Ames releases report

President Ames has released a “working paper” on the goals and direction of the College to the faculty and the administration. The full text is printed on pages four and five. The President emphasized both in the report and in an interview that this report is solely a “starting point.”

He explained that the question he raises in the report will be considered by the entire community for the formulation of a statement of Conn.’s purpose and role.

He stated that the problem will be considered by the academic policy committee or a special ad-hoc committee, in order to obtain input from all campus constituencies.

According to Ames, the matter is “now up to a planning group. I’ve raised the types of questions we should address.”

SGA resolves conflict

Over property damage

by Anne Rohillard

The conflict between the Judiciary Board and physical plant over the billing procedure for property damage was resolved at a recent Student Government Association meeting.

Leroy Knight, treasurer of the college, attended the meeting and when questioned by JB Chair- man, Leslie Margolin, he explained the change in billing policy. The new policy satisfies the Judiciary Board’s previous complaints.

The problem arose when the Judiciary Board questioned physical plant’s standard billing procedure which billed students for replacement materials and labor costs without making a distinction between vandalism and accidental damage.

The Judiciary Board determined when a student should be billed but they wanted to make the distinction between deliberate and accidental damage in billing the student.

In an interview, Mr. Knight said that he recognizes the fact that we all have acci- dentals and this is why students who are billed for accidental damage will only be charged for the materials. Knight explained that the money generated through these payments of these bills is kept aside for use “ex- clusively” in the repair of van- dalism.

Elimination of SGA exec. branch

Suggested at all student forum

The elimination of the executive branch, a Student Government Association, as suggested by Ken Cerrar (’77) at the all student forum on March 31, met with some support from others attending the forum. The action supporting this suggestion voiced their belief that the needs of students were not being met by the SGA in its present form.

The proposal suggested the elimination of all SGA branches except what were termed “the essential workings.” The Judiciary Board, the Social Board, and the House Councils were the functions considered to be essential.

The proposal was presented to the President of SGA, Rick Allen to discuss the increase in vandalism and student apathy. He explained why he believed the SGA is an important organization needed by the students.

He pointed out that though it was a proposal which allowed students to participate on faculty committees, it is through the SGA that we run elections for students to take place. Because of this committee participation students have a say in policy decisions.

In contrast to Allen’s view, the action supporting the elimination of executive board felt that it was not effective in contributing to the policy continued on page sixteen

Two week suspension reinstituted

By J. B. for repeated offenders

by Anne Rohillard

The Judiciary Board is reinstituting the policy of recommending a two week suspension as a punitive measure. The decision was made at the Judiciary Board policy meeting Sunday night.

This move is an attempt to deal with those students who are repeated minor offenders. Leslie Margolin, Judiciary Board Chairman, explained the motives behind these and other JB policy changes. "There is a seeming lack of respect on the part of some elements on campus and though we can’t change the sit- uation here, we’re responsible to see the system works.”

According to Margolin the two week suspension had, for the most part, been done away with in favor of semester suspensions. However, since suspension for a semester is such an extreme measure it was applied only in the most serious cases. The Judiciary Board used censures, which Margolin termed, “slaps on the wrists” as a disciplinary measure.

The punitive two week suspension is also being con- sidered as a standard punish- ment for students who fail to pay property damages. According to Margolin only one student who was billed last semester paid by the due date—the last payment and there are bills outstanding from spring semester of last year.

These students are not sup- posed to be allowed to register, but this has not been the case. With the removal of the need to check in at the accounting table registration these students passed through registration without challenge. The Board is asking the Registrar through President Ames for cooperation in the enforcement of this policy. Students who have bills outstanding are being given the chance to contest the bill or pay it. Failure to do so will result in a recommendation by JB of a two week suspension.

The Board also considered a number of other problems. Margolin stated that JB is looking into the possibility of dealing with students who are residential problems.” Under this policy students who are casual dorm problems could be faced with the necessity of moving off campus for a period of time at the request of JB.

SGA resolves conflict

Over property damage

by Anne Rohillard

The conflict between the Judiciary Board and physical plant over the billing procedure for property damage was resolved at a recent Student Government Association meeting.

Leroy Knight, treasurer of the college, attended the meeting and when questioned by JB Chair- man, Leslie Margolin, he explained the change in billing policy. The new policy satisfies the Judiciary Board’s previous complaints.

The problem arose when the Judiciary Board questioned physical plant’s standard billing procedure which billed students for replacement materials and labor costs without making a distinction between vandalism and accidental damage.

The Judiciary Board determined when a student should be billed but they wanted to make the distinction between deliberate and accidental damage in billing the student.

In an interview, Mr. Knight said that he recognizes the fact that we all have acci- dentals and this is why students who are billed for accidental damage will only be charged for the materials. Knight explained that the money generated through these payments of these bills is kept aside for use “ex- clusively” in the repair of van- dalism.

Elimination of SGA exec. branch

Suggested at all student forum

The elimination of the executive branch, a Student Government Association, as suggested by Ken Cerrar (’77) at the all student forum on March 31, met with some support from others attending the forum. The action supporting this suggestion voiced their belief that the needs of students were not being met by the SGA in its present form.

The proposal suggested the elimination of all SGA branches except what were termed “the essential workings.” The Judiciary Board, the Social Board, and the House Councils were the functions considered to be essential.

The proposal was presented to the President of SGA, Rick Allen to discuss the increase in vandalism and student apathy. He explained why he believed the SGA is an important organization needed by the students.

He pointed out that though it was a proposal which allowed students to participate on faculty committees, it is through the SGA that we run elections for students to take place. Because of this committee participation students have a say in policy decisions.

In contrast to Allen’s view, the action supporting the elimination of executive board felt that it was not effective in contributing to the policy continued on page sixteen

Two week suspension reinstituted

By J. B. for repeated offenders

by Anne Rohillard

The Judiciary Board is reinstituting the policy of recommending a two week suspension as a punitive measure. The decision was made at the Judiciary Board policy meeting Sunday night.

This move is an attempt to deal with those students who are repeated minor offenders. Leslie Margolin, Judiciary Board Chairman, explained the motives behind these and other JB policy changes. "There is a seeming lack of respect on the part of some elements on campus and though we can’t change the sit- uation here, we’re responsible to see the system works.”

According to Margolin the two week suspension had, for the most part, been done away with in favor of semester suspensions. However, since suspension for a semester is such an extreme measure it was applied only in the most serious cases. The Judiciary Board used censures, which Margolin termed, “slaps on the wrists” as a disciplinary measure.

The punitive two week suspension is also being con- sidered as a standard punish- ment for students who fail to pay property damages. According to Margolin only one student who was billed last semester paid by the due date—the last payment and there are bills outstanding from spring semester of last year.

These students are not sup- posed to be allowed to register, but this has not been the case. With the removal of the need to check in at the accounting table registration these students passed through registration without challenge. The Board is asking the Registrar through President Ames for cooperation in the enforcement of this policy. Students who have bills outstanding are being given the chance to contest the bill or pay it. Failure to do so will result in a recommendation by JB of a two week suspension.

The Board also considered a number of other problems. Margolin stated that JB is looking into the possibility of dealing with students who are residential problems.” Under this policy students who are casual dorm problems could be faced with the necessity of moving off campus for a period of time at the request of JB.

Margaret Watson, Dean of Student Affairs states, “I’m supportive of the idea. It would not be taking away their chance at an education but would be denying them a privilege.” She believes that up till now “there has not been a clear un- derstanding that there are some people who can’t live in dormitories because of antisocial or intolerable behavior.”

Dean Watson continued, “This is a chance to think of the hard- ship these students are imposing on other students. Students must be concerned about their neigh- bors, if they’re not their cases must be heard and judged by their peers.”

The Board is also considering pressing charges against students for a breach of the 1976 Thomas J. Watson Fellowship Awards.

Carol Ann Spencer, a senior from Princeton, New Jersey, is a political and visual Sociology major. She plans to pursue a career in photojournalism, and will use the fellowship to do a photo-essay in Haiti on the socio- economic conditions of that country. The title of her written proposal was “Photography and Socioeconomic Conditions.”

Michael Collier, a senior from Phoenix, Arizona, has con- structed an interdisciplinary major, as did Ms. Spencer, called Literature; Its Theory and Practice. The title of his proposal was “The Role of Small Practice. The title of his proposal was “The Role of Small Practice.”

To be considered for the Fellowships, interested students were asked to submit written proposals of their plans for their Fellowship Awards. These proposals were then reviewed by the committee, and personal interviews were also required to enable the applicants to elaborate on their proposals.

Applicants were evaluated on the significance, imagination, and practicality of their proposals. The finalists were then graded on a 1-9 point scale with each member of the commit- tee casting one vote.

The four applicants with the highest point average were then chosen to be interviewed in one-on-one sessions by a representative of the Thomas J. Watson Foundation. The two finalists were then chosen to be in- terviewed by.

The two Fellows will be ex- pected to maintain contact with the Foundation during their period abroad and must submit to the Foundation within one month of the Fellowship’s completion an evaluation of their fellowship year together with an accounting of the expenditure of fellowship funds.

George Pimentel, author of Paper Lion and The Bogey Man, will be the scheduled speaker for the 1976 commencement exercises.
It's time for answers

This college is suffering from three major problems: 1) a lack of money, 2) a lack of direction, and 3) a lack of leadership. These problems are not only obvious but were repeatedly emphasized by the faculty in a recent Pundit poll. The president's "working paper" is a manifestation of our problems. It does not provide leadership, direction, or answers.

Pundit recognizes the need for a statement of the goals and direction of the college and has-in the past asked that such a statement be formulated.

The statement released by President Ames is a "working paper," described as a starting point, raising numerous questions. A statement on the direction and goals of the College was suggested by Barnes and Roche over a year ago. That statement has still not been formulated.

How can academic cuts be justified when we don't have a clear direction? Valid academic cuts can only be made as part of a coherent and cohesive curriculum.

Pundit believes the President is sidestepping his responsibility to the College. Seeking input is a legitimate process but ultimately the direction of the College must be decided by the President.

The working paper was right for an earlier time. The time for the President to ask questions and turn over the process to a committee for discussion has long since passed. He should now be taking the lead in forming a statement of what our direction is, not posing questions about what it might be. Only then can cutbacks be made and development funds sought with a true sense of purpose.

To The Editor:

We would like to thank everyone involved in the library building ball. About 360 people attended and not proceeds for the new library total $44.00. Faculty members, administrators and many students worked hard on planning the dance, and making sure it ran smoothly that night. Their hard work and success should be recognized. Thanks go to all the bartenders, waitresses, ticket sellers, the Shwiffs, and those who cleaned up afterwards.

We hope the college community enjoyed the dance and hope they will participate in another fund-raising event.

Thanks to all who helped.

Ted Hathaway
Ann Rumage

The Housing Committee has completed the housing arrangements for the coming year. The lottery card packets must be picked up from Dean Watson's office on Monday, April 12, by the present student or a parent of the student. All students are reminded that their $100.00 reservation fee is due March 15. If this fee has not been paid the student will find there is no card in your packet from them. All financial arrangements must be made with the Accounting Office. It is our hope that by following the time schedule the Committee has established, students will have their dormitory assignments by April 27, 1976, and will have signed into specific rooms by Tuesday, May 4, 1976.

Tentative dormitory quotas and floor plan arrangements will be posted in Crozier-Williams.

The dormitory computer assignment list will also be posted in the main lobby of Crozier-Williams.
Vegetarians cite concern for health, Religion among reasons for practice

by Janet Noyes

Defining vegetarianism is like defining marriage. There are as many different definitions as there are vegetarians, and just as there are religions. In fact, there is more to vegetarianism than avoiding meat.

A vegetarian avoids eating the flesh of any animal, including meat, poultry, fish, and seafood, and any product derived from the flesh of an animal. (Including cheese made with rennet, scrappings of an animal's internal organs, Dacty-lo vegetarians use dairy products and or eggs. Other vegetarians eat no food derived from animal sources, (including dairy products, eggs, honey, gelatin...) and eat only foods of plant origin, such as grains, at Harvard University, nuts, fruits, and seeds. The vegan is a total vegetarian who also avoids clothing products for clothing and shoes, this means no leather shoes, no gut tennis racket strings, or violin bows, and the list goes on. Some vegetarians use no white sugar or refined flour, and as few processed foods as possible.

Others come to vegetarianism out of concern for the environment and the world population. Realizing that the natural hygienists, an increasing young population on the same high levels of energy and resource consumption, is a way of thinking. The guards, many of whom are convinced criminals, are given additional beatings to the patients.

Patients are denied books, utensils, or trips to the bathroom, and are at the guards' mercy for a cigarette. Teenage boys are also subjected to this treatment which is regulated by a police commandant. If a minor lasts between 6 months and 7 years with an average of around 2 years.

Doctor Segal commented that during Stalin's regime political dissidence was treated less harshly. In 1873, it is only considered to be a sign of mental illness: "This is, of course, a great pity."

Asked why such atrocious practices don't generate more international protest against KGB brutality, Doctor Segal, psychiatrists are reluctant to verify that anyone is considered normal. This reluctance, coupled with the fact that the doctors are not allowed to cross-examine the prisoners, has led to the impression that Russia has nothing to fear from dissidents. He pointed out that there is a tradition of ignoring human rights in Russia, especially those of mental patients.

He considered the decree by degrading more and more constant pressure from the West against the flagrant misuse of political power. The spirit of delirium and of the situation, the whole, one wonders whether or not Doctor Segal spoke the truth about the nature of Soviet power and his call for the West to resist it will fall on deaf ears.

No real winners in New York, Wisconsin

Election '76

by Michael J. Gasley

The results of Tuesday's primaries in New York and Wisconsin did not provide any of the three major candidates still seeking the Democratic nomination with the decisive victories they had predicted. Although it was forecast that the two primaries were likely to have determined once and for all, the chances of eventual victory for the three candidates, the future is still unclear.

Jimmy Carter, Henry Jackson and Morris Udall had declared New York and Wisconsin as being crucial to their candidates and they all had clearly defined objectives in those states. None of the candidates, however, managed to accomplish what they said they needed to do, and as a result, all of them will go for broke in the upcoming primaries in Pennsylvania on April 27.

Jimmy Carter hoped to win big in Wisconsin and run a strong second in New York. Most political analysts agreed that such a performance by Carter would have made him virtually unstoppable by anyone, including Hubert Humphrey. Carter watched Carter's string of primary victories with increasing concern.

In Wisconsin, however, Carter edged Udall by a mere 7,000 votes and a percentage point, and finished third in New York with 33 delegates. Although disappointed by this diminished momentum, Carter can still clinch the nomination in a brokered convention, is deeply impressed by Carter's performance thus far, and is now being urged to enter some of the primaries in the near future, particularly New Jersey.

Many political experts also believe that the issues will play a greater role in such highly individualized states as Pennsylvania, with a high unemployment rate, thereby further complicating the race.

The final assessment of the Wisconsin and New York primaries is that there were no survivors and no real winners. As Walter Cronkite remarked, "We still have a race."

Former Soviet psychiatrist speaks out Against harsh treatment of dissidents

by Michael Harvey

Leningrad. The Kozan Hospital is surrounded by barbed wire and dissidents share cells with patients who have psychological disorders. Dissidents are treated with drugs that induce body changes to disrupt thinking. The guards, many of whom are convicted criminals, give malicious beatings to the patients.

Patients are denied books, utensils, or trips to the bathroom, and are at the guards' mercy for a cigarette. Teenage boys are also subjected to this treatment which is regulated by a police commandant. If a minor lasts between 6 months and 7 years with an average of around 2 years.

Doctor Segal commented that during Stalin's regime political dissidence was treated less harshly. In 1873, it is only considered to be a sign of mental illness: "This is, of course, a great pity."

Asked why such atrocious practices don't generate more international protest against KGB brutality, Doctor Segal, psychiatrists are reluctant to verify that anyone is considered normal. This reluctance, coupled with the fact that the doctors are not allowed to cross-examine the prisoners, has led to the impression that Russia has nothing to fear from dissidents. He pointed out that there is a tradition of ignoring human rights in Russia, especially those of mental patients.

He considered the decree by degrading more and more constant pressure from the West against the flagrant misuse of political power. The spirit of delirium and of the situation, the whole, one wonders whether or not Doctor Segal spoke the truth about the nature of Soviet power and his call for the West to resist it will fall on deaf ears.
Connecticut College—It’s mission and it’s future:

The attached paper is prepared with two purposes in mind: to share my views about the College’s mission and to provide the starting point for the preparation of a new development plan.

With the help of the Development Committee and the Academic Policy Committee, I am confident that this spring we can make some significant steps forward in drawing up a comprehensive plan for the College, a task which must be the first among our new governance structure in the fall.

After a period of great concern and growth in higher education, there seems to be confusion today about its mission and its value. Some critics would measure the worth of a college education almost solely by how much it improves one’s earning capacity. Others ask whether humanistic studies have much utility in terms of helping to solve the formidable problems that confront the world today. These are no times for a failure of nerve. We should reaffirm the basic values of liberal education while seeking new approaches that will make it more vital and beneficial to society.

First and foremost, the liberal education provides a broad base of knowledge where they are analyzed, without which there are no likely to come to the conclusion that we are living in an era of the age of specialization where where new or society. The curriculum and the manner in which courses are taught are aimed not simply at conveying knowledge—although this is important—but at enabling students to sharpen their powers of analysis, judgment and expression. We must retrain our students to become independent thinkers, for whom the process of questioning becomes a habit of mind.

To a degree it is appropriate to evaluate education by how well it provides the skills that will be required in their careers. But no less valuable is the broad learning which should be prized simply because of their capacity to enrich our lives. Consider the study of natural science; it may lead some to technical careers, but everyone gains appreciation and enjoyment of nature from a fuller understanding of its laws. Or take the arts; we may enjoy a painting or a piece of music, but a whole new dimension of appreciation and meaning is added with an understanding of how the artist uses a particular medium to express feeling.

Former President Rosemary Park aptly stated that "If we lose sight of the acquisition of a sense of values, it is a process which helps us to order the students with specific objectives in a whole new way to serve as a guide to action and commitment. These values which enshrine the best of the traditions which mankind has thought and written and in which we come to appreciate his greatest achievements, whether they be in art, in science, or in the world of political affairs, supply us with standards and examples which can improve our own efforts to study the values of society, of the questions of how we should live with relation to one another, and must be at the heart of a liberal education. Its great potential for contributing to the welfare of society is its capacity to heighten a person's community. Professionals in finance, law, medicine, nuclear power, the chemical industry, mental health, and other fields, coming to the campus as speakers and discussion leaders, can provide examples of the successful cooperation with outside professionals.

The rapidity of change today and the complexity of the world's problems threaten to make helpless spectators of us all. If there is a single characteristic that describes the collective state of mind in the country, it is the sense that the course of events is close to running out of control. A recent letter in the New York Times argued that we might as well allow the Concorde to land at our airports because SST's are inevitable.

Shortly after man first landed on the moon, one of our deans was commenting on recreation leaders and announced that this spectacular achievement proved that we could do anything we set our mind to. In the 1976 Sykes Lecture, Professor Horace Babcock made a similar statement from the guidebook to the 1933 Chicago World's Fair: "Science finds, industry applies, man conforms." Have we come a long way from such passive acceptance of technological progress, but not far enough. Choices must be made about how this country is going to use its resources and its wealth, by default, not by a small group of experts advising our political leaders, not by professional groups, but by educated men and women who, without necessarily being specialists, are able to grasp the issues well enough to have informed opinions which can help shape public policy. In planning the curriculum, we must ask whether there are enough opportunities for students to confront society. A lecture series at the College this semester will do much to enrich our programs. The Psychology Department's new course in Psychology in Community Settings, which enables students to work with clinicians in neighboring institutions, is a good example of our successful cooperation with outside professionals.

The rapidity of change today and the complexity of the world's problems threaten to make helpless spectators of us all. If there is a single characteristic that describes the collective state of mind in the country, it is the sense that the course of events is close to running out of control. A recent letter in the New York Times argued that we might as well allow the Concorde to land at our airports because SST's are inevitable.

All of this planning and rearranging will be occurring in a difficult period for the College, a period of retrenchment in order to contain costs, and a period when enrollments may drop due to a decrease in the college-age population. We must be willing to face the reality of our programs when there may be less to spend on them.

The curriculum committee must be alert to duplication of content between courses. This may be a factor in deciding whether the number of course offerings so that faculty time will be available to prepare high-quality courses to be divided into smaller sections. This is hardly an easy choice, for diversity in the curriculum is clearly one of the College's assets. Perhaps greater continuance on page five

Don't knock it until you've tried it; Pandit did

By gauchy Feldstein

In an attempt to obtain firsthand knowledge of the doings for the Conn. College community, a Pandit reporter spent five hours on the force on Saturday, April 2. The following account overlaps two shifts: 8 p.m.—1 a.m.

"If we don't get there, (at the gate house) we're checking the car," stated Roy Eaton, Jr., who is in his 6th year with the force. Eaton, the son of Sgt. Roy Eaton, is a graduate student at Conn., and stressed the fact that often patrolmen are waved by because he recognizes the students.

In response to campus complaints that the cars were being checked at the gatehouse, Eaton explained that cars don't need a sticker and that the student on duty recognizes a student, he'll let them go on through; if he doesn't, he'll ask an ID. All cars, however, are checked.

Several members of security criticized the height of the gatehouse, citing the difficulty of being on the passenger side. They

By gauchy Feldstein

In an attempt to obtain firsthand knowledge of the doings for the Conn. College community, a Pandit reporter spent five hours on the force on Saturday, April 2. The following account overlaps two shifts: 8 p.m.—1 a.m.

"If we don't get there, (at the gate house) we're checking the car," stated Roy Eaton, Jr., who is in his 6th year with the force. Eaton, the son of Sgt. Roy Eaton, is a graduate student at Conn., and stressed the fact that often patrolmen are waved by because he recognizes the students.

In response to campus complaints that the cars were being checked at the gatehouse, Eaton explained that cars don't need a sticker and that the student on duty recognizes a student, he'll let them go on through; if he doesn't, he'll ask an ID. All cars, however, are checked.

Several members of security criticized the height of the gatehouse, citing the difficulty of being on the passenger side. They

By gauchy Feldstein

In an attempt to obtain firsthand knowledge of the doings for the Conn. College community, a Pandit reporter spent five hours on the force on Saturday, April 2. The following account overlaps two shifts: 8 p.m.—1 a.m.

"If we don't get there, (at the gate house) we're checking the car," stated Roy Eaton, Jr., who is in his 6th year with the force. Eaton, the son of Sgt. Roy Eaton, is a graduate student at Conn., and stressed the fact that often patrolmen are waved by because he recognizes the students.

In response to campus complaints that the cars were being checked at the gatehouse, Eaton explained that cars don't need a sticker and that the student on duty recognizes a student, he'll let them go on through; if he doesn't, he'll ask an ID. All cars, however, are checked.

Several members of security criticized the height of the gatehouse, citing the difficulty of being on the passenger side. They

By gauchy Feldstein

In an attempt to obtain firsthand knowledge of the doings for the Conn. College community, a Pandit reporter spent five hours on the force on Saturday, April 2. The following account overlaps two shifts: 8 p.m.—1 a.m.

"If we don't get there, (at the gate house) we're checking the car," stated Roy Eaton, Jr., who is in his 6th year with the force. Eaton, the son of Sgt. Roy Eaton, is a graduate student at Conn., and stressed the fact that often patrolmen are waved by because he recognizes the students.

In response to campus complaints that the cars were being checked at the gatehouse, Eaton explained that cars don't need a sticker and that the student on duty recognizes a student, he'll let them go on through; if he doesn't, he'll ask an ID. All cars, however, are checked.

Several members of security criticized the height of the gatehouse, citing the difficulty of being on the passenger side. They interaction between departments will enable us to achieve some consolidation while maintaining and improving the quality of our instruction.

The College's strength depends upon the quality of the teaching and the intellectual challenge provided by the faculty. At Connecticut this means outstanding performance in the lecture room and in the laboratory class with small groups. The rapidity of change in the world and the rate at which new knowledge and new demands are put upon us are greater than ever before. Faculty members have opportunities to keep abreast of that pace of development. Community development must have high priority during this period of the "student movement.

Turning next to our students, one great difficulty is the number of students seeking admission. Those who will be 17 in the year 1981 will need the same services now their parents received only 15 years ago. But the number will be higher than that in 1970 by almost 25 per cent over the population curve peaks. The obvious implication is a decrease in higher education enrollments during the late 1970's and 1980's. Other factors, however, such as the state of the economy and the labor market, changing life-styles, and public policy on financial aid will all affect the total student body and make the business of projecting enrollments a risky one indeed.

It may be possible to compensate for decreasing admissions by increasing enrollments in the 17 to 21 year-old age group by attracting more students. Students will attend college during the day and in the evening and summer sessions. This is easier to do for those colleges which are located in or near large population centers, but there is little reason to doubt that our work and get a job. But, don't despair if they have not found a job. Late date but the chances will enrich all aspects of campus life. Yet, the enrollment is by no means complete. Although we have achieved a two to three ratio of men to women and most students are well known that we are a coeducational college, but some still doubt it. For example, the sciences, as well as athletics and the scope of extracurricular activities should be increased. The College can strengthen its competitive position for men and women alike.

Great progress has been made recently in the development of athletics at the College. A new one is possible if one can still find a job at this late date but the chances will be reduced.

But even if the number of students seeking a job is reduced, the economic situation in the country, with the recession still alive and unemployment high, changes are not as good as they have been, yet conditions are no worse than last year, and many students did find a job last summer. Great changes have taken place in our lives and it will be necessary to consolidate. Attractive as that plan was, it will be next year's plan. We have less space left in dining arrangements than it would be to reduce our projections. In a number of cases, the equivalent amount. Next year we will cut back to seven dining areas, and from five returns home. For those who have to make a job, we need to continue. No matter what kind of job one is, one great difficulty in planning is the "steady state." Although Connecticut College has the highest priority. Beyond that, I foresee no major construction needs that will match the importance of increasing.

We will have, of course, some modest renovations needed in other buildings to ensure that our buildings are kept in the most effective manner. New London Hall, home of our Botany and Zoology Departments, is in need of an urgent need of remodeling to better serve these Departments. Our endowment has a current market value of about $12 million, or a per student value of $6,000 compared to endowments ranging from $15,000 to $20,000 per student at some of the liberal arts colleges in the northeast with which we compete for students. Only if our endowment and giving for current operations are significantly increased will it be possible to move away from the present state of austerity and cutback and get the many needed improvements in our programs. If, as the population figures suggest, the birthrate continues to decrease somewhat, the need for additional support from sources other than tuition will be even greater. Even if the student decrease 15 years and we will add much additional annual income from other sources to maintain our present level of support. The change in 1969 to a two to three ratio of men to women and most students are well known that we are a coeducational college, but some still doubt it. For example, the sciences, as well as athletics and the scope of extracurricular activities should be increased. The College can strengthen its competitive position for men and women alike.

Food Day is not a day to eat a lot of food, but rather a day to bring attention to various food issues. Since food is our source of life, to understand aspects of the global food situation is a way of achieving a general understanding of economic and political inter- course of man in the world today. Food issues can be studied from many perspectives. Beginning today, Sustenance will cover one or more foodrelated events that will deal with national and international issues: hunger, food production, vegetarians, waste, Congressional legislation, agribusiness, and the environment. We will be set up in Cro from 10-4 Thurs., Fri. and Sat. with information. On Sat. there will be a sample lunch and discussions on the control of the market.

First, the number of small farms is declining drastically, and they have been replaced by large monocultural farms, which are less ecologically sound. Consumers now find that much of the food on the market is high in sugar, fat, cholesterol and food additives. Medical research

It's spring again and guess what that means. That's right, summer is just around the corner. Of course every course knows what summer means; it's time to get a job.

Generally, there are three types of jobs that students look for. Some students want experience in their major field and do not care if others are only concerned with earning money, and others who would have nothing to eat or a few cents. Many students today are trying to get jobs that relate to their major. Often this means that their very existence is at stake. For a low one or even no salary. Students are often volunteer to work in a one or two day week doing volunteer work while they attend college. It can give the employee valuable field experience.

For those who have to make money but can find a volunteer job related to their field, Burt advises, "take an entry-level position to pay the bills. You can work two or three days a week doing volunteer work while you attend college. It can give the employee valuable field experience.

Many graduate students feel that they are not given enough money and are about to do research to perform follow-up correspondence with the employer, was given. But said that one can still find a job at this late date but the chances will be reduced.

But even if the number of students seeking a job is reduced, the economic situation in the country, with the recession still alive and unemployment high, changes are not as good as they have been, yet conditions are no worse than last year, and many students did find a job last summer. Great changes have taken place in our lives and it will be necessary to consolidate. Attractive as that plan was, it will be next year's plan. We have less space left in dining arrangements than it would be to reduce our projections. In a number of cases, the equivalent amount. Next year we will cut back to seven dining areas, and from five returns home. For those who have to make a job, we need to continue. No matter what kind of job one is, one great difficulty in planning is the "steady state." Although Connecticut College has the highest priority. Beyond that, I foresee no major construction needs that will match the importance of increasing.

We will have, of course, some modest renovations needed in other buildings to ensure that our buildings are kept in the most effective manner. New London Hall, home of our Botany and Zoology Departments, is in need of an urgent need of remodeling to better serve these Departments. Our endowment has a current market value of about $12 million, or a per student value of $6,000 compared to endowments ranging from $15,000 to $20,000 per student at some of the liberal arts colleges in the northeast with which we compete for students. Only if our endowment and giving for current operations are significantly increased will it be possible to move away from the present state of austerity and cutback and get the many needed improvements in our programs. If, as the population figures suggest, the birthrate continues to decrease somewhat, the need for additional support from sources other than tuition will be even greater. Even if the student decrease 15 years and we will add much additional annual income from other sources to maintain our present level of support. The change in 1969 to a two to three ratio of men to women and most students are well known that we are a coeducational college, but some still doubt it. For example, the sciences, as well as athletics and the scope of extracurricular activities should be increased. The College can strengthen its competitive position for men and women alike.

Food Day is not a day to eat a lot of food, but rather a day to bring attention to various food issues. Since food is our source of life, to understand aspects of the global food situation is a way of achieving a general understanding of economic and political inter-course of man in the world today. Food issues can be studied from many perspectives. Beginning today, Sustenance will cover one or more foodrelated events that will deal with national and international issues: hunger, food production, vegetarians, waste, Congressional legislation, agribusiness, and the environment. We will be set up in Cro from 10-4 Thurs., Fri. and Sat. with information. On Sat. there will be a sample lunch and discussions on the control of the market.

First, the number of small farms is declining drastically, and they have been replaced by large monocultural farms, which are less ecologically sound. Consumers now find that much of the food on the market is high in sugar, fat, cholesterol and food additives. Medical research
MARK GROGAN

The phrase “student government” has become synonymous with triviality and administrative bullshit among students on campus. Obviously, we have to take general opinion the way it stands, the present system can’t help but limp along. It takes two to tango, and the oversize apathy of one group has to have campus controversies and the other has to remain responsible. My own interest in range planning, the quality of life in light of positional change, the roles people play have been suggested. It is time for me to do, and all of Connecticut College need the perspective I am willing to see.

The next question is “why?” in other words, who is to blame for the problem? It’s understandable to put the blame on the system itself, but a clear lack of perspective by both sides: especially by the members of student government. The perspective I am talking about is that of purpose and direction. The definitions of these two words vary from group to group, but the greatest gulf seems to be between the students and those who represent them, Conn. College.

The divergence is understandable in light of the way people see their roles. The roles people play have a tendency to overshadow the true function of their position and their ability to cope creatively with new and demanding situations. Old definitions of purpose and direction and the roles they define for student government have to be given up for more vital and flexible definitions, which are consistent with the pace of change and the needs of the Conn. College community.

I, Mark Grogan have nominated myself for the position of President of the student body because I am interested in confronting the problems of Conn. College and in coming up with viable solutions (curricular as well as redefining student government completely). I have had no experience in student government, running for more vital and flexible definitions of purpose and direction and the roles they define for student government have to be given up for more vital and flexible definitions, which are consistent with the pace of change and the needs of the Conn. College community.

L doubtless many of the major governmental roles which inextricably are to get stuck in. I have a fresh perspective and the desire and ability to work at revamping Conn. College as an institution and a community.

LESLIE MARGOLIN

With the approach of the new Student Government elections, all of Connecticut College will have the opportunity to take a positive and deliberate measures to help remedy campus-wide problems. We need to develop our campus as a college budget, campus expansion, the calendar, academic administration, “speaking” rung planning, the quality of life on campus, campus instruction and college governance, revisions, to cite only a few.

I cannot guarantee that we will get what we want — no one can honestly offer that assurance. For me, the key is for me, Student Government as a whole will do almost anything more than merely exist. Again, that is an assurance that one individual cannot make. I need your help in the next few weeks to be reestablished in September to me is absurd. We, the students here at Conn now must be willing to take on this challenge of keeping us represented. I feel strongly enough about the importance of student representation to run for the office of student government president.

Over the past few years student government has had the respect of the administration and faculty as a voice of the student body. It was recognized as an equal part of the decision making process, but during the past year it has lost respect due to a lack of student participation. There is no reason or excuse for letting a handful of students make all the decisions without hearing from the people they are representing. The officers can not possibly know how all of the students feel or think about issues facing the college. As student governing body, members of our college community help to guide these officers in determining the official opinions of the student body.

During my past year here at Conn nearly everyone I’ve met has told me that this is a great college, a tremendous place to go to school, how everyone loves it here, yet there are very few who are willing to take an active role to make it better. It’s time for both the support for Conn by becoming involved. I hope during my term of office that I will give students a chance to participate in school-government instrumental work and some other dorm functions, and give my view on college government life with the broadest eyes I can hope to develop a better way for students to know what is happening in Conn. College and to avoid the crisis information system we had last year with the calendar change. Regardless of anything I or any other officer might do next year, it will not be of any use unless we have your support.

MARY WRIGHT

During the past few weeks the former impossibility of “temporarily” abolishing student government has become closer to a reality. All the values, standards, and concepts of student representation that have worked for six months to be reestablished in September to me is absurd. We, the students here at Conn now must be willing to take on this challenge of keeping us represented. I feel strongly enough about the importance of student representation to run for the office of student government president.

Michael Colomes

In theory, where an honor code exists there should be no need for a judiciary board at all. However since the Connecticut College community is only human, such an institution, along with the various college regulations becomes a necessity. The Judiciary Board is the instrument through which the honor code is implemented and judiciously and, therefore, ask for your co-operation and support.
Election Platforms

Vice-President

DONNA HODGE

I would like to introduce myself to the Connecticut College community by first stating that I am a member of the Class of 1978. I bring myself to the attention of the campus community because I am currently seeking the office of vice-president of Student Government here at Connecticut College.

My reason for seeking this office essentially is because I am interested in seeking a sound student governing body at Conn College. I realize that the only way we are going to achieve this is through the process of Student Government elections. And that is why I am running. I am interested in the overall student involvement on this campus, and the role that we as students have in the various decision-making processes of the college.

My qualifications for running for this office is simply that I want the job. By wanting and running for this office, I am making the commitment to you the student body, that I am willing to give my time and energy to doing the best possible job that I can. Too many times we sit down and complain about things among ourselves, while never taking the initiative to try and make a real change. Running for this office is my way of taking the initiative in an attempt to bring a stronger, more active student governing body.

In speaking with many of the students on this campus, the major areas of concern are (1) the rising costs of attending Conn College; (2) what will be done with the old library once the new one is completed; (3) needed work for more social, and recreational activities; and (4) improvements in the sanitary conditions of the dorms.

I am not in the position to make any promises as to what can or cannot be done about these and other issues. I can say, however, that if I am elected these issues will be looked into and given the utmost concern and attention.

My involvement in extra-curricular activities thus far includes: student-faculty committee, member of the Finance Orientation Program; and member of the Executive Board of Unity House; member of the Social Committee of Unico; member of Parent's Weekend Program; and involvement in intramural sports.

In closing, I ask for the support of the college community in my bid for this office, and I would appreciate everyone coming out and voting so we achieve a quorum.

JUDY NEWMAN

Many aspects of Connecticut College need to be altered to guarantee maintenance of the high quality of education that this school seeks to provide. We are witnessing a crucial period in Conn. history, and to eliminate vulnerability, decisive and immediate action must be taken. Having spent almost one full year here, I have made an assessment of some of the things that we need and where we are going. In light of the apathy evident in recent student government elections, I have become convinced that revitalization of student government is imperative.

I, JUDY NEWMAN, would, if elected vice-president, work for that revitalization, trying to bring coherence and stimulation to the areas under the vice-president's jurisdiction.

clubs are essential part of Conn. College as they are in the forefront of extracurricular activities. While some clubs are strong, others are weak. As Student Club co-ordinator I would work for the development of juniorship to the clubs, inviting opportunities for students to participate actively in viable extracurricular programs.

The financial situation at Conn. is one which directly affects everyone. As chairman of the sub-committee on finances I would strive to be a conscientious consumer of financial matters. Budgetary priorities must be analysed and reevaluated to secure a smooth economic foundation on which our school can operate. Such matters involving, among other things, funding of clubs and the financial support which organizations in this school receive.

The student government organization is an essential one at Conn. It speaks for the student body, and guarantees that the students are justly represented. I would seek to eliminate the source of apathy that was so evident in recent elections. As chairman of the election board, I would ensure that the duties of the officers are sufficiently publicized and that the importance of student government is realized, in an attempt to stir the consciousness of the Conn. College student body.

The most important jobs of the vice-president is that of the non-voting advisor to the freshman class, and the overseeing of elections to that body. It is within the freshman class that much of our potential rests. Freshmen must be geared towards activity at Conn. The elected officers of this class must be able to contribute strength and cohesion to the school.

I would work to make sure that if I become a member of this stronger initiative and use its power more decisively on issues concerning students.

ANN RUMAGE

I, Ann Rumage, am a candidate for Vice President of Student Government and have been actively involved in Student Government since my freshman year. I have had the opportunity of serving as secretary of Student Government, house president, as a member of the Development Committee and the Student-Trustee Committee. Through these experiences I feel I can effectively deal with students, as well as faculty and administration.

Next fall will be a new experience for the college community. The number of student representatives on the student-faculty committees have been cut in half which adds more importance to the Student Government Association. Student Assembly and College Council will deal with more problems and grievances which directly relate to each student: the new committees won't be able to deal effectively with the important problems of work. So the assembly will have even more responsibility to the dormitories and to the issues and perceive student opinion. But students will have to let their house presidents know their opinions on the problems. Then Student Assembly can be a responsible governmental body with student power. With less student representation there will be a greater need for a stronger Student Government.

Student Government must get a sense of student's priorities on the budgeting problem. As chairman of the Finance Sub-committee, I must find a balance between athletics, academics and social board needs. A fair decision can only be made with student input as a guide. At last election, it was obvious that more people want to participate and solve problems but don't know how. By working more closely with Freshman Class Government, perhaps more freshmen will want to be involved and will learn early how to become active in Student Government. Upperclassmen can also help freshmen by leading them in positive ways.

Student Government must help lead the students in solving problems and improving the Connecticut College community. Many problems have been forced on the community due to our financial position. The positive long range goals must be reached through proactive planning. Student Government helps solve these problems as well as day-to-day problems which directly and indirectly affect all of us especially students. Next year will be a change for the college, and Student Government needs to be more open than ever to be responsive to student grievances and desires. Student Government must control a forceful position with student input strengthening our stance.

ALAN SCHLESINGER

Election Platforms for the Vice- President of Student Government

Alan Schlesinger advocates the following:

A vital reorganization of Student Government

A reevaluation of students needs and desired activities

Create new interest and demand in a Student Government meaningful to the student body

Student Government should take a stronger initiative and use its power more actively on issues concerning students.
Music dept. recital:
Poetry set to music

A recital of contemporary music sponsored by the Connecticut College department of music will be given tonight at 8:30 p.m., Dana Concert Hall, Cummings Art Center.

Soprano Anita Tellemene, who received her master's degree in music from Connecticut College, will be accompanied by concert pianist Claire Dale of New London; pianist Mary Hubbard of Ledyard, Yale University student; visiting instructor of harp Susan Davis, a member of the Eastern Connecticut Symphony; and U.S. Coast Guard Band member John Poltz, on percussion.

The program of poetry set to music will begin with "Quattro Liriche di Antonio Machado" (1948) by Antoino Machado, followed by Stephan George's "Fun Lieder, Op. 4" (1908) and "Madrigali, Book III" (1969) by Federico Garcia Lorca. The musical adaptation of Lorca's poetry was arranged especially for the harp, percussion and voice.

Following intermission will be the continuation of "Madrigals, Book III.

Eight songs of The Season of Time from the texts of tanka poetry of ancient Japan and three poems of Associate Professor of English Robley Evans will then be presented. Mr. Evans' poems are "City Night" (1974), "The Handkerchief Overture" (1974) and "The Letter" is an Ottoman Princeling or Small Swash" (1974).

Concluding the evening will be the musical version of five poems by Dorothy Parker, "The Paw in Pagans" (1967), "Comment" (III), "Resume II," "Con- jecture" (IV) and "War Song" (V).

One of the most outstanding chamber music organizations of the German Democratic Republic, The Berlin String Quartet will perform in Dana Hall at Connecticut College Tuesday at 8:30 p.m.

Mozart's "Quartet in D Major, K. 499" will open the program; followed by "Six Bagatelles" by Anton Weer and Hugo Wolf's "Italian Serenade in G Major." Following intermission, the group will perform "Quartet in D minor" and "Death and the Maiden" by Franz Schubert.

The ensemble was founded in 1965 and in 1971 became the first musicians from the German Democratic Republic to tour the United States.

The four musicians: Kari Suka, first violin, Klaus Peters, second violin, Karl-Heinz Dommus, viola and Mathis Fassender, violincello, held leading positions in the Staatskapelle of East Berlin.

In the 1966 International Music Competition in Geneva, the ensemble was a prize-winner and was awarded the special "Prix Josephovits" for the best interpretation of a Bela Bartok String Quartet.

The performance by the Berlin String Quartet is the final concert in the 1974-75 Artist Series at Connecticut College.

Raitt gives phenomenal performance
Before packed house in Palmer

by June-Ann Greesly

Plaudees to WCNI and the Conn. College Social Board for bringing to this campus one of the best rock concert ever. Last Thursday night, "Bonnie Raitt" and Roomful of Blues performed in a remarkable fashion for the cheering and enthusiastic packed house in Palmer Auditorium.

Because of some technical difficulties, the show did not begin until sometime (20 minutes or so) past the hour. Then Roomful of Blues came on. They are a local Connecticut band, and have been around for about eight years.

Some people do not really enjoy them; they are not great musicians, and their music is a blend of traditional blues and country -- a kind of rural blues. But this reporter thoroughly enjoyed the performance.

They have an earthy, moving sound that naturally inspires hand-clapping and body-swaying, and over an hour of that kind of music can drowse any audience, never mind one populated with a few professional mime artists, who never mind one populated with a few professional mime artists, who never mind one populated with a few professional mime artists, who never mind one populated with a few professional mime artists.

Here's a simple truth. The music can drowse any audience, never mind one populated with a few professional mime artists, who never mind one populated with a few professional mime artists, who never mind one populated with a few professional mime artists, who never mind one populated with a few professional mime artists.

The plot involves the invasion of a French town by the Germans and the subsequent destruction of the world.

"Bonnie got sick today, and won't be able to make it tonight, but we'll play and pretend that she's here." A bit of theatrics, but suitable since it was April Fool's Day.

There were many lighthearted jokes and ad-libbing at the beginning. They began a few chords, then Bonnie Raitt walked on, with a flourish of her blue handkerchief.

She was phenomenal. This isn't meant to sound overdone, but it's just the simple truth. The excellent performance is attributed partly to her, and partly to the audience. Rarely at Palmer has there been such an agreeable and responsive crowd.

Ms. Raitt (who is a Radcliffe dropout, a Quaker, and the daughter of John Raitt, a Broadway performer) has been known to play anywhere from twenty minutes to an hour.

But Thursday night she gladly continued to play for nearly two hours. There is not much to be said for the musical ability of her band; nor Ms. Raitt's, they are all competent. But what heightened their performance even more so continued on page sixteen
Keith’s Column

Summer sounds

by Keith Ritter

As the warmer weather draws nearer, so too does the intensity of summer music. This, to me, is music: that captures the heat, pulse, and obtureropness of an August night in a city. Most groups are on tour during the summer, publicizing albums which have come out in the spring. And that, for readers, is where we are now.

Last summer, disco was the rage. However, this summer (and is) formula music; it lacks spontaneity. This summer will be, I believe, the summer of Latin music.

Now, some Latin music has always been around, usually in jazz circles. And there have been some attempts at commercial Latin-Rock; Santan, Malo, Barrabansa, etc. But this year I believe that people like Palmieri, Colon, Puente and others are going to be seen by a wider audience than they have ever attracted before.

One of the reasons I feel this way is the new Santana album is getting. This album, titled Amigos, is practically a study in differences between disco music and Latin music. And every person I’ve played this album for has loved the Latin music and hated the disco dreck.

Now, Santana’s music may not have been the best Latin music; it was too electric an enough of the power of it was lost in layers of overdrives. But, to say that it was bad; I an an admirer of the Santana band. But it was not pure Latin music. However, Santana has been renewed.

The first cut on Amigos, “Dance, Sister, Dance”, is the perfect blend of Rock and Latin music. It’s the perfect search for. I can think of no way to improve upon this song. The second cut is a remake of “Incident at Neshoba” and interesting for its change of tempo.

Then the disco music begins and the album collapses. Three of the remaining five songs are disco songs, and in another two, “Gitan” and “Europe” are among the best Santana has ever done.

All in all, this is a good album. Its inconsistencies can be overlooked in light of the amazing development the band makes in its development of a new sound.

Only bassist Dave Brown is left from the original Santana band. Keyboard player Tom Coster has changed style and a bit and drummer Ndugu is a great replacement for Mike Shrieve.

Poet, critic

To read

John Hollander, poet, critic and editor, will read from his poetry on Sunday, April 28 at 9 p.m. in Knowlton living room. The reading is sponsored by the English Department’s Colloquium Series.

A native of New York City, John Hollander received his B.A. and M.A. from Columbia University in 1950 and 1952 respectively, and his Ph.D. from Indiana University in 1959. From 1964 to 1967 he was Junior Fellow of the Society of Fellows at Harvard University and taught at Connecticut College and Yale.

In 1954 Mr. Hollander taught at the Pratt Institute of the American Cyanamid Lecturer and was the Visiting Professor at the Bates College in Andover, Massachusetts. He was a student American at the Universities of Chicago, Harvard, and the Sorbonne. He has also studied at the Institute Americana in Mexico City.

He spent 1967-68 at Churchill College, Cambridge University as the Overlook Fellow and in 1972-74 he was the Senior Fellow of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

John Hollander has been a professor of English at Hunter College and in the Graduate School of City University of New York.

Conn. professor organizes exhibit

Featuring synchromatic artwork

by Jim Diskant

Normally art history professors only organize art shows at that particular college, but Gall Levin Theodore, assistant professor of art history, has researched and organized an exhibit at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City. This exhibit features the work of the American artist Morgan Russell (1886-1953).

Theodore has just completed her doctoral thesis on Wassily Kandinsky’s influence and the American avant-garde, 1912-1930 at Rutgers University. During this research she came across some old documents and a large collection of Morgan’s Russell’s work.

Russell founded and named a new art in 1913, the synchromist style. The movement’s name is analogy to music. He combined fauvism and cubism to form synchronism with rhythmic curves. Projecting lights and color through lines and planes would be his object. It is a form of abstract art.

Loneliness and other problems of City are themes of ‘Taxi Driver’

“The Taxi Driver”, now playing at the Garde Theatre, is New York City’s new film, which deals with one man’s loneliness and how he deals with that.

Director Scorcese incorporates many themes into his story. As well as loneliness, he presents other problems which include violence, unfilled love, loneliness of a large city, venality and chaos. The story, as well as the film, works because of the authenticity of these problems in today’s society and the possible ways in which they may be solved.

This is an extremely powerful film and its impact is huge. At times, the film is very violent, which is necessary and effective in the film. Therefore, the viewer should be warned that “Taxi Driver” is a hard film to digest and is not recommended for all.

The story opens in New York City, which is seen as a living hell. Porn shops, pimps and prostitutes are everywhere. Scorsese never ventures into an underworld. Among this setting, we see Travis, a lonely man, who is unable to sleep and is addicted to seeing porn flicks. He takes a night job as a taxi driver so that his sleepless nights will pass more quickly.

One day, while walking the streets, he sees a girl, whose beauty and supposed purity over him. He becomes an addict of dehumanization in a city that normally represents only filth to him. He takes her to a porn film, which disgusts her and she leaves him. This rejection makes him search for vengeance and he decides to assassinate the presidential candidate for whom the woman works.

Dancers perform in Spring Concert

Students perform “A Set Piece with Piano” at this week’s Spring Dance Concert. This dance involved 25 dancers and was choreographed by Lenore Latimer. Latimer was one of four professional artists who directed and choreographed the pieces for this performance. They are in part-time residence at Conn.
Social Board

GOOBER GILDAY

My name is Goober Gilday and I am the Deputy Chairman of the Social Board. If elected, I intend to make quite a few changes in the way that we currently handle social activities on this campus in the coming Spring and next academic year. The Social Board, as you're all aware, is going to party. If you're still, don't vote for me.

Working paper

continued from page five faculty development. More scholarship aid should be provided. The aesthetic program should be developed. The list could easily be added to, but let me elaborate on two items, scholarship aid and faculty salaries.

We are now offering some form of financial aid to almost one-third of our students. As the tuition gap between the public and private sectors widens, we may have to move to the point where closer to half of the student body could get some form of aid, if the academic quality and diversity of the student body are to be maintained.

For the fall of 1978, the College has a goal of $1 "admit/deny" letters to applicants qualifying for financial aid — letters which offer admission, but deny financial assistance. Although we have not reached the availability of funds that we were hoping for, 100 students would have enrolled if scholarship aid were available. In this academic year's package of $5,000, the College would have needed about $90,000 in funds to fund needed scholarships to take these students. An increase in gift income for scholarship purposes of $46,000 plus the income generated from $900,000 of additional endowment would have closed the gap. In view of the likelihood of continuing inflationary pressures, I suggest the goal of increasing the endowment outlay to meet these requirements, which would require additional income of $2 million in the next seven years.

All figures for 1974-1975 are our faculty salaries, when compared with all other four-year colleges in our category ranking between the 50th and 60th percentiles for full and associate professors, and slightly below the 40th percentile for assistant professors. To raise our position to where full and associate professors would be at the 70th percentile level and assistant professor at the 80th percentile, it would require additional revenues of over $150,000 per year plus an endowment equivalent to the income from $2.7 million of additional endowment at 5 per cent yield.

The requirements which I have outlined here are summarized in the Appendix. Most of these figures are only rough estimates to get the planning process under way. In cases where more information is needed, I urge the College to set the goal of raising the total of $32 million over a seven-year period. In figures from 1966-1967 through 1974-1975, the College acquired $8.3 million in funds from gift income for scholarships, and $16.4 million for current operations. The combined yearly average over that period was $2.08 million; over the last three years it was $2.3 million. The goal of raising this to almost $3.5 million should not be considered an unattainable one, but the continued quality of the College demands that we attain it.

Vegetarians

Public Interest, have pointed out the dangers of chemical preservation of meat, and the use of food additives heavily used by the meat industry. Anthropology continued to show the ethical and moral implications of superior health and long life spans whose diets include large amounts of meat. The American diet. (National Geographic often carries articles on such matters.)

But where do vegetarians get their protein? Is a vegetarian diet nutritionally adequate? Isn't it boring? Are there people who avoid eating meat, don't they realize that death is a certainty? And those 'ethical vegetarians' who avoid killing, boring? And those ethical vegetarians who avoid killing, and they deserve answers. It seems that the space does not permit in this article if there is sufficient interest, I will continue this article next week to answer those other questions about vegetarians and vegetarianism. Drop your questions and comments in my box, No. 323, this week. Also plan to attend the food issues fair today, Friday and Saturday at the Cro Lobby, for more information on these and other food related issues. The fair is sponsored by

continued from page seven

continued from page seven a new list of priorities, and use the available funds accordingly.

administration and faculty on the following issues:

1. Course offerings
2. Degree requirements
3. Students' rights
4. The calendar
5. Budget allocation to student organizations and activities

-Fight for a strong Student Government that will be responsive to the entire college community.

And above all, we must realize that Student Government is an essential part of our college life. Dissolution would translate into zero representation.

-Work extensively with the administration and faculty on the following issues:

1. Course offerings
2. Degree requirements
3. Students' rights
4. The calendar
5. Budget allocation to student organizations and activities

-Fight for a strong Student Government that will be responsive to the entire college community.

And above all, we must realize that Student Government is an essential part of our college life. Dissolution would translate into zero representation.

-Work extensively with the Don't knock it

continued from page four

Holmes, Lyman-Allyn, and Dean Watrous's house.

The evening (4-12) shift patrols the same area, but locks all buildings and turns lights off. The day shift (8-4) also patrols the entire campus.

All three shifts handle the money from Harris and the snack shop in Cro.

On each shift, usually two men ride, two patrol the campus on foot (referred to as Unit Two), and two check cars at the gate house.

At 5:00 p.m., Palmer Library reported a malfunctioning Xerox machine, which had jammed and called paper to burn. The machine was turned off.

Shortly afterward, Wisniewski and Sgt. Eaton patrolled the campus, while Whitham and John Day, who has been with the force for two years, checked

A caller reported a stranger wandering in Lambdin at 9:30.
When the driving unit arrived, no one fitting the description was sighted, and the caller was not in his room.

Security has no arresting power; they can only hold a person until the police arrive.

They have not had any serious trouble apprehending suspects,
"just getting kicked," said Officer Day.

At 10:20, Whitham and Wisniewski patrolled in the car.
Day returned to Cro to patrol on foot, and Sgt. Eaton manned the gatehouse.

During the latter part of the shift security performed lock-up.
This involves checking all doors and windows in the buildings. The following buildings were checked:
New London, Hale Lab,
Post Office, Blackstone, Smith-
Burdick, Windham, the Chapel, Cammins, the Service Building at south campus, Palmer Auditorium,
Bill, and Fanning.

Unit One returned to the gatehouses at 11:45. The housekeeper of K.B. was there, reporting the sighting of a large rat in his dorm's dining room.

At midnight, a new shift took over. They were Paul Stublick, who had been working here for three days, and Dick Varney, who has been with the force for 7 years.

Varney, who is the only man experienced on all three shifts, usually works the day shift. He, too, was working at night to alleviate the shortage of men.
Commenting on his job, Varney said, "I've really enjoyed it. Most of the students on this campus are basically good kids." He added that it is hard to get help for the force; he had been working 14 days in a row. He said that a major concern of the men right now is the selection of the new Security Chief.

The driving unit proceeded to patrol the campus. A student was stopped for going the wrong way down one way road in front of the new library.

Unit One also went off campus,
checking Abbey and Holmes Hall.

Two more men joined the shift at 12:45: Michael Miller, who's been here two years, and Tracy Speaks, with the force for 8 months.

At 1:00 the Power House, which calls every hour to let security know that the lone man's decor. We're ready to you may need for any de-it-ground beef. We're going to the hard-hitting

our order

at 1:40, and the market!

beast discrimination

get out of a dead-end job

avoid family

and much,

muck more!

$1.75

391 Williams Street

442-8567

GATES

and

BECKWITH

Come down to Hodges Square and find those painting, carpentry, and appliance wares that will enhance your room's decor. We're ready to help you throughout the college year with any supplies you may need for any do-it-yourself projects.

391 Williams Street

442-8567

BELLIN'S

PHARMACY

393 Williams Street

Phone: 442-1818

THE COMPLETE PHARMACY

FREE DELIVERY

* Special on 126 and 110

film developing

12 Exposures for $2.95

20 Exposures for $4.45

WANTED

"BEEF RUSTLERS"

"Greatest

in History."

FOR KIDS

Boy Burger

Fries and

SODA RINGS

French Fries

French Bread

Crisp Lettuce Salad

76¢

$1.75

Ground Beef Dinner

Special

88 OCEAN AVE.

443-0870

OCEAN

PIZZA PALACE

Specializes in

Birthdays

And Gatherings

SEAFOOD - SPAGHETTI

HOT OVEN GRINDERS

FREE DELIVERY

1 FREE PIZZA WITH EVERY ORDER OF 4

Women! Get yours!

LETLY POGREBIN, successful editor, writer and mother gives you the hard-hitting practical facts you need to:

• enter the job market!

• beat sex discrimination

• get out of a dead-end job

• avoid family

• and much,

much more!

$1.75

AVON

FAMILY RESTAURANT

Offer expires 3/28/76

We're looking for one political activist on this campus.

That's right—just one individual committed to liberty should be reading this ad. Could it be you?
We're the Young Libertarian Alliance—the college affiliates of the rapidly-growing national Libertarian Party.
We're organizing YLA chapters on every major campus, and we need a coordinator right here.

Are you qualified for the job? The YLA coordinator must be someone who's dedicated to achieving a free society through political action. He—or she—will be responsible for establishing a YLA chapter, organizing meetings, rallies and demonstrations, and publicizing libertarianism.

The Libertarian Party, though less than five years old, is now organized in all 50 states. Our platform calls for a strict respect for civil liberties, a non-interventionist foregn policy, and a free-market economy.

Roger MacBride, our presidential candidate, is a non-political philosopher who recognizes that the Republican and Democratic Parties are entrenched, establishment institutions whose only goal is the perpetuation of their own power.
The Libertarian Party is a new alternative—a young and dynamic political force that's committed to individual freedom and opposed to government oppression in

If you think you've got what it takes to be a YLA coordinator, write or call us collect. We've got a campus information kit that will get you started. And we'll give you all the help and advice we can.

Our final word: As a YLA campus coordinator, you'll have a lot of hard work. And the salary is zilch. But there is one small compensation: You'll be helping to achieve Freedom in Our Time.

YOUNG LIBERTARIAN ALLIANCE

1516 "P" Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20005
(202) 232-2089

arrived at Marshall, and discovered that the alarm had been set off in the Complex.

All floors on the west side of the Complex were checked, but there was no sign of fire.

John Day attributes some of the lack of security at Croon to the fact that students aren't informed. "They don't know what we do, they think all we do is ride."
Professor Robert W. Jordan will be speaking on "Freedom and the Interior Life" tonight at 7:30 in 113 New London, as part of the continuing lecture series De Litteris IV.

The Development Committee is sponsoring a telethon to raise money for the operating budget. The telethon will take place on April 12-15, 22-24, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. in the development office in Fanning. Volunteers are needed. Contact Robbie Roberts ext. 586 or post office box 1137.
Now you can stop spending so much on clothes.

Introducing Hit or Miss. Every college student's favorite store. You may have heard of us before; maybe you've even shopped at a Hit or Miss store in another town. And now there's one right here in Groton.

Hit or Miss is the store that sells the very same famous name clothes you see selling in department stores and expensive boutiques. Only we sell them for 30% to 50% less! Tops, bottoms, dresses, sweaters, jackets, you name it. Everything you need for a college wardrobe, and everything marked 30% to 50% off regular stores' prices!

At Hit or Miss we cut out the famous name labels, but you won't have any trouble recognizing the quality. We've also cut out charge accounts, fancy store decor and other unnecessary extras that can jack up the price you pay. So we can offer you real bargains.

Come in now to the Grand Opening of Hit or Miss in Groton. And check back often. Because our big selection of clothing bargains changes so often - we get new merchandise every morning - that we can't promise what you'll find from day to day.

Except a good chance to spend less and take home more.
Playoff berths undecided
As Hamilton wins two

by Steve Price

As the regular intramural basketball season enters its final two weeks, the playoff picture is still unclear. The top four teams from each division will make the playoffs, but inter-division play has brought changes in the standings and left several playoff spots undecided.

Hamilton has been the most surprising team in the league so far. Last week they beat second place Division I teams, Plant and Branford, and previously undefeated South-Burwick. Danny Berlin led Hamilton to the 66-45 upset of South-Burwick by scoring 18 points in addition to controlling the tempo of the game. Tom Bell and Marc Offenhartz each had 12 points for Burwick. Hamilton improved their record to 7-2 by defeating Plant Branford, 14-47. Hamilton's Jim Barnett was the game's high scorer with 20 points while Ted Von Glahn had 19 for Plant Branford.

as Hamilton wins two

Crew turnouts larger than ever;
Oarsmen drop opener to Yale

by Walter Sive

With the preponderance of fans around the campus one might think the week would have meant a lot to the oarsmen, spent their spring breaks just soaking up the sun. With a few dedicated athletes, however, this is no case.

The crew team, back from a successful training trip at Rollins College, Florida, is now readying itself for upcoming races. They hope to do at least as well as they did last year, which was highlighted by a second place finish for the men's lightweight in the nationals. The team has been going through extensive workouts in order to insure that everyone is in top physical condition to meet the competition.

Crew seems to be a somewhat obscure sport at Conn. Few from its origins as a kind of upper class pastime. The movement of the boat is deceptively sleek, like a swimming centipede, but still the shell pulls quickly and effortlessly on a smoothly pulsating machine.

Enough fantasy. The team is comprised of twenty returning oarsmen and women along with a group of enthusiastic hopefuls. The tension can be seen in the eyes of the preparations, and the flash of the finish.

The men's varsity lightweights looked best, losing by only a length in their race. The women's JV, although losing to Yale, did beat a boat from U.Mass., and the women's varsity lost by two lengths, a margin substantially better than in the same race last year.

It should be kept in mind that Conn. often peaks late in the season when races are most important. This is evidenced by the fact that the men's lightweights didn't win a single race last season until their second place finish in the nationals.

A crew meet is always a rather fascinating experience. It is a unique combination of circus atmosphere, tradition, and a little bit of stiffness that derives from its origins as a kind of upper class pursuit. The tension can be observed two ways: in the ritual of the preparations, and the flash of the finish.

There is always the long buildup to the moment when the starting gun starts everything sprawling and heaving down the lake. Not for a second, however, does the grace and tradition break. The boats all pull straight off the line, betraying no sense of the strain and concentration involved, except in the orders of the cox and the signs of the competing oarsmen.

The movement of the boat is deceptively sleek, like a swimming centipede, but still the shell pulls quickly and effortlessly on a smoothly pulsating machine.

Enough fantasy. The team is comprised of twenty returning oarsmen and women along with a group of enthusiastic hopefuls.

The tension can be seen in the eyes of the preparations, and the flash of the finish.

This is the largest turnout the team has ever had and one can only look to the future since only three members of the team are seniors.

Varsity oarsman Peter Jarret before ...

... and after

Baseball

Williams was heard saying, "I'll hope there will be a good grip on the ball."

As the regular intramural basketball season enters its final two weeks, the playoff picture is still unclear. The top four teams from each division will make the playoffs, but inter-division play has brought changes in the standings and left several playoff spots undecided.

Hamilton has been the most surprising team in the league so far. Last week they beat second place Division I teams, Plant and Branford, and previously undefeated South-Burwick. Danny Berlin led Hamilton to the 66-45 upset of South-Burwick by scoring 18 points in addition to controlling the tempo of the game. Tom Bell and Marc Offenhartz each had 12 points for Burwick. Hamilton improved their record to 7-2 by defeating Plant Branford, 14-47. Hamilton's Jim Barnett was the game's high scorer with 20 points while Ted Von Glahn had 19 for Plant Branford.

Upcoming Events
April 9: Men's Golf-Home - 2:00 p.m.
April 10: Men's and Women's Crew - at Colchester, Ct.
April 10: Men's Tennis - at Fairfield University - 3:00 p.m.
April 11: Men's Tennis - at Clark University - 2:00 p.m.
April 14: Men's Tennis - at Clark University - 2:00 p.m.

Springtime at Conn.
Can only mean tennis

by Baseline Roemer

Tennis has traditionally been the gentrillion's game. Cutting into the upper crust of society, many have viewed it as the elite enjoying this intellectual thinking man's game. As spring slowly blows into the greater New London metropolis, retired women, men, and women, laced in white tennis apparel, bound to the courts of play at Camp Connecticut College. Yes, there are more women players than men this year. This promises to be a very exciting race due to the high level of competition.

Their race Saturday, April 4 with Yale, although bringing no victories, was beneficial in that the team was able to row in its first organized race of the season.

Roast and Toast Nominations

Nomination forms are available in the Physical Education Office for the annual Physical Education Roast and Toast. Students are invited to nominate seniors who have made consistent, outstanding contributions to the Physical Education Program in Intercollegiate Athletics, Intramurals, Physical Education Classes or Club Sports.

Nomination forms can be made from April 12th through April 15th.

Playoff berths undecided
As Hamilton wins two

by Steve Price

In other games, J.A. upset the first seed Gonzales, scoring 18 points. Bob Hampton had 18 points for the Faculty. Bob Ayer then powered in 30 points to lead the Faculty to victory in their next game, a 71-53 victory over Smith. Dan Nickoloff, 11, who made several three pointers, was the game's high scorer with 20 points while Ted Von Glahn had 19 for Plant Branford.

by Baseline Roemer

Tennis has traditionally been the gentleman's game. Cutting into the upper crust of society, many have viewed it as the elite enjoying this intellectual thinking man's game. As spring slowly blows into the greater New London metropolis, retired women, men, and women, laced in white tennis apparel, bound to the courts of play at Camp Connecticut College. Yes, there are more women players than men this year. This promises to be a very exciting race due to the high level of competition.

Their race Saturday, April 4 with Yale, although bringing no victories, was beneficial in that the team was able to row in its first organized race of the season.

Roast and Toast Nominations

Nomination forms are available in the Physical Education Office for the annual Physical Education Roast and Toast. Students are invited to nominate seniors who have made consistent, outstanding contributions to the Physical Education Program in Intercollegiate Athletics, Intramurals, Physical Education Classes or Club Sports.

Nomination forms can be made from April 12th through April 15th.

Playoff berths undecided
As Hamilton wins two

by Steve Price

As the regular intramural basketball season enters its final two weeks, the playoff picture is still unclear. The top four teams from each division will make the playoffs, but inter-division play has brought changes in the standings and left several playoff spots undecided.

Hamilton has been the most surprising team in the league so far. Last week they beat second place Division I teams, Plant and Branford, and previously undefeated South-Burwick. Danny Berlin led Hamilton to the 66-45 upset of South-Burwick by scoring 18 points in addition to controlling the tempo of the game. Tom Bell and Marc Offenhartz each had 12 points for Burwick. Hamilton improved their record to 7-2 by defeating Plant Branford, 14-47. Hamilton's Jim Barnett was the game's high scorer with 20 points while Ted Von Glahn had 19 for Plant Branford.

Upcoming Events
April 9: Men's Golf-Home - 2:00 p.m.
April 10: Men's and Women's Crew - at Colchester, Ct.
April 10: Men's Tennis - at Fairfield University - 3:00 p.m.
April 11: Men's Tennis - at Clark University - 2:00 p.m.
April 14: Men's Tennis - at Clark University - 2:00 p.m.

Springtime at Conn.
Can only mean tennis

by Baseline Roemer

Tennis has traditionally been the gentleman's game. Cutting into the upper crust of society, many have viewed it as the elite enjoying this intellectual thinking man's game. As spring slowly blows into the greater New London metropolis, retired women, men, and women, laced in white tennis apparel, bound to the courts of play at Camp Connecticut College. Yes, there are more women players than men this year. This promises to be a very exciting race due to the high level of competition.

Their race Saturday, April 4 with Yale, although bringing no victories, was beneficial in that the team was able to row in its first organized race of the season.

Roast and Toast Nominations

Nomination forms are available in the Physical Education Office for the annual Physical Education Roast and Toast. Students are invited to nominate seniors who have made consistent, outstanding contributions to the Physical Education Program in Intercollegiate Athletics, Intramurals, Physical Education Classes or Club Sports.

Nomination forms can be made from April 12th through April 15th.
First Conn. men's lacrosse game Receives enthusiastic home support
by Davenport Scott and Peter Stokes

No, those aren't savage Native-Americans that are walking on each other's heads. They're frustrated freshmen, sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors, now having a new Conn. sport - Lacrosse.

This cold and windy March inspired more than 30 students to participate on the Conn. Collette Lacrosse team. The team is under the direction of James Courteny, a man with high hopes and great determination. With the help of Davenport Scott, Mike Weimik, and Athletic Director Charles Luce, Courteny obtained equipment, field space, and a full schedule.

There are a wide range of talents and physiques on the team with participants spurred on by enthusiasm which rises with the temperature. Daily improvement by call can be noted as well.

April 5, the team made Conn. College history when they held the first men's lacrosse game. Under fine weather conditions, and spurred on by an enthusiastic crowd of home folks, the Conn. squad faced the Coosurton. The visitors, seasoned by three games already under their belt this year, was able to snatch an early lead. In the second quarter, however, midfielder Peter Stokes shot the Conn. squad into the scoreboard. By halftime, though, Conn.'s lack of experience proved a major factor as they found themselves behind 6-1.

The second half proved more profitable for Conn., as attackman Bob Kebab netted two goals, while Andy Smoller and John Clark scored three more. The fine scoring combined with spectacular saves by goalie Jim Glick proved unsuccessful, however, as Southern Connecticut won Conn.'s opener 13-4.

Other game standouts were co-captains Paul Funk and Andy Smoller with midfielders Tom Deedy, Ben Coode, Beaver Morris and Austin Wicke adding to Conn.'s power. The team was also spurred by Peter Musser, Chris Abbot and Kim Rosenbaum at attack and Phil Marquis, Brad Rest and Chris Calter on defense. Although the team was not able to nab a victory in their first outing of the year and in Conn.'s history, all in all it was an admirable performance. The next game will be on April 17 against the University of Hartford (away).

Table Soccer

Paul McCarthy teamed with Harris Thompson and Bill Lattanzi joined with Dan Samatson to represent Connecticut College at the Region 1 Recreation Tournaments held February 21 at Boston University.

Conn. was one of seven schools competing for the Region 1 table soccer championship, which led to a sixth in the nationals, scheduled to be played in April at Southern Illinois — Edwardsville.

With over 30 participating, Connecticut College was one of 40 Institutions from Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Upper New England and Atlantic Canada to participate. In addition to the table soccer tournament, competition bowling, chess, pocket billiards and table tennis also took place that weekend.

Entry fees and travel reimbursement to tournament participants were jointly provided by the Physical Education and Crozier-Williams Departments.

In campus play, Samelson and Lattanzi ranked number one to win a $10 cash prize. Placing second were Buckwheat and Thompson followed by Paul Funk and Tom Slaughter.

Soccer team attends
Indoor tournament

The Conn. College men's soccer team attended an indoor soccer tournament the Saturday after vacation at the Coast Guard Academy. They came out with an overall 1-4-3 record against top New England competition.

The Canes beat the high-ranked University of New Haven 2-1 behind goals by Charles Cassell and Bill Clark; UConn, central Connecticut, Eastern Connecticut, and Westfield; then lost to Springfield, Coast Guard, and Babson, who went on to win the tournament.

continued on page sixteen
Soccer

continued from page fifteen

The games were played on the basketball floor on the second story of the Coast Guard Gym, and in the field house on the third floor. Each team started six players and a goalie with ten minute halves of running time. Conn.'s first game was at 5:30 a.m. and their last game wasn't over until 6:30 that night.

Although the team often had short breaks in between games, many were back to back.

Among the ten dedicated soccer players who attended the tournament, a number were standouts. Charlie Casseld stood extremely well in his halfback position the whole day. In addition to scoring two out of three Conn. goals, Casseld's shooting and dribbling kept the opponents on their toes in every game.

Bill Clark, also playing halfback, was the only other man in the scoring column besides with a number of offensive attacks.

Henry Gittenstein and Peter Stokes played exceptionally well in the goal, especially considering the hard floor and point blank shots they had to deal with.

Finally, the hustle of Tom Roosevelt and Andrew Williams proved to be an inspiring factor in a number of games. The Conn. Booters will be playing UConn. under the lights away from home on April 14, but return for an exhibition match against the slummers on Parent's Weekend.

Forum

continued from page one

making points. They believed that a more responsive and effective association would evolve as needed to meet student demands.

A vote was taken to determine support for this suggestion. The vote was close, but those who favored the continued existence of the executive board won by a slight margin.

At this point the focus of the meeting shifted to a consideration of ways to improve the effectiveness of SGA. The problem was seen as a communications gap between the association and the dorms. It was suggested that increased participation and awareness could be achieved through a greater emphasis on the role of house councils and dorm representatives.

Raising vandalism was also a topic of discussion. Allan reported on the cost of repairing damages caused by vandalism in terms of man hours - 150 per month. He gave an estimate of $100,000 as the total cost of vandalism. The use of peer pressure and heavier fines by the Judiciary Board were suggested as possible effective means dealing with the problem.

Raitt

continued from page eight

was their fine reaction to the audience and the mood of the whole affair.

Ms. Raitt plays what appeared to be a quite simplified acoustic guitar, and does do some find bottlenecks on it. She has a strong, throaty voice, with not too great a range, but as a blues singer she transmits the emotion only too well.

There's little point in listing off all she sang; suffice it to say that she began her repertoire with less well-known pieces, and closed with her popular favorites. Yet in an act of real showmanship and sincerely felt appreciation, when returning for her first encore; she did not, but three songs, one of which "Walk On By," seems not to have been at all expected by her band. Throughout the concert she was friendly and talkative; near the end she appeared to be truly overwhelmed by the Palmer audience. But when she came back for a second encore, the crowd went crazy -- I don't think even Ms. Raitt believed what was happening -- A blissful experience that brought only joy.

continued from page one

students who fail to turn people in, which is a violation of the honor code.

The Judiciary Board also changed its policy on publishing cases. Their former policy was to wait a month before publishing cases now they will do so as soon as possible after a case is heard.

Confidentiality will remain in force despite, according to Margolin, some student pressure to publish the names of the offenders as well as the cases.

Dean Watson believes that student pressure to abolish confidentiality arises from a concern that the innocent might suffer. She thinks feeling that since confidentiality in criminal cases is not provided for in outside communities there is question on whether it should be a protection of our community.

How to fly home in the face of inflation.

Flying home economically is simple when you take off on Allegheny. And take advantage of the big choice of discount air travel plans.

For instance:

The Liberty Fare.

You can go home and a lot of other places besides, with unlimited air travel at one low price.

You get a choice of plans, too. 7 days for $135, 14 days for $155, or 21 days for $185. Good everywhere we fly, except Canada. Advance purchase required.

Group 4 to 9

Groups of 4 to 9 save up to 20% roundtrip between any of our U.S. cities. Simply make reservations and purchase tickets 48 hours in advance.

The Weekend Plan.

Take off as early as 7 PM Friday -- return as late as noon Monday and save up to 25% roundtrip between our U.S. cities. Good anytime -- including holiday weekends with advance reservations and pre-purchase of tickets.

It's your move.

See your Travel Agent for complete details on our discount air travel plans. Or call Allegheny. We'll show you how to fly in the face of inflation.

The Freedom Fare.

It's brand new, offering up to 30% savings before June 1 and up to 25% after September 15. During the summer season, the discount is 20%. Freedom Fare seating is limited on each flight, so advance reservations and pre-purchase of tickets are required. Good everywhere, except Canada.

The Weekend Plan.

Take off as early as 7 PM Friday -- return as late as noon Monday and save up to 25% roundtrip between our U.S. cities. Good anytime -- including holiday weekends with advance reservations and pre-purchase of tickets.

It's your move.

See your Travel Agent for complete details on our discount air travel plans. Or call Allegheny. We'll show you how to fly in the face of inflation.

Soccer

continued from page fifteen

The games were played on the basketball floor on the second story of the Coast Guard Gym, and in the field house on the third floor. Each team started six players and a goalie with ten minute halves of running time. Conn.'s first game was at 5:30 a.m. and their last game wasn't over until 6:30 that night. Although the team often had short breaks in between games, many were back to back.

Among the ten dedicated soccer players who attended the tournament, a number were standouts. Charlie Casseld played extremely well in his halfback position the whole day. In addition to scoring two out of three Conn. goals, Casseld's shooting and dribbling kept the opponents on their toes in every game.

Bill Clark, also playing halfback, was the only other man in the scoring column besides with a number of offensive attacks.

Henry Gittenstein and Peter Stokes played exceptionally well in the goal, especially considering the hard floor and point blank shots they had to deal with.

Finally, the hustle of Tom Roosevelt and Andrew Williams proved to be an inspiring factor in a number of games. The Conn. Booters will be playing UConn. under the lights away from home on April 14, but return for an exhibition match against the slummers on Parent's Weekend.

Forum

continued from page one

making points. They believed that a more responsive and effective association would evolve as needed to meet student demands.

A vote was taken to determine support for this suggestion. The vote was close, but those who favored the continued existence of the executive board won by a slight margin.

At this point the focus of the meeting shifted to a consideration of ways to improve the effectiveness of SGA. The problem was seen as a communications gap between the association and the dorms. It was suggested that increased participation and awareness could be achieved through a greater emphasis on the role of house councils and dorm representatives.

Raising vandalism was also a topic of discussion. Allan reported on the cost of repairing damages caused by vandalism in terms of man hours - 150 per month. He gave an estimate of $100,000 as the total cost of vandalism. The use of peer pressure and heavier fines by the Judiciary Board were suggested as possible effective means dealing with the problem.

Raitt

continued from page eight

was their fine reaction to the audience and the mood of the whole affair.

Ms. Raitt plays what appeared to be a quite simplified acoustic guitar, and does do some find bottlenecks on it. She has a strong, throaty voice, with not too great a range, but as a blues singer she transmits the emotion only too well.

There's little point in listing off all she sang; suffice it to say that she began her repertoire with less well-known pieces, and closed with her popular favorites. Yet in an act of real showmanship and sincerely felt appreciation, when returning for her first encore; she did not, but three songs, one of which "Walk On By," seems not to have been at all expected by her band. Throughout the concert she was friendly and talkative; near the end she appeared to be truly overwhelmed by the Palmer audience. But when she came back for a second encore, the crowd went crazy -- I don't think even Ms. Raitt believed what was happening -- A blissful experience that brought only joy.

continued from page one

students who fail to turn people in, which is a violation of the honor code.

The Judiciary Board also changed its policy on publishing cases. Their former policy was to wait a month before publishing cases now they will do so as soon as possible after a case is heard.

Confidentiality will remain in force despite, according to Margolin, some student pressure to publish the names of the offenders as well as the cases. Dean Watson believes that student pressure to abolish confidentiality arises from a concern that the innocent might suffer. She thinks feeling that since confidentiality in criminal cases is not provided for in outside communities there is question on whether it should be a protection of our community.

How to fly home in the face of inflation.

Flying home economically is simple when you take off on Allegheny. And take advantage of the big choice of discount air travel plans.

For instance:

The Liberty Fare.

You can go home and a lot of other places besides, with unlimited air travel at one low price.

You get a choice of plans, too. 7 days for $135, 14 days for $155, or 21 days for $185. Good everywhere we fly, except Canada. Advance purchase required.

Group 4 to 9

Groups of 4 to 9 save up to 20% roundtrip between any of our U.S. cities. Simply make reservations and purchase tickets 48 hours in advance.

The Weekend Plan.

Take off as early as 7 PM Friday -- return as late as noon Monday and save up to 25% roundtrip between our U.S. cities. Good anytime -- including holiday weekends with advance reservations and pre-purchase of tickets.

It's your move.

See your Travel Agent for complete details on our discount air travel plans. Or call Allegheny. We'll show you how to fly in the face of inflation.

The Freedom Fare.

It's brand new, offering up to 30% savings before June 1 and up to 25% after September 15. During the summer season, the discount is 20%. Freedom Fare seating is limited on each flight, so advance reservations and pre-purchase of tickets are required. Good everywhere, except Canada.

The Weekend Plan.

Take off as early as 7 PM Friday -- return as late as noon Monday and save up to 25% roundtrip between our U.S. cities. Good anytime -- including holiday weekends with advance reservations and pre-purchase of tickets.

It's your move.

See your Travel Agent for complete details on our discount air travel plans. Or call Allegheny. We'll show you how to fly in the face of inflation.