

In an effort to make the college community aware of the new major and the Middle Ages in general, Mrs. Fabbri has put together a calendar of various Medieval lectures and demonstrations to be given on campus this year. The first event was held last Thursday when professors Edward Crace White House for the group, Jordan, (philosophy), Helen Maltz (history), Paul Althea (music), and Mrs. Fabbri discussed the decisive turning points in the Middle Ages.

The calendar of events which revolves in part around the yearly calendar, includes a lecture in December on “The Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris,” by Edgar Mayohew of the art history department and a November lecture on “Courtly Love in the Late Middle Ages,” by James William of the French Department.

In April Tailitha Claypole, ’77, a Medieval Studies major, will do a demonstration of Medieval dance. Ms. Claypole is doing an independent student on the dance during this time which includes the life of the courts at this time and the music.

Other events scheduled throughout the year include a lecture by Assistant Professor of English, Susan Gallick, on “King on Page 12.
Vietnam witnesses at Conn. Report experiences

continued from page six

Self-relief stressed

Another change is the new government’s effort to mobilize the whole country. People are told to take an active part in shaping the new government through the meeting of local committees.
The Quin-Judge contrasted this to the apathetic cynicism which previously pervaded the country. “Study practice,” a re-education effort, stresses self-relief and active participation.

Questions as to the extent of the coercion, Mrs. Quinn-

Judge said that she has seen, the government does not force people to attend these meetings. Many enthusiastically accept this new challenge to their lives and to the future of their country. Mr.

Quinn-Judge observed that in general the people’s reaction is a feeling of relief—“pure relief without any political overtones.”

The involvement of women has also been very effective. Throughout the 21st Article of the Women’s Movement for the Right

To Live, now allied with Saigon’s Women’s Movement, a group composed mainly of middle class intellectuals and respectable mothers, was recognized in its strong stands for women’s rights. “Women’s Liberation Union, a group headed by Mrs. Ernestine Brown, is the meeting place for women in this and other activities.

The new government has also been very effective in reviving a wide range of cultural and educational practices, as far as the Quinn-Judges have seen. However, church will not be able to own as much land, and monks and nun's will have to work for a living.

Ultimate aim

Although the ultimate aim is to reunite North and South Vietnam, this quest is not automatized, as we are working our way to it. A high peak. Also, many adults whose work prevented them from attending school are now attening night classes.

What has been learned?

Questions about what lessons the U.S. learned from tearing up a country and culture, and from wasting billions of dollars,

Mr. Quinn-Judge has said that the new U.S. government learned very much. To a high-ranking State Department official Quinn-

Judge recently spoke with, U.S. foreign policy remained essentially the same in 1945 and 1975: “to promote stability and fill the vacuum.” The only lesson that this official could name would be “we would not use so many advisers and troops next time.”

The room grew quiet after the following questions were raised: “How do we avoid it again?” and “How do we as individuals, a nation, and the international community avoid it again?” For, as the Quinn-Judges affirmed firsthand, “Government can and does lie frequently.”

Center works for unity

By Carolyn Nalabadian

UNITY is a cultural center designed to aid students in their quest for knowledge of the black and Hispanic cultures. UNITY, the yellow house directly across the street from the Mohican Avenue entrance to the College, serves as the meeting place for the black student organization, Umoja (meaning Unity in Swahili) and La Unidad, the Puerto Rican Cultural Club. It is a positive force, serving as an information center for those who are interculturally curious about the ethnic, historical and artistic heritage of themselves and others.

Mrs. Ernestine Brown is the coordinator for UNITY House. In the brief time she has served in this capacity, (since Sept. 1, 1973) she has organized an “open” house, a day in the Chapel, and poetry readings from the works of black poets. Mrs. Brown is the primary person concerned with minority affairs not only in the Conn. College community, but in New London as well. Often she answers queries regarding the procedure for an ethnic wedding, true African names for an expected baby, and other cultural information, which generally cannot be found in a library.

Through its members, UNITY hopes to enrich the Connecticut College experience for all students by cooperating with existing departments and organizations in offering culturally oriented programs and activities.

UNCLAIMED SCHOLARSHIPS

Over $33,500,000 unclaimed scholarships, grants, aids, and fellowships ranging from $50 to $10,000. Current list of these sources researched and compiled as of Sept. 15, 1975.

UNCLAIMED SCHOLARSHIPS

11725 Massachusetts Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90025

☐ I am enclosing $9.95 plus $1.00 for postage and handling.

PLEASE RUSH YOUR CURRENT LIST OF UNCLAIMED SCHOLARSHIPS SOURCES TO:

Name:
Address:
City: State:
Zip:

(Residents of nine states residents please add 6% sales tax.)
Daniloff felt the pulse of Watergate

In 1973 Mr. Daniloff won his Neiman Fellowship at Harvard and when he returned to Washington he was sent to cover the White House. This period of Nixon’s involvement with the Supreme Court over the tapes, and as Mr. Daniloff put it, “the dismissal of this administration at very close hand.”

When asked about the attitude of the White House staff toward reporters, his first comment was that Nixon himself wasn’t good at communicating with people. He described Ron Zeigler as a “young, brash, courageous man limited experience and intellectual ambition.” Daniloff said that since the tapes first appeared in the White House at that time, Zeigler had no choice but to respond frequently to the press. After ex-President Nixon’s resignation, Zeigler told the press, with red face and tears, “a dog with his tail between his legs,” that they had been brutal but on the right track, and that they should keep up the good work.

Postures of Reporter Difficult After covering the White House, Daniloff, as a confirmed Joe District, Hill, where his main concern has been with the interference of Congress in international affairs. During his years in journalism, Mr. Daniloff said that he has found the daily position of the reporter to be the most difficult conditions to be working under, and that a reporter needs to be excited over events in order to report them, no matter how small. If a reporter remarks to his editor that a specific person made the same comment a week this week, a reporter will merely reply that it’s the first time the person is making the comment, or that typical thought which Daniloff offered to share, was the fact that there are times when he feels that he is “just providing words to a public that will only wrap the garbage in their newspaper the very next day.”

Campus is no haven

Security log

In past weeks, including the October break, 6 thefts and 3 accounts of malicious behavior have occurred on Conn’s campus. On Oct. 18 it was reported that there was theft in the men’s locker room. One pair of socks, one pair of shorts were stolen; their estimated values were $187.50.

On Oct. 16, it was reported that there was another theft in the men’s locker room. One pair of football shoes, claimed to be valued at $24 were stolen.

Cumings exhibition

continued from page nine

between the multiple realities of light and the actual facade. In addition, the artist feels embarrassed at being sentimental, so he brushes it away with the gold.

All the paintings delineate the sentimentality of a middle-aged man reviewing his life. Each is a series of impressions and images from the past, yet they are not divorced from the present. It is a singular “ad hoc” statement, not only about the artist’s life, but of Man’s contemporary confusion—an attempt to relieve the days of his youth and simultaneously be ashamed to do so.

letters to the editors

continued from page four

private office for advisory conferences with dance majors. The Department has other space needs (as do all departments). Studio space for costumes, musical instruments and audio-visual equipment are limited. Faculty must change in the public locker rooms or in the basement. Nonetheless, I find it appalling that the Department chairman does not even have a private office.

Connecticut College has one of the most well-respected dance programs in the country (three and four major programs are offered in conjunction with the renowned American Dance Festival, a six week summer dance program held on campus). The Department also offers one of the few Master of Fine Arts in Dance programs in the East. Last year the Department received job vacancies for dance instructors and professors from colleges and universities all over the United States at an average of two a week (and all almost required that applicants have an MFA degree).

Movement education for children is rapidly becoming standard in many public schools curricula across the country.

The list of rationales for a college like Connecticut to continue graduating dance majors could go on—without mentioning that dance as an art form is gaining greater recognition and stature in the United States. Few Connecticut colleges ever dominate the stage of the New York City Ballet, but then those select performances often do not bother with college. Connecticut’s emphasis, as I perceived it after a year in the Department, is the grooming of a performer—teacher—chorographer—in an environment of rigorous technical and compositional training under a variety of recognized professional artists and sound academic training in the liberal arts.

The time is past due for this step-child of the academic arts to be accorded the consideration and respect given all other departments at this College.

Sincerely yours,
Ann R. Nye

Cleaners

To Pundit and the College Community:

Where are the vacuum cleaners in South Campus? If anyone knows where they are, let’s at least share a teenie bit.

A student slowly succumbing to a second-degree dust-induced diseases.

again.

To the Editorial Board,

In the last issue of Pundit, the last page was composed of advertisements and stories continued from previous pages. In the weeks previous, the last page was occupied by the Pundit ad.

The last page of a tabloid—format newspaper is second in importance only to the first. It is the last page other than the first visible without a conscious effort to open the paper.

The last page of a beautiful tabloid— format newspapers reserve their last page as the first page of one of their front— the sections. Some examples: The New York Post, New York Daily News, and the Grouton News, where the advertising (or poisonous in the White House, Daniloff was transferred to Pundit and the College. She is printed)

The Village Voice begins its arts coverage on the last page.

That an ad appeared on the last page of Pundit over several weeks, the previous format can only mean, I sincerely hope, the advertiser paid a considerable sum for the prevailing advertising rate for the privilege of having its ad appear on the prominent possible space in the paper.

To move the sports section inside the paper, while making the last page the junk page is to implicitly downgrade that section of the paper. To leave sports as the last section implies a further

Continued On Page 12

Mystic Marinelife Aquarium

Mystic Exil, 1-95, Mystic, CT

Here is a Fall special for College students from Mystic Marinelife Aquarium: show your student I.D. and pay only $1.50... half the regular admission price. Offer good every day except Sunday.

Newest exhibit is a female Balena whale named Priscilla, (Eskefor a "little woman"). She measures 9 feet, weighs about 850 pounds, and is the only whale in an aquarium in New England.

Our special attraction is the Demonstration pool with dolphins and Sea Lions in the 140 seat Marine Theater. Then, there are the reef and coral exhibits, and all of our rest of more than 2,000 specimens of underwater life.

Come enjoy an unusual mixture of education and recreation. We’re nearby, at the Mystic Exit 95, Mystic, CT.

SHOW

YOU

W.OLD

& GET IN FOR HALF PRICE!

Mystic Marinelife Aquarium

Mystic Exil, 1-95, Mystic, CT
New London candidates identified

continued from page seven candidate; past Foreman of F.L. Beth El and Ahavath Olesed
Anthony Maiorana

Laidr's
APPLE JACK

continued from page nine
up with "Rockin' Pneumonia."
After a couple of extended original Garcia pieces which I've never heard before but can only describe as "beautiful," the band closed out with a full-silt version of Nicky's frantic show-stopper,
"Edward the Mad Shirt Grinder." The tune was originally recorded on Quicksilver's last good album, Shady Grove, and Jerry's solo was a beautiful embellished tribute to John Goppilina and the rest of the letter-

Grateful Dead in New Haven

goes San Francisco sound.
Although the call for an encore was long and loud, I guess there weren't enough Yalies boogying to bring the band back for more, and the lights came back up on a happy but 'slightly perturbed nucleus.'

The sounds were great, the crowd was great, and the band was well enough rehearsed to put out a great live album (far superior to Garcia's earlier noisings with Merle Saunders).
It turned out to be a fine
evening of music at Woolsey:
even if the Dead weren't raised for the occasion. All I can do now is sit back with my memories of the night and wonder why Hus-

If Adam and Eve were tempted by only one big,
juicy delicious apple, think what tempting things can happen when there are 20 of them.
That's how many whole, tree-riven apples go into every fifth Apple Jack. And what a great delicious apple, think what every drink you make with 20 of them!

Add a slice of lemon or lime.

Apple Jack over ice
in a ball glass, over ice. Fill with 7-delicious taste, and the lights come back up. Add a slice of lemon or lime.

Coke & Apple. I join Laidr's
Apple Jack in a highball glass. Add coke and a twist.

Maybe Adam and Eve didn't do right by Apple, but you won't go wrong with Laidr's Apple Jack. (Send for your two Republican candidates are Peter Hayden and William Juhl.

CLASSIFIED

Did you play a musical instrument once upon a time?
Something you played in the high school band or because your mother made you that you haven't played in years and is now collecting dust somewhere?
Would you be interested in giving, selling, or lending it to me? If so, give me a call — Ben, cell. 236, or 647-0669. I am also interested in a lesson or two in the care of and the basics of its instrument.

For sale: '69 Dodge wagon, running condition $200 or reasonable offer. Contact Laurie
Pope, Box 1077, 443-4581.

Medieval City
continued from page ten Arthur and the Mythic Tradition in November and a talk by Cora Lutz, a Connecticut College alumna and presently Curator of Medieval Manuscripts at Yale University.
SODDEN PLAYERS RISE
Above weather to win

SPORTS

Field hockey eleven enter two shut-outs;
Three games remain in schedule

By Allison McMillan

Last Wednesday, ten members of the women's field hockey team plus one recruit travelled (minus the soccer team) to Fairfield University. Sparked by a strong defensive line led by Kit Shaefer, Wendy MacAllister and Terry Hazard, the Camels posted an impressive 14-0 win. First-half goals were scored by Sara Barczenal (2), Wendy Crandall and Pam Crawford. Psyched by an appropriate cheer, "S-C-O-R-E, score," the Camels dominated the play in the 2nd half with their stickwork. "The action was tense," commented goalie Laura Dickey, "I stopped the only shot on goal." Fullbacks Deb Tomilson and Betsy Manlove had no comment about the action but dubbed Fairfield's field, "Crazier City." Scoring in the second half was Wendy Crandall (2) and Sara Barczenal, assisted by well-placed passes from wingers Sue Ayvetsge and Holly Smith. Two weeks ago today, the team played the University of Bridgeport 2-0. Coach and play had an easy 50 victory. Goals were scored by Sara Barczenal (4), Wendy Crandall (2), and with assists by wings Giny Clarkston and Emily Wolfe and left half kit Shaefer (2). Three games remain to be played: Oct. 28th against Yale at home, and Friday, Nov. 7th at Brown.

Rain ... everyone knows what rain is. Bissy Briggs said, "Sure, I know," and Shemp answered, "Yeah, it's wet!" But not everyone knows everything about rain, as F. Bogel once commented, "To know, you'd have to try to kiss a shark, it's hard." Rain can be good, rain can be bad. John Fullbore and Medger Evers played in the rain, but some people love rain, especially the Camels. Three games they scored as they went in being Medger Evers College on Saturday afternoon to extend their winning streak.

Riders are doing well;
J. Gray twice a champion

The Connecticut College riding team has competed in 1 horse shows this season. Team members are all members of the Sabre and Spur Club. The team does not transport horses to the inter-collegiate shows; the college sponsoring the show provides horses. The action continued throughout the rest of the fall and into the second period. Both goalkeepers were severely tested throughout the game and Camel freshman Ethan Wolfe came through with his best effort of the season, allowing only one goal. That lone goal was a great shot that no one could stop, and even maybe Lassig. Anyway, the score was tied and overtime seemed to be coming. At that point Bill Clark, playing his first full game because of a rash of injuries, decided he didn't want his heart out in the rain anymore. He calmly put a ball into the net from about twenty yards out, and they all did it right for the team to run over to the bar and watch Evel Knievel. All the way, the part like when the Evel was pulling "wheelies" in his wheelmobile. Anyway, Evel made the jump and the Camels won a soccer game. Not bad for a rainy Saturday. Lassig was happy, the Camels were happy, everyone's evers' bench was happy, as Lassig's van proved to be a great place to stay dry. Not only did they keep dry while they were in there; they also seemed oblivious to the rain when they got out.

The team now has four games left, and if they keep winning, they will come out of the season with an even .500 record, which is very respectable for a young team in its first year in the NCAA. This Saturday, the Camels go up against Western New England. A team that is ranked among the best schools in New England.

Score misleading;
Play rated A-1

by Lisa Schwartz

On Thursday, October 23, women's tennis team travelled to Brown University in Providence, Rhode Island, to play their fall match of the season. They were soundly defeated 8-0, but many felt the match was well played. After the match, Coach Sheryl Year said that she felt the scores were not indicative of the overall quality of play noting that many of the games went to deuce. Mark Glassner, a spectator, said he felt both sides were well played and there were a group of fine players out on the courts. The loss brings the team's record to 3-2.
Flag football
Roars to finish

by Steve Price

It's that time of the year when sweats, screens, options, reverses, and other distinctions merge into the blur that is flag football during the last few weeks of the schedule. The season rolls on with some teams secure in the knowledge that they will be in the playoffs, others hoping for the upset that would elevate them to post-season play, and a few that are just playing out the string.

Morrison and Lambdin, two teams seemingly on a collision course toward the Super Bowl, humbled two of the South Division leaders over the weekend. Morrison overpowered previously unbeaten Harkness in the rain, 49-14. Keyed by a consistent ground game led by Peter Gale and another superb two way performance by Andy Krevolin, Morrison jumped out to a 28-0 halftime lead that was never threatened. Lambdin handed the Quad its second loss by a convincing 32-0 score. The victories were led by the running of Bob House and the four touchdown passes thrown by Tom Deedy, who remarked after the game that "the most trouble I had all day was keeping my pants on."

In other games, Smith-Birdick pulled away from Wright in the second half to win 56-7. Freeman-Windham, led by end Carl Gonzalez, defeated Hamilton 33-14. K.B. finally brought their offense out of hiding but still lost to Larrabee 35-28. In a game between two teams with no chance for the playoffs, J.A. beat Hamilton 21-0.

J.V. soccer team meets Thames Valley next

by Lee Barnes

A noted theologian once said, "It matters not whether you win or lose — it's how you play the game." Well, the J.V. soccer team seems to be taking this prophecy as the Gospel truth, since their record has now slipped to 0 and 3. The Camels latest defeat came at the hands of Eastern Connecticut State, by a score of 1-0.

This was definitely the J.V.'s best effort of the season as they applied constant pressure on the East. Conn. goalie and kept the action in the East. Conn. end throughout much of the game. However, the Camels were continuously frustrated by the East. Conn. netminder and a defensive lapse gave the visitors the only goal in their 1-0 victory. But fans, take heart — the team has now reached its peak and a victory in the next game, against Thames Valley, is well within the realm of possibility.

SCHEDULE
Friday, Oct. 31, 3:30, K.B. vs. Wright.
Saturday, Nov. 1, 10:30, Lambdin vs. J.A.
1:30, Quad vs. Hamilton.
Monday, Nov. 3, 3:30, Park vs. J.A.
Tuesday, Nov. 4, 3:30, Freeman-Windham vs. Lambdin.
Wednesday, Nov. 5, 12:30, Larrabee vs. Smith-Birdick.

STANDINGS (games through Oct. 27)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TEAM</th>
<th>W</th>
<th>L</th>
<th>T</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Harkness</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lambdin</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Larrabee</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wright</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hamilton</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Park</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>K.B.</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NORTH DIVISION

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TEAM</th>
<th>W</th>
<th>L</th>
<th>T</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Morrison</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lambdin</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Larrabee</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wright</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hamilton</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Park</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>K.B.</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

SOUTH DIVISION

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TEAM</th>
<th>W</th>
<th>L</th>
<th>T</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Freeman-Windham</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J.A.</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

SUPPORT YOUR FAVORITE ATHLETE

Chipp’s Famous Athletic Supporters are an amusing answer to many gift giving situations. Available for the following schools, sports, and games at $17.00 per supporter.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>School</th>
<th>Sports</th>
<th>Games</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Yale, Harvard, Princeton</td>
<td>Brown, Cornell, Columbia</td>
<td>U of Po, Dartmouth, Notre Dame</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ohio State</td>
<td>Lafayette, Tennis, Golf, Football, Soccer, Hockey</td>
<td>Baseball, Nautical, YQG, Backgammon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Moneybag, Ski, Rebel Flag</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Mail Orders: Chipp Inc. 14 E 44th, N.Y., N.Y. 10017
Am. Express or Master Charge #
Name
Street
City State Zip

Wait Size: Make Checks and Money Orders payable to Chipp, Inc. Add $1.25 Parcel Post and Ins For Each Shipment.

Conn. College - Pundit.
Go home on Allegheny. And save yourself some money. We offer a wide variety of discount travel plans with big savings for groups and individuals.

The Liberty Fare. You can go home and a lot of other places besides, with unlimited travel at one low price. You get a choice of 3 plans, too—7 days for $129, 14 days for $149 and 21 days for $179. Good everywhere we fly, except Canada.

Group 10. Save up to 33 1/3% roundtrip (up to 20% one way). Groups of 10 or more save when they purchase tickets 48 hours in advance and take off together. And you can each return separately, if you like. Good everywhere we fly.

Group 49. Save up to 20% roundtrip. Groups of 4 to 9 save when you make reservations 48 hours in advance and fly together to and from selected cities. Stay at least 3 but no more than 30 days. Leave before noon on weekdays—anytime on weekends.

Weekend. Save up to 25% on your roundtrip ticket when you go and return on a Saturday or Sunday.

For complete information on all of our money-saving discount travel plans and fight reservations, see your Travel agent or call your local Allegheny Airlines reservations number. And get ready to go home or anywhere else.

An important reminder ...

November 4 (Tuesday) is Election Day

We hope that each registered voter will exercise his or her own INDEPENDENT JUDGMENT in selecting those candidates best qualified for City Council, Board of Education, and Board of Selectman.

Take the time to examine EACH candidate’s views on relevant issues—you’d be surprised how diverse the opinions range even within one party.

As one candidate explained, “Pulling a party lever is often the sign of a lazy and ignorant voter.”

Demonstrate that YOU are an informed citizen by voting for the candidates who YOU believe will best serve New London.

A community service message by the Connecticut College Young Republicans