Moderato

There was a fire burning
I left you laughing when I

in my heart,
said goodbye,

Burning for years and for years,
Laughing but nobody knew

There's A Little Spark

Your love and kisses gave that flame a start, I put it out with my tears;
How much relief I found when I could cry, I cried my heart out for you;

You don't remember, I can't forget,
I've loved you more than you'll ever know,

That old affection lives with me yet,
Tho' years have passed I've wanted you so,

I keep on longing, Bring back the old love,

To my regret, I know I can't forget,

Let new love grow, come back and whisper low.

There's A Little Spark
CHORUS

There's a little spark of love still burning, And yearning down in my heart for you, There's a longing there for your returning, I want you! I do! So come, come to my heart again, Come, come, set that love a-flame. For there's a little spark of love still burning, and yearning for you. There's a you.

"I Want to Go to Tokio"

Le: Joe McCarty and Fred Fischer take you on the pleasantest trip in many a day—To Tokio.

See the little sweetheart, "Ho, Yo-San," across the sea—beneath the bamboo tree, sitting on a Jap-a-(k)nnee.

There have been many quaint Japanese songs written before, but never one so good as "I Want to Go to Tokio."

Here's how good a song "Tokio" is: You sing it once at a party or 'song-fest'—it is good for all night. "I Want to Go to Tokio" is that good!

"I sing a-hig a-lee a-low"—which begins and ends the chorus—is a catchy bit of irresistible, tuneful, Oriental melody.

These pieces may also be procured for your Talking Machine or Player Piano. Orchestra leaders will gladly play them on request.

"I Didn't Raise My Boy To Be a Soldier"

There'd be no war today
If mothers all would say—
"I didn't raise my boy
To be a soldier!"

Here's the first anti-war song. A "made in America" hit. It's the song you've been waiting for. It's not the song of Militarism—it's a Mother's big-hearted appeal for the life of her boy; yes, and for the life of every mother's "pride and joy."

"I Didn't Raise My Boy To Be a Soldier" is a gripping, powerful message for eternal Peace.

It bids fair to far outstrip "Tipperary" in popularity.

By Alfred Bryan and Al Piantadosi.
