DEDICATION

GEORGE HAINES IV

The death of a scholar is a double tragedy. We are confronted by the inexpressible, the uncontrollable, the death of a mind. Whatever the protestations that ideas cannot die, we are left only with a sense of irrevocable loss.

Professor George Haines was a scholar, a teacher, and a man. We lost with him not only an example and a creator, but a presence, quiet and confident, which illuminated our lives. We lost a friend.

HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF 1965

It was Fall and we began. The class of 1965 was initiated to years of experiment and individual effort; to years of discovery and concentrated study; to years of growing in a community and sharing in a community. But these were years that also pointed to the world beyond. Alone in a carrel, surrounded in a lecture, in conference with a professor, we learned the joy of a job well done. And we despaired when our time and effort were misplaced. • We started our career with William Golding and Paul Tillich. We continued as the second class to experience the change from the five to the four course curriculum. We will finish in a processional. • There was a changing of Presidents. We were welcomed by and had a year with President Rosemary Park. We were introduced to President Charles E. Shain. • Our campus grew and we grew with it. The complex was completed and we moved into it to the sound of Ray Charles over the Crozier-Williams loudspeaker. The campus became divided between the "old" and the "new"—between the traditional and the contemporary. But all areas had signs that "Alvin Ailey was coming". A looking around found faculty offices where once we had slept, a lecture hall where once we had eaten, and a Bur-sar's office where once we had attended class. As senior citizens, we saw Lazrus House added, we welcomed the largest class of freshmen, and we participated in a campus conference on Existentialism. • And . . . we saw our students gain more responsibility within the structure of the college. Chapel and social requirements became more a matter of personal integrity. • With dramatic intent, we competed in Compet Sing and Compet Play with performances of "Rouge Atomique",

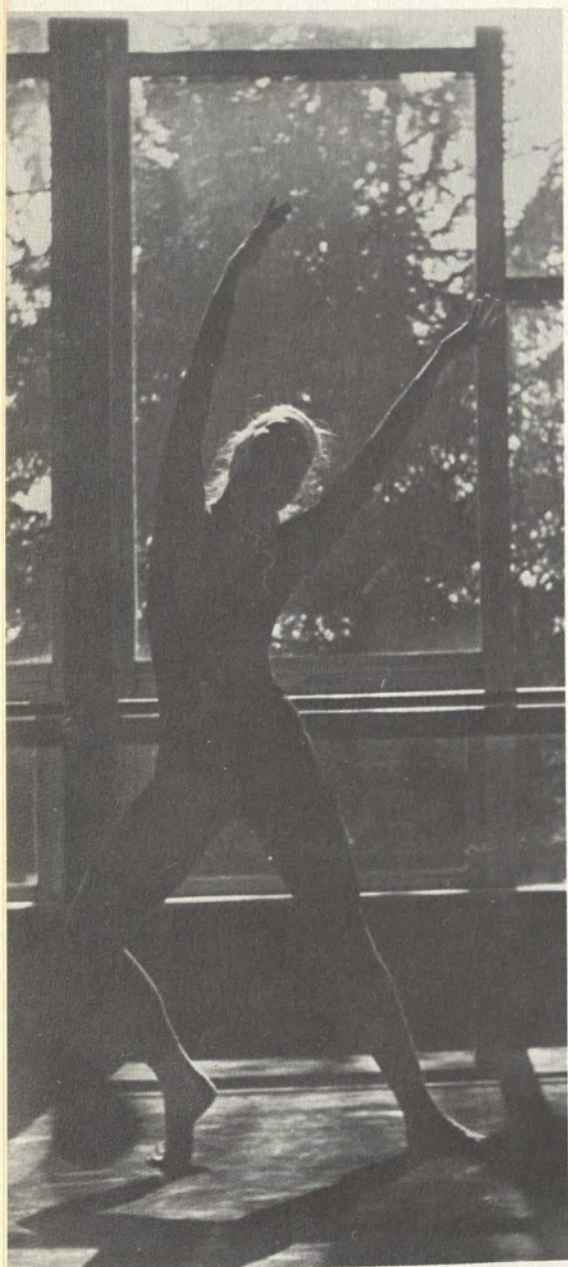

"Anastasia", "Alice in Wonderland", and "The New Tenant". Then there were the plans, the writing, the last minute changes, the fourteenth rehearsal of the Appomattox drill, the typewriters in the back, the skirt falling during the kickline, the curtain, the wait for applause and "History or Herstory" emerged as our Junior Show. In our senior year, the melodrama was our effort and we rescued "little Nell". • We were an inventive class. Our first year, we purchased Alphonse. Alphonse was our mascot and when he was stolen, we fought hard to recapture him. He was "ours" and we had spent all we had to buy him. Gallery '65 appeared in the cellar of Plant and with the checked tablecloth, entertainment, and paintings on the wall, Connecticut College acquired a Bistro with what we called the "atmosphere" of the left-bank. When we became junior Mascot Hunters, the college went co-ed. As seniors, we offered the Boutique. Through our "Regulars" Crozier-Williams was dubbed "The Center". • . . . And we were not isolated . . . With the world and the Nation, we watched the developments in Cuba. In shock and despair, we hung our heads on Friday, November 22nd. We mourned a year later on the same date . . . We watched a civil rights movement gain strength on the campus and we saw President Johnson elected. • These were to us "the best years of our life". In "History or Herstory" we proclaimed our role. It is Spring and we will leave. We leave only the structure — on the content we will build.

The mind moving up on silence learns its own limits, its own expressions. We learn to use ourselves to know the world, and find that the world's knowledge tells us only of ourselves.

Revolutionary Figures in the Modern Dance

In order for the dancer to possess a full understanding of the modern dance as it exists today, it is necessary for her to have a knowledge of the beginnings and developments of the one revolutionary but inevitable movement which is called modern dance. It is true that each dancer must find his own method and means of creating, but what has gone before must be understood in order to find an effective personal style. In my individual study I decided to concentrate on six people who seem to me to have used new and important creative principles. Now that I have written about and danced these people as I understand them, the historical framework of the modern dance remains a part of me from which I can choose and reject elements while exploring my own range of vision.

After Metaphysics Class

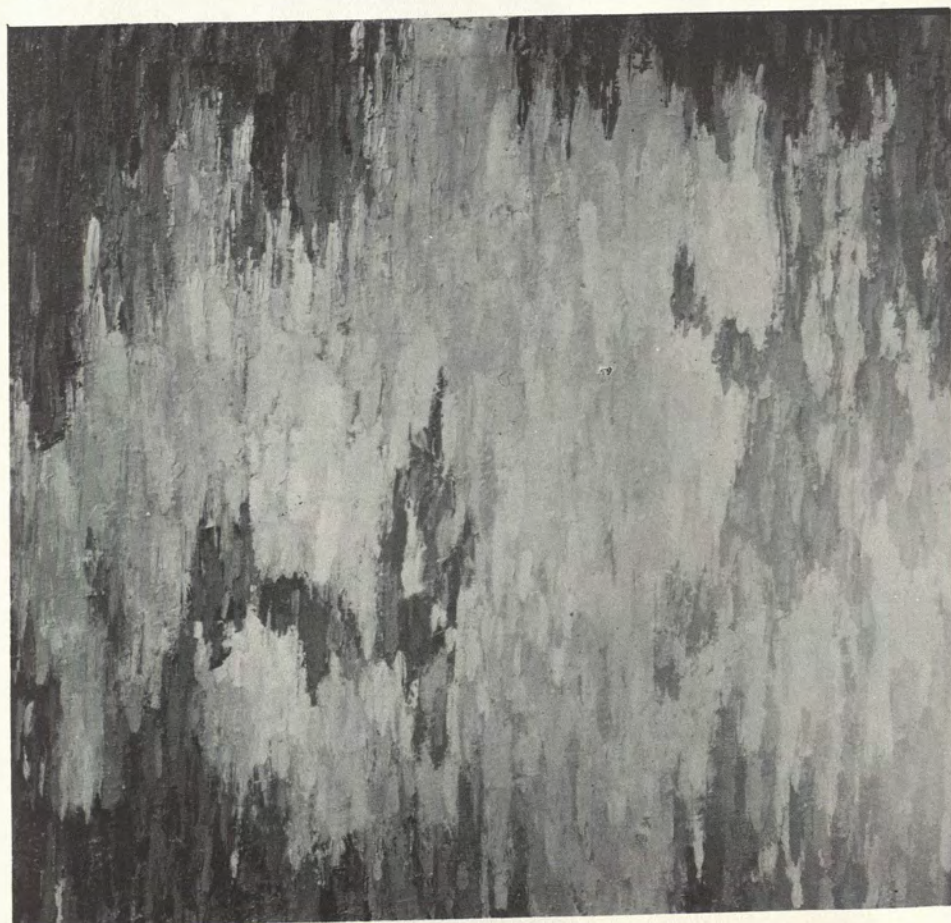

Black pavement, gleaming under misty rains,
Today your ruler grins out at the world
Of footsteps passing tiptoe overhead.
A peasant woman, steady on her feet,
Avoids the drains which lead us to the dead
Below. Knowing doubts and fears that rankle,
Strain, and finally break our ink-line nerves,
Crack the street too deeply furrowed now
By history's squinting eye and perplexed brow.

Tomorrow

A grey brown thrush rustles its feathers
 Amid the brush
 Heather and thicket
 Hust
 At the moment when
 The sun blushes
 And sleeps

A soft shower settles about the leaves
 Touches a flower
 Weaves through the roots
 Lower
 To the warm earth
 In an hour
 Time ceases

LONELY NIGHT BLUES

Lyrics Cal Norton
Carol E. Johanson

SLOWLY, WITH MUCH EXPRESSION

The first system of piano accompaniment consists of two staves. The right hand begins with a series of chords and single notes, including a half note G4, a quarter note A4, and a half note B4. The left hand provides a steady bass line with eighth and quarter notes. A dynamic marking of mp is present.

The second system continues the piano accompaniment. The right hand features more complex chordal textures and melodic fragments. The left hand maintains a consistent rhythmic pattern. A crescendo hairpin is visible in the right hand.

The third system includes the vocal entry. The right hand has a melodic line that begins with a half note G4. The left hand continues with a bass line. The lyrics "THE Blues ARE BORN WHEN-EVER I AM" are written below the staff.

The fourth system continues the piano accompaniment and vocal line. The right hand has a melodic line that begins with a half note G4. The left hand continues with a bass line. The lyrics "LONE - LY WAN - D'RING IN THE NIGHT AND" are written below the staff.

The fifth system continues the piano accompaniment and vocal line. The right hand has a melodic line that begins with a half note G4. The left hand continues with a bass line. The lyrics "SAD - NESS COMES NEAR-ER TO ME STILL AND" are written below the staff.

Cats are a seasonal thing

I heard a woman say,
"Cats are a seasonal thing with me."
How odd, that there should be
A season for the feline.

I questioned the woman and she went on
To say that winter time is best
For her and cats.
"The spring, my dear, is worst of all,
For that is when the lion
Robs the robin of her nest."

He rode down to the fields. They were full of wild wheat. He could see no sign of men. Near the slope stood the shell of a hut, burnt hollow. Perhaps the farmers had been killed. He rode through the wheat. He saw a place where the deer had lain down in the ripe wheat. The seeding grain lay crushed in a wide circle, littered with droppings. The poppies grew up through the yellow grain. He saw no fences, no more huts. But the whole valley was full of wild wheat.

Part of an untitled longer fiction.

"The Development of the Sonata-Allegro Form During the Pre-Classic Period" is concerned with the form as it developed in the various types of musical compositions. This particular form was chosen because it played a very important part in much of the music of the Classic and early Romantic periods. The paper is based on extensive research in the available literature and on analysis of representative compositions that trace the development of the form.

Often I am asked by those who watch me digging in the pond's mud or taking water samples, "What are you doing that for?" I usually reply that I am studying the seasonal changes occurring in the pond and that I am also trying to determine if there is a difference between the insect populations of the east and west shores. Those are the two main objectives of my honor's project. But I would probably sound ridiculous if I tried to express the personal side to such a study — the satisfaction derived from working on my own project, the calmness derived from just being beside the quiet pond for an afternoon, or the fascination found in all those little creatures that live there almost "in secret". My study has not only introduced me to the ways of scientific research — it has increased my wonder of the world and of nature's intricacies.

MAYOR OF NEW LONDON

To the Class of 1965:

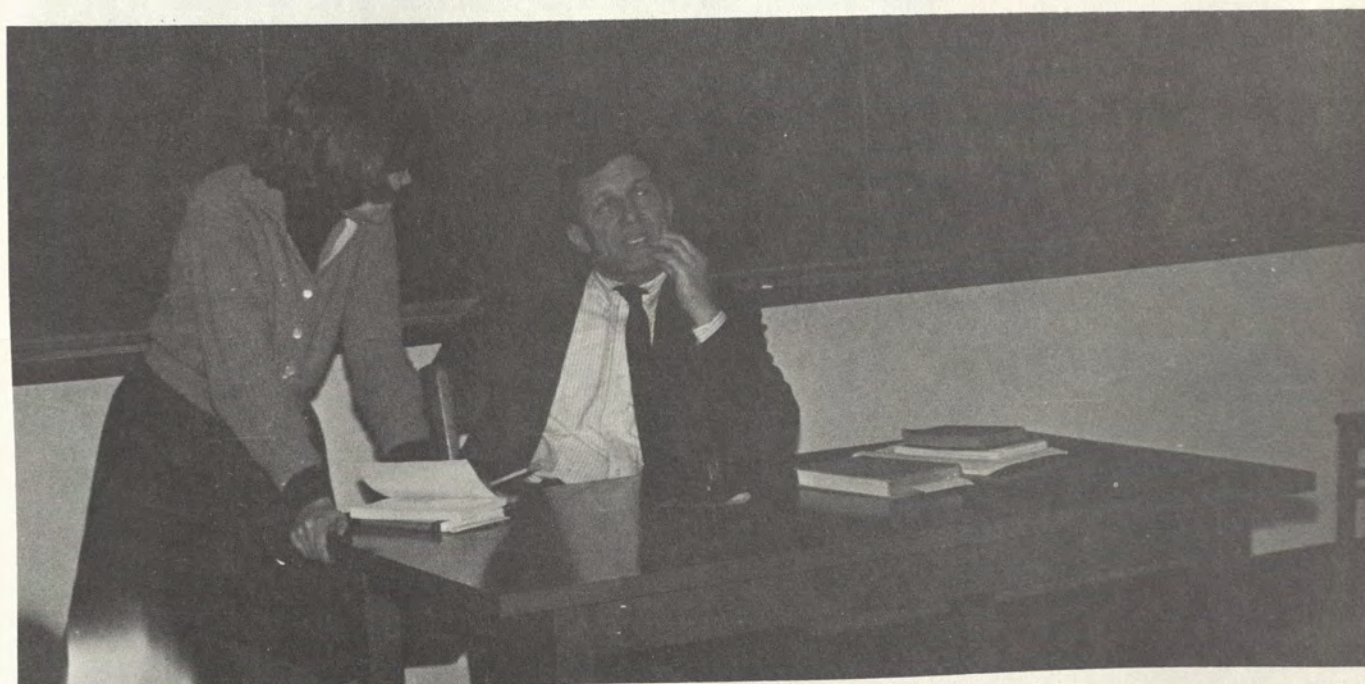

Your senior year on the winter's day when I write this is moving through a quiet moment. Only a few figures pass in customary patterns over a brown campus. Your edition of Koiné is being pulled together against the future years and its hard use as a reference book. It is certainly a legitimate ambition of Koiné's editors to make this book seem to hold all your college moments in a single gallery of pictures and titles and messages. I hope it is also a legitimate ambition on my part to remind you on this page of the human continuum that your Connecticut College education makes with what came before and will come after. Returning to this record will be a gesture of loyalty to a very happy time. I hope it will also be an imaginative act that reminds you that the impact of your college education should never stop. May you feel the presence of this bright college year in all your future life as an educated woman.

Receive Ye Welcome

Let the guest sojourning here know that in this home our life is simple. What we cannot afford, we do not offer, but..... what good cheer we can give, we give gladly

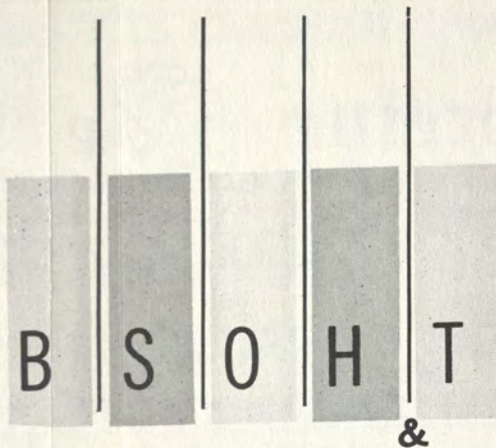

We make no strife for appearance sake, know also friend, that we live a life of labour, therefore, if at times we separate ourselves from thee, do ye occupy thyself according to thine hearts desire. ~~~~~

We will not defer to thee in opinion or ask thee to defer to us. What thou thinketh ye shall say if ye wish, without giving offense. What we think, we also say, believing that truth hath many aspects and that love is large enough to encompass them all.

So, while ye tarry here with us we would have thee enjoy the blessings of a home, health, love and freedom, and we pray that thou mayst find the final blessing of life.
